CONVEYANCES.

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a. G and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants or warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing a Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed can be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no express covenants, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the Insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482, denote that the property is in section 2 block 482.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers, the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of tbis list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. Tbe description of the property then follows, then tbe date of the mortgage, tbe time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as head lines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by tbe name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, thy mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage is drawn, the second tbe date of filing; when both dates are tbe same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

February 6, 7, 9, 10 and 11.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as head lines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

VOL. LXXI. FEBRUARY 21, 1903. No. 1823

WHATEVER may have been the ground for and object of the raid made upon the stock market, it has served one good purpose in revealing the latent strength of prices. It makes it apparent, too, that there is a short interest in the market of hitherto unsuspected proportions. It was decidedly not the object of the raid to produce these results, but to create a liquidating movement from which the raiders might profit. The actual results are all the more significant because actual conditions rather favored movements on the short side. A three-day holiday period was approaching which discouraged speculative buying; time money was firmer and exchange had actually reached the nominal shipping point, and it only needed some slightly encouraging circumstances, such as the sailing of a fast steamer, or the least increase in the demand from Europe, to induce exports of gold. Coming on top of these a raid on prices so carefully organized as this was calculated to disorganize the market. The fact that it did not must be attributed to the unbroken confidence of the public in the soundness of the conditions underlying security values. The only parties hurt seem to have been the raiders themselves, because the break brought in outside support and the work of recovering stocks sold was therefore made more expensive. The whole incident increases confidence in the outlook and other circumstances show that the market is in good hands and will not be allowed to degenerate. Yesterday saw a continuation of the outside buying induced by the break of the previous day, and while some of the strength of prices was due to short covering usual to the eve of a holiday, there was decided promise of further advance in the coming week.

ADVICES from Europe are taken up mainly with the latest phases of the Near Eastern question, and of the money markets in the centres of finance. Regarding the latter the conditions are high rates in London and extreme ease elsewhere. The circumstances indicate that these conditions will prevail for sometime. Money is scarce in London because of the revenue collections which are accumulating at the Bank of England, a process that will continue until the close of the fiscal year on Lady Day. Then will follow the demand for funds usual at the Easter holiday period; which, it is anticipated, will be supplied through the government's disbursement of its funds at the bank. This being the condition of affairs, it is not surprising that a rumor is afloat that the guaranteed Transvaal loan of £35,000,000 or £40,000,000 will not be put upon the market until the end of April. Whether this rumor has any authority or not has not transpired, but the government will surely not press the loan until the money market improves. Other European centres are not subjected to circumstances like these, and consequently money is accumulating there to the satisfaction of borrowers. There is nowhere any complaint of the condition of general business, which continues to improve under reviving demand in many directions, reflected until the past few days in advancing prices for industrial securities. Business on the exchanges are not large, and became irregular owing to the sentimental effect of the actual presentation of the demands of the Powers on the Sultan for administrative reforms in the sections of his dominions where his subjects are mostly Christian. That these demands are endorsed by all the Powers besides Austria and Russia, upon whom the task of direct presentation has fallen, ought to be reassuring, but a disturbed market accompanied by assurances from all sides that there is nothing to fear, is a phenomenon not unknown in finance, and possibly before this political incident passes away prices may fall yet lower. The reason for this is that, like our own, the European markets are mainly professional and the professional sells upon any public event in which there is an element of doubt, not because he fears the political consequences thereof, but simply and solely because it gives him an opportunity of making a turn. For the same reason he is just as ready to buy when the fears he has helped to create prove to be groundless. Recovery is likely to be as rapid as the decline. As a market factor the present crisis in the Balkans is not likely to have much effect, because it is improbable that the Sultan will in the end refuse acquiescence in Europe's demands, and if the outcome is not wholly satisfactory to Macedonia and the surrounding states, the recollection of the fate of Greece in its attempt to force issues in the Balkans is too recent to fail of being a warning to the small powers that would otherwise be willing to help a movement for independence in the Christian provinces of Turkey.

ONE of the objections raised this week to the Aldrich bill for securing government deposits in national banks is, that it is not as good as a proper and comprehensive currency measure would be. This criticism is as correct as it is exasperating. If Congress will pass a measure which will give us a currency capable of expanding and contracting according to the greater or less demand, the necessity for such measures as that of Mr. Aldrich will disappear. But it will not; hence it is that expedients must be created to obviate the worst consequences of the currency system that we have. The particular evil the Aldrich bill is designed to remedy was explained last week, and need not be repeated now. The inclusion of railroad bonds in the collateral that may be received against government bonds is another point that has met with criticism. Those who object to this do not comprehend the strict qualifications surrounding this privilege. They are to be "the first mortgage bonds of any railroad company which has paid dividends of not less than 4 per cent. per annum regularly upon its entire capital stock for a period of not less than ten years." It will be seen, first, that only first mortgage bonds are to be permitted to the collateral, and, second, if the term during which dividends have to be paid is the ten years last passed, this will reduce the number of companies whose first mortgage bonds may be received, to comparatively few, and will actually exclude the premier bond issues of many important companies, the Chicago & Northwestern and the Omaha, for instance, which are so prized by investors that they rarely appear in the market, and when they do fetch prices approaching those of government bonds. That it is intended that there shall be so strict a reading of these terms we doubt, but any Secretary of the Treasury may so read them. Possibly the framers of the bill are not aware how restrictive this condition may prove, but the facts show the care that has been taken to make the additional available collateral for the deposits as choice as possible.

WHEN before a Congressional committee as a witness to the accuracy of the estimates of cost for completing the Panama Canal, Mr. George Morrison, the well-known engineer, said no item had advanced in price since the estimate was made sufficiently to affect its conclusion, with the single exception of cement, and the price of this he was sure would recede within two years. From this it may be taken that, in the opinion of this eminent authority, the constructive work that has for the past five years been going on all over the country has begun the return to normal quantity. If this is so, it should have effect upon the prices of building materials. This view finds corroboration in the fact that stocks of iron have begun to rise. The movement is slow, but is taken to mean that home manufactures and imports have at length got slightly beyond demand. Stocks were on November 1, 71,858 tons; December 1, 94,295 tons; January 1, 99,895 tons, and February 1, 119,641 tons. These are not by any means large stocks, and considering the enormous production, supplemented as it is by large importations, they do not indicate any considerable falling off in demand. It is the gradual increase from month to month that is significant, especially when the difficulty of filling orders which was so long a characteristic of the iron trade is borne in mind.

IT is by no means surprising that the bill to place a recording tax upon conveyances of real estate should be challenged on the ground of unfair discrimination. The view taken of this matter in these columns last week has found expression in the Legislature, and it is not easy to see how the state administration can get out of the difficulty they have placed themselves in by persisting in their intention to tax conveyances of real estate, while abandoning the tax on conveyances of personal property, including the stock of corporations. Mature consideration doubtless revealed difficulties in the way of enforcing the tax on stock transfers, which were not foreseen when the governor sent his message to the Legislature, but that is no reason why one class of property should be favored more than another, and certainly no reason why one class of property that already bears the burden of producing all but a fraction of the public revenue should be still further prejudiced in this respect, while other classes go free because of assumed difficulties in the way of collecting the tax which it was proposed that they should bear in common with real estate. The inequity of the proposal is so marked that it is impossible to conceive that it will be adopted into law.

The Rapid Transit Commission.

THE magnitude and scope of the work performed by the Rapid Transit Commission is only second in importance to that performed by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. Upon the sufficient and intelligent enlargement of the transit system of the city, the convenience and increase of its population depends more than upon any other single cause. The Commission, moreover, both has the spending of a great deal of money and the drawing of contracts which may do much to increase the city's revenue. A manifest tendency exists towards the enlargement of its functions. Since Mayor Low has assumed office, he has called upon the experience and the ability of the present Commission to aid him, both in negotiating with the Pennsylvania R. R. Co. for the framing of the terms and conditions of its concession, and in planning new rapid transit routes, which will connect the many separate tunnel and bridge termini which now are or soon will gather, and send out streams of traffic, so that the whole transit system of the Greater New York will become a well-articulated organism. Finally there can be little doubt that if the supervision and control of the existing transit companies is to be intelligently exercised, as public opinion is beginning to demand, that supervision must be placed in the hands of the public Board, which is also responsible for the planning of new transit routes. There should be no conflict or multiplication of authority in such an important matter. The permanent improvement of the service offered on the Manhattan and surface roads depends in the end, not only in the constant exercise of pressure upon the Manhattan and Metropolitan officials, but upon the opening up of new tunnels devoted specially to the use of the surface cars. In New York the existing mechanism of travel is superseded so soon that any official body that proposes to increase its efficiency can do so only by providing also for radical improvements. The Rapid Transit Commission, in short, is certainly destined to play an ever more important part in guiding and accelerating the growth of the Greater New York.

For this reason the bill which Comptroller Grout has had introduced into the Legislature during the past week, which proposes to change the constitution of the Commission is a matter for very serious consideration. The aim of the bill is in the first place gradually to substitute a commission, appointed, by the mayor, and consequently responsible to him for the present self-perpetuating body. Now it is obvious that this bill of Mr. Grout's embodies a much more wholesome governmental principle than that which is embodied in the constitution of the present Commission—the principle, namely, of the election or appointment of local officials by local residents. This principle has been most strenuously insisted upon time and again, when in one way or another the Republican Legislature has threatened to ignore it. On the other hand, however illogical and objectionable the constitution of the present Commission, there are naturally strong objections urged against any change. The members of the Rapid Transit Commission were named in the original bill, and it was made a self-perpetuating body, because, during the period of Tammany domination, it was desired to place the control of these important improvements in the hands of men who were known to be incorruptible and efficient. Furthermore, the Commission has served the city well. It has laid down the beginning of an excellent subway system; and it has made what seemed at the time to be profitable terms for the construction and operation of this tunnel. Public opinion has confidence in the Commission, and is very much afraid of the disastrous results which might follow from the substitution of a less upright set of commissioners for these which now hold the office. Consequently in spite of the fact that the Commission is a close and in a sense an irresponsible corporation, Comptroller Grout has met with little or no support.

Yet we believe that in the course of time his proposal will be regarded with more favor. The Record and Guide fully appreciates the value of the work performed by the present Commission. It has as much faith in the good will and competence of its members as has the Chamber of Commerce. It appreciates that when it was originally appointed it stood for a comparatively advanced set of ideas concerning the relation of the municipality to transit corporations. But since the first organization of the Commission conditions have changed, and ideas have advanced. The early notion was that the Commission was constituted merely to accomplish a definite purpose, and that, since after that purpose was accomplished, it would go out of existence, its special and peculiar constitution did not make so much difference. But it is now apparent that the Commission must become a permanent part of the governmental machinery of New York. Even after the great system of extensions already outlined is carried out, further extensions will be found necessary; and undoubtedly some permanent Board must be established to protect the interests of the traveling public as against the monopoly of transit service, which is threatened. Such a permanent commission should undoubtedly be appointed, just as the other local administrative officials are appointed, and should not continue to be a close and irresponsible corporation. This is all the more necessary, because the present Commission is apparently getting some over-rigid ideas about the terms under which the rapid transit system should be extended, and these extensions operated. It is evident that the city is now in a position to get very much better terms in several ways than it was when the first contract was let. It should obtain both a better gross rental, a shorter period and the guarantee of a certain specific service. But the Commission, in drawing up the contract for the Brooklyn extension, either did not or could not insert any radical or important modification of terms. It evidently proposed to stand by its former contract, and it has a partiality for its present contractor.

It is one of the merits of Comptroller Grout's bill that it takes into account the chance of getting better terms. It withdraws the privilege of exemption from taxation from subsequent contractors. It permits the complete municipal ownership of any road constructed under the authority of the board. This is an absolutely necessary provision, which the Record and Guide has frequently recommended in the past, because it is only by the serious threat of complete municipal ownership that the transit corporations can be brought to terms. Furthermore the Comptroller believes in subdividing the contracts, so as to stimulate competition both as to the construction and operation of the tunnel. This is in line with the recent recommendations of the Citizens' Union, and if acted upon, would greatly assist the Board in securing better terms for the city. The enormous extensions which the Commission is about to authorize make these questions exceedingly pressing, and it is to be hoped that whatever the fate of Mr. Grout's bill, the Comptroller and the Citizens' Union will continue to insist upon the possibility and the necessity of securing better terms. It is evident that the Inter-borough Company will do its best to secure the contracts by means of concessions similar to those which obtained the Brooklyn contract, viz., by offering to construct the tunnel cheap; but this means but little loss to them and small advantage to the city. The city can now afford to lend its credit for the sake of shortening the terms of the lease and the raising in one way or another the amount of the rental.

The Theory of Urban Land Values.

AN ATTEMPT TO SET FORTH THE PRINCIPLES AND CONDITIONS THAT DETERMINE THE PRICE OF CITY REAL ESTATE.

CHAPTER VI.—DISTRIBUTION OF UTILITIES.

By Richard M. Hurd, President of the Lawyers' Mortgage Insurance Company.

The evolution of a large city from a small one result not only from increased population and added industries, but also from continual specialization in business and differentiation in social grades. The first step is the separation between business and dwellings, the original buildings used for business below and dwelling above being replaced by separate business and residence buildings. Later the social activities in educational, charitable and recreational lines, become organized and evidence themselves in schools, hospitals, theatres and clubs, increasing diversity of function resulting in increased diversity of structure. Analyzing city land according to its utilization, it may be divided into three main classes, that used for business, that for residences and that for public or semi-public buildings.

Business land may be subdivided into that used for distribution—retail or wholesale stores and railroads—that used for administration—banking and office property—and that used for production—manufacturing property.

Residence land may be subdivided into that occupied by a single tenant, ranging from the cottage to the palace, and that occupied by more than one tenant, ranging from tenements to apartments and hotels.

Land used for public or semi-public buildings includes that used by the Post Office, City Hall, County Court House, &c., and by all such institutions as asylums, hospitals, churches, libraries, museums, clubs, &c.

The locations sought by these utilities and the reasons therefor seem to be as follows: Retail stores either cluster at the business centre or follow out traffic streets. In retailing the buyer necessarily seeks the seller, but since in all forms of trade it is the seller who is anxious to promote business, the retailer facilitates his possible customers by placing his shop where the largest number of them would pass, even though his shop were not there. Here he utilizes his shop windows and signs to draw customers into his shop, the two elements of convenience of location and advertising advantage working hand in hand.

Wholesaling may be divided into two main classes: First, wholesaling of objects of great weight or bulk but relatively small value, which seeks locations near transportation lines or termini for economy of handling, the selling being done by traveling salesmen or by selling agencies located in the business centre; and second wholesaling of articles of small bulk but high value in the rtail-wholesale way, viz., the making up of an order including a variety of objects for the trade only, which seek locations near their chief customers the retail stores. Here the ability to quickly supply a small order of mixed goods is sufficiently important to induce them to pay considerable rents.

Railroads in striving for passenger traffic project their passenger terminals as far as possible towards the business centre of a city. Economy of handling freight locates the freight depots either near the docks for interchange of freight or near the heavy business houses.

In the largest cities a separate section evolves devoted to office buildings, whose ground floors are utilized by banks, trust companies, insurance companies, &c., and whose offices are rented to brokers, lawyers, architects, &c., the location of such an administrative district being usually the result of slow growth around old institutions.

Manufacturing follows similar lines to wholesaling, the production of articles of great weight or bulk and small value seeking the waterfronts or railroads away from the centre of the city, both for economy in handling the product and because requiring a large area for a low utilization they must have cheap land. The manufacture of light articles of high value or that which consists of the final combination or finishing of products seeks the wholesale or retail stores which form their customers. In such manufacturing the seller seeks the buyer and sells by sample, so that a location with an advertising value is not imperative, but the requirement of constant visits to customers and the ability to supply small articles quickly, cause such manufacturers to pay considerable rents.

In general the basis of the distribution of all business utilities is purely economic, land going to the highest bidder and the highest bidder being the one who can make the land earn the largest amount. We may note that the better the location the more uses to which it can be put, hence the more bidders for it.

The basis of residence values is social and not economic—even though the land goes to the highest bidder—the rich selecting the locations which please them, those of moderate means living as near by as possible, and so on down the scale of wealth, the poorest workmen taking the final leavings, either adjacent to such nuisances as factories, railroads, docks, &c., or far out of the city. Certain features appear to attract the wealthy in selecting their residence districts, among these being nearness to parks, a good approach from the business centre, not too near nor yet too far, a moderate elevation if obtainable, favorable transportation facilities, despite the fact that the rich ride in their own carriages and automobiles, and above all absence of nuisances. Having selected a district the wealthy make it their own by erecting handsome residences, making good street improvements, restricting against nuisances, and finally and of chief importance living there themselves, the value of residence land varying directly according to the social standing of its occupants. The main consideration in the individual selection of a residence location is the desire to live among one's friends or among those whom one desires to have for friends; for which reason there will be as many residence neighborhoods in a city as there are social strata. In securing a home in a good residence section a man secures safe, healthy and attractive conditions for his family to live under, and in the smaller cities, desirable social life, these social considerations explaining the strong pressure in all cities towards the best residence sections. The contrast should be noted that business property is selected by the man from an economic standpoint, and residence property by the woman from a social standpoint. Social growth and pressure is upwards from class to class, all ranks being continually recruited from below—as well as dropping members from time to time—and the ultimate aim in residence location is to be as close as possible to those of the highest social position.

Where residences contain more than one tenant, whether tenements, flats, apartments or hotels, the basis of value is economic and conforms closely to the principles governing business property. The hotels of various classes seek locations similar to the retail stores of the same classes on convenient traffic streets which advertise them. The highest class apartment hotels seek locations on or near such traffic streets as run through or near the fashionable districts, the rents being dependent both upon fashion and on the character and service of the building. Below this grade the various classes of flats seek locations for the convenience of their tenants, tending to draw nearer and nearer to their tenant's places of business, until finally we reach tenements crowded among the factories where their occupants work.

Turning to the main central growth of cities, a successful business at or near the city centre which requires more space can secure it either by acquiring adjoining ground, by building higher in the air, or by moving away from the centre. To build higher in the air solves the problem in a banking and office district, but not in a retail shopping district, where ground floor frontage on traffic streets is required. Whether an adjoining lot is acquired or the shopkeeper himself moves, the result is the same, which is the starting of the movement away from the centre, a slow but endless procession. The fact that land is cheaper away from the centre has a slight tendency to further promote the outward movement, which continually evidences the unstable equilibrium between the centripetal force of economy in the transaction of business and the centrifugal force of cheap land. The uniform tendency as a city grows is toward greater concentration in the business centre and greater dispersion in the residence sections, and as long as there is an outward movement, so long is there certain to be a continual readjustment at the business centre to conform to it.

The various embryonic sections gathered closely together in the first small area of the city, in expanding largely influence the location of utilities. Whatever the new building to be erected, whether retail or wholesale, shop or residence, it can either be placed next to similar buildings or apart from them. With this choice, buildings are commonly placed adjacent to others of a similar kind, so that the general tendency for all sections is to extend continuously, expanding in breadth as the centre is left. One expensive residence, if not overcome by unfavorable factors, may be sufficient to attract similar buildings and create the most fashionable residence street in a city, as in a more marked way the royal palaces in Paris and London have created the most fashionable residence districts in those cities. This does not mean that individual enterprise or whim can run counter to the orderly evolution of a city, since in time it will certainly succumb to the stronger concerted forces.

When the best residence district is determined the main growth of the city is quite certain to follow it, as note the movement of retail stores after the best residences on Fifth Avenue in New York; on Boylston Street in Boston; on Michigan Avenue in Chicago; on Olive and Locust Streets in St. Louis; on Madison, Monroe and Jefferson Streets in Toledo; on Morrison and Washington Streets in Portland, Ore.; on St. Charles, Carondelet and Baronne Streets in New Orleans, &c. The reason the best residence district rather than the largest residence district draws the city, is doubtless that the far higher percentage of purchasing power of the wealthy more than offsets the superior numbers of the poorer classes, and to the further fact that the shops patronized by the wealthy become fashionable, and hence sought by all classes as far as their means permit.

Exceptions to this progression are due chiefly to topography, business remaining on a level if possible and climbing hills only under great pressure. A further exception to the normal would be where two or more good residence districts are located on opposite sides of the main business section so as to balance each other, as in Fort Wayne and Knoxville.

Probably the most important movement within a city as it grows is the gathering together of those carrying on the same kind of business into special districts. This tendency is in harmony with the law of evolution, that increasing differentiation is accompanied by increased integration and was common in Rome and Constantinople thousands of years ago. Retail stores cluster together at convenient points for their customers and not because they do business with each other. The chief attracting power of such a retail section seems to be the insurance to customers against failure to find within the section what they seek. Undoubtedly the selection within this special district is normally better than that in all the rest of the city combined, and shoppers are saved the time, trouble and uncertainty of seeking through scattered shops. While one shop may attract a customer and another make the sale, such an interchange of customers is probably in the long run closely balanced. The personal factor, or the business ability of managers to advertise and develop a business, is most influential in causing gradations of values in adjacent business locations. A successful shop continually enlarges the area from which it draws custom and diverts special currents of travel towards it. This attracts the notice of other shops in the same line of business, who, reasoning either that the location has helped their successful rival or that by moving near them they can secure some of their customers, move close to the successful store. Formerly it was held that the further a retail store was removed from a competitor the better, this, however, being found to hold true only of those small stores which depend for business on the immediate neighborhood.

In many forms of business the clustering together of those transacting it finally crystalizes into an Exchange, which forms the centre of the district. Since the Exchanges are the result and not the cause of the special districts in which they are located, we must look back of them to find the causes for the location of various utilities. For example, the leather district in New York, was located in Beekman Swamp, on account of the wet ground suitable for tanning pits, and similarly in Philadelphia, the leather district was located on both sides of Dock Creek. There were banks on Wall Street long before the Stock Exchange was established, the location of the banks and of the United States Sub-Treasury and Assay Office attracting the Stock Exchange, which in turn drew further Banks, Trust Companies and Brokers. The location of the Cotton Exchange apart from the dry-goods district would seem strange except for the fact that thirty or forty years ago Hanover Square was the centre of the dry-goods trade.

The reasons for the clustering together of wholesale houses are not so clear as in the case of retail shops, except that the features which are favorable for one wholesale house are equally so for another, such as proximity to transportation facilities to save trucking, and the fact that by locating together they attract more out-of-town buyers than if scattered.

The outward pressure of one zone upon another involves the slow advance of the banking and office section into the older retail or wholesale districts, the continual following along of the lighter wholesale houses into the buildings vacated by the retail shops, the close pursuit of the best residence sections by the best retail shops, with normally a mixed zone of institutions, &c., acting as a buffer between them, and the steady march of residences into the outlying country, first utilized for gardens or cottages. Whatever the size or shape of a city, the order of dependence of one district upon another remains the same, although many districts are not clearly defined but overlap others of different character.

In connection with the progression of districts in a city, we may note the movement of the point of highest value, which means the most desirable location for a retail shop in all cities, except in the few financial capitals where the banking and office district produces higher values than retail shops.

In a waterfront city the highest values start at the point of origin and spread normally along the first street on the waterfront, moving later to the next street parallel to it, and so on back.

The rate of this backward growth from street to street varies according to the prosperity of a city, a rapid increase of population being reflected in an expansion of the city's area, and often a rapid shifting of the business centre. In slow growing cities it may take from twenty to forty years to move the principal retail business from one street to another, as note the movement from Water Street to Main Street in Bridgeport; from Bay Street to Congress Street and later Broughton Street in Savannah, &c.

If the principal street runs at right angles to the water front, the shifting of the highest point of value takes place much more rapidly than if the street is parallel to the water front, where it has to be moved laterally. The rate instead of averaging from twenty to forty years might vary from eight to twelve years per block, the length of the blocks affecting the movement. One factor delaying such movement would be a strong traffic street at right angles to the principal street, which might hold the highest values at its intersection for many years. Such strong cross streets often cause jumps in the highest values to replace the steady onward movement, as with 14th, 23d, 34th and 42d streets in New York.

The rate of movement of cities is sometimes affected by the destruction of whole districts by fire, which brings up the question to owners whether or not to rebuild the same type of buildings on the same locations. In many cases a conflagration causes the erection of handsome new buildings in place of the old ones, so that a new period of higher utility arises. On the other hand, the destruction of individual buildings by fire will have an unfavorable effect if tenants move elsewhere and owners do not rebuild.

The unfolding of a city, with its change in land utilization shows normally in the case of any lot a slow increase in value up to a high point, after which a gradual decline takes place, with occasional fluctuations varying the main movement. Thus where good residences take the place of small suburban homes, a higher utility supplants the lower, and when these good residences become old-fashioned and are converted into boarding houses, a drop in value will ordinarily occur. This is sometimes offset by the more intense utilization of the land, a larger rent being earned from more people even at lower rates. Moreover, property of this class having the prospect of being overtaken by business buildings has an anticipated value in advance of its yield. When retail stores arrive and become firmly established the high level of value is usually reached, this period lasting possibly thirty to sixty years. As the retail stores move on a lower utility succeeds—and usually a lower value unless the city's increase in population, more than offsets the drop in utility—wholesale houses being followed by storage warehouses, cheap tenements, dilapidations, &c., until sometimes land formerly the best in the city becomes so remote from the active business centre as to have little or no value.

THE legality of the presence of the Manhattan elevated railroad in Battery Park has always been questioned, and a show of intention to compel its removal has been made several times, but has at no time had the sympathy of the public or has aroused any fears in the minds of the managers of the railroad that it would be effected. At the same time this condition of things has been unsatisfactory. Corporation Counsel Rives and Park Commissioner Willcox now come forward with a plan to legalize this intrusion on condition that less room is occupied, and that a structure more pleasing to the eye be built in place of the present one; also that reasonable compensation be paid to the city by the railroad company for the privilege they possess. This would be a fitting arrangement, and one that should be generally approved. If the company is in illegal occupation of public property, and at the same time the public service requires its retention, the sooner this occupation is made regular and the city receives any compensation to which it may be entitled the better.

Real Estate Situation.

An Active Week.

These are lively times in the real estate market. It is difficult to keep abreast of the many diverse currents of activity and improvement; but it is a sufficiently accurate description of the present situation to say that at no time since the present movement began have had the transactions a larger scope or a more healthy tone. All kinds of real estate are in good demand, and all varieties of improvement are being planned in large numbers. The different classes of business property are, perhaps, in best demand of all. So far as office buildings are concerned, the real estate companies are being driven from the heart of the financial district by the operations of wealthy financial institutions. With the banks and insurance companies in the field, alive to protect and even to extend their interests, there may be profit for the real estate corporations in selling, but they cannot make much in buying gilt-edged real estate. Whatever the ultimate plans of the Equitable Life may be, its action will obviously tend still further to increase values in the region of peculiarly high prices; and the speculative companies must confine their operations to buying and building on less expensive property on the outskirts of the financial district. They have already accomplished a great deal along these lines on lower Wall street, Broad street, and on Battery Park; and they will surely continue to do so. The corner of Wall and Water streets will be improved this spring, as well as the triangle at Wall and Pearl streets. Several buildings on lower Broad street are also probable. The United States Realty and Construction Co. has shown that it is still doing business by the purchase of the old Sturtevant House, a plot containing more than 15,000 square feet, and admirably situated in the centre of upper Broadway. The extension of the Subway along Broadway from 14th to 42d street will do a great deal to maintain that part of the thoroughfare as a centre of amusement resorts and a certain kind of retail trade; but it is doubtful whether the United States Realty Co. can do anything with the property except erect an office and loft building upon it. In one way or another it is evident that the Tenderloin will be pushed further north and that the side streets in this vicinity are destined for respectable business uses. A little further east the Century Realty Co. and other buyers have been very active. The immediate vicinity of the new Hotel Brunswick will, it is expected, be metamorphosed; and buying has begun on 27th street between Madison and 5th avenues. Twenty-eighth street from 5th to 4th avenue will also come in for some share of attention, because the Subway station at that street will create a very busy traffic west to Broadway. In fact, as the Record and Guide has frequently pointed out, the whole section between 4th and 5th avenues in this vicinity is coming in for radical changes. It should be noticed, also, that on 34th street also, east of 5th avenue, there is evidence of business intrusion. But, although the most important transactions of the week have been in business property, there is evidence of similar activity in dwellings and apartment houses.

The Subway Extensions.

The property-owners of New York have before them now the plans of the Rapid Transit Commission for what is considered to be a comprehensive rapid transit system for Manhattan and the Bronx. These plans include briefly an East Side extension from 40th street and Park avenue n orth via Lexington avenue; a West Side extension south from Broadway and 42d street to the Battery via Broadway, University place and Wooster street; an elevated road for freight passengers along the North River water front, in place of the New York Central tracks, and the addition of third tracks to various parts of the present elevated roads, both for the purpose of bringing those roads to their highest efficiency, and for the purpose of providing convenient connections with the Subway. These various extensions, which property-owners should bear in mind have only been made possible by the increased assessed valuation of real estate, have the double merit of providing for the largest possible increase of accommodations at the earliest possible moment, and of providing also for the construction of an underground system, which will in the end improve almost indefinitely the rapid transit mechanism of the Greater New York. The two chief novelties in the plan as announced is the West Side extension south from 14th street along University place and Wooster street, and the elevated road on the North River waterfront. The first of these is an absolute necessity for the completion of the system, but it is not likely to be relished by property-owners along the proposed route; and we should not be surprised to find the board forced to accept a route further west, along the wider thoroughfares of Hudson street and West Broadway. As to the elevated road on the waterfront, it seems incredible that the New York Central road will not take advantage of this proposal to improve its traffic facilities in Manhattan. Altogether it is a wonderfully comprehensive scheme, which will enable the population of the Greater City to expand with the utmost freedom toward the north, which will enormously increase the comfort and convenience of their lives, which economize business operations in Manhattan and elsewhere, and which will serve to increase real estate values both on the outskirts and in the centre of the Greater New York. Together with the new subways for Brooklyn and Richmond, and the tunnel connecting the Manhattan terminals of the new bridges, the scheme will mean the almost complete liberation of the Greater New York from the confines which have in the past so seriously impeded its growth and hampered its prosperity. But it should be remembered that it leaves one future problem of portentious importance totally untouched. Corresponding with the enormous growth of overhead and underground traffic which these extensions will effect, there will be increasing demands upon the already overcrowded street system of Manhattan. Vehicular, trolley and foot travel will necessarily grow in something like the same ratio. How will this travel be handled and distributed?

Against the Stamp Tax.

A LAWYER CONSIDERS THAT ONE EFFECT WOULD BE TO EXPOSE PRIVATE BUSINESS AFFAIRS.

Against the bill to tax all conveyances of real estate, as now proposed, since the abandonment by the Governor of the attempt to tax all certificates as well, there is some opposition manifested, and for other reasons besides objection to any addition to the burden now borne by real estate. Mr. L. Napoleon Levy of No. 20 Broad st voiced this sentiment when being interviewed for the Record and Guide. He said:

"Owners of real property in this city have a vital interest in the pending bill in the Legislature to impose a stamp tax on all deeds of land, and should unanimously oppose it. My chief objection, other than that it is another step by the state to increase taxes in every direction, and eventually to result in a tax on the necessities of life, is that it exposes to the public, private business affairs; and I hold that the consideration paid by the buyer and received by the seller is a personal transaction, which should not be explained to the public any more than the transaction in the buying and selling of goods. There are manifold reasons why one or both of the parties may not wish to disclose the price, and this stamp tax makes it incumbent that it be revealed.

"Another reason; real estate is already sufficiently burdened by taxation. Again, it is proposed to divert the income arising from this iniquitous measure into the state treasury to the exclusion of the localities. At least seventy-five per cent. of the tax will be paid by the real property in this city.

"I cannot see the force of the assertion that this tax will compel non-residents to pay taxes, as but few conveyances are made by them.

"If the Legislators are bent on taxing deeds and can devise a law by which a fixed amount shall be paid upon each deed irrespective of the consideration, it would not be so objectionable."

Separate Statement of Land and the Building Assessments.

The following assertions and facts are taken from the memorandum accompanying the bill, recently introduced at Albany, providing for the separate assessment of land and improvements:

It is too well known to require demonstration that there has been great inequality in the assessment of real estate in the city of New York. It has been proved that some property was assessed as low as ten per cent. of its true value, and other property at more than the sum for which it would sell.

The State Commerce Convention, assembled in the city of Utica, October 11, 1899, adopted the following resolution: "That inequality in the assessment of real estate is a serious obstruction to trade and commerce, and that to remedy this evil, this convention adopts the recommendation made again and again by the State Board of Tax Commissioners, to the effect that in assessing real estate the value of the land and of the improvements thereon should be separately stated, as has been done for many years in the city of Buffalo and in several neighboring states."

The resolution of the State Commerce Convention points out a remedy which has been successfully tried in several neighboring states, in the city of Buffalo in this state, and which has received the commendation of Boards of Tax Commissioners in this state. In the report of the State Board of Tax Commissioners of Massachusetts in 1897, it is stated that assessments of real estate in Massachusetts are well made, and there can be no doubt that this is due to the law which requires a separate statement of the value of the land and of the improvements thereon.

In the state of New Jersey discrimination in assessments was so bad that in 1891 an act was passed authorizing the State Board of Taxation, where the Board deemed it necessary, in order to obtain a correct assessment of property in any city, by rule to direct that the assessor should determine the true value of each lot of real estate in his district without the buildings and improvements, and note the same, and separately determine and note the true value of the improvements. On the eighth of March, 1892, the State Board of Taxation by rule directed that the assessments made in cities of the first and second class should be so made, and in their annual report for that year they said:

"The universal opinion of those with experience in the assessment of real estate in our cities is to the effect that the assessment should be made by separate valuations by the assessors. We recommend that such mode of assessment have the sanction and force of positive enactment of the Legislature to that effect. Experience proved separate assessment the only fair method."

In the report of the State Board of Taxation made in 1895, they say in regard to separate assessment of land and improvements: "This law has been in practical operation in first and second class cities for the past three years, and has proved satisfactory. From observation and experience the State Board is thoroughly satisfied that this is the only fair and just method to be pursued in the assessment of property in municipalities, and we recommend that this method of assessment be extended by statute to municipalities in the state having a population of five thousand or more inhabitants, and that the State Board have power to require such assessments to be made according to that method in any other taxing district, when such a proceeding may seem to them necessary in order to obtain a fair and just assessment of the taxable property in said taxing district."

In 1897 a special commission was appointed by Governor Griggs to investigate the subject of taxation in the state of New Jersey, and they recommended that in the assessment of real estate land and improvements shall be separately assessed.

The New York State Board of Assessors, in their report for 1878, said: "We would earnestly recommend that all assessors, in order to arrive at the full and true value of the real estate, be required to assess the value of the land and buildings thereon separately. Until this is done, correct assessments will not be made."

In 1879 they said in their report. "Whether lands are assessed every year or once in three years, in order to ascertain the correct value, it is indispensable that the land and the improvements on the land, in city, village and country, should be assessed and valued separately. The law should require this of all assessors and tax commissioners. Every man should know what his house, store, building of any kind, is assessed at, and what his lot and land are assessed, separate from the improvements upon them. This is now the rule of assessment in the city of Buffalo, and in some other places in the state. It ought to be the sole and uniform rule; then would assessments be more equal and just, and good cause for complaints against assessors cease." In 1880 they said: "We would again urge upon all assessors the separate valuation of all real estate, and the improvements upon it, in the towns, villages and cities of the state. It is the only way to arrive at a correct and satisfactory assessed

Philips, A. A., Jr., 2210 Dahlia ... Smithson, Chas., 328-330 E. 26th st. Av B. Hackett-Hankinson Building Construction Co., 15th to 15th sts and valuation." In 1881 they said: "In this connection we take pleasure in commending the assessors of the city of Buffalo for the care and vigilance exercised in their assessment of real estate. Each lot in the city is valued separately from the buildings upon it, as follows:

| Name. | Street and No. | Size of lot. | Character of building. | Value— Of lot. | Bldg. | Total. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| John Doe ..... | 200 Main. | 20 x 100 | 4-story, brick. | $10,000 | $20,000 | $30,000 |

"This is a decided improvement on the present general practice of assessing the building and lot together. A first-class lot on a good business street, or an eligible lot on a prominent street of residences, with an old building of little value, is often assessed at less than a lot adjoining of the same size, if the latter happens to be covered with a fine building, the old building being used to depreciate the value of the lot. The assessors of Buffalo have practiced this method of separate valuation since 1876, and have become well satisfied that it is the only true manner by which a correct and satisfactory assessment can be made. If local assessors could examine those rolls they would be greatly benefited."

In Massachusetts, New Jersey and a number of other states the law requires the statement of the value of the land, of the improvements thereon, and of the total value of the real estate. It is unnecessary to add two columns to the assessment roll, for if the value of the land and the entire value of the real property is stated the value of the improvements can be ascertained by a simple subtraction.

There is a positive objection to the requirement that the value of the improvements shall be stated, because assessors will be confronted with the necessity of actually setting down the value for improvements which are valueless, or by making a direct statement that they are valueless. In the city of New York a large proportion of the lots are covered by buildings which add nothing to the market value of the property. In assessing such property the deputy must go through the mental operation of determining the value of the land and whether in the given case the building is of such a nature that a buyer would pay anything for it. He certainly would not pay anything for it, unless he expected to preserve it for a number of years. If the deputy concludes that no one would buy the property unless he intended to put a new building on it, the deputy must assess the property at the sum for which the land alone would sell. No deputy who really makes an appraisal can do so without going through this mental process. If he cannot go through the mental process it is high time that fact is found out and the deputy discharged. Incompetence will be exposed in a way that is impossible when the deputy is not obliged to show the steps by which he reaches his conclusion as to the value of the entire property.

The amendment provides that the deputy tax commissioners shall state "the sum for which in their judgment each separately assessed parcel of real estate under ordinary circumstances would sell if it were wholly unimproved; and separately stated, the sum for which under ordinary circumstances the same parcel of real estate would sell with the improvements, if any, thereon." This direction avoids the objection which can be made to the Massachusetts and New Jersey law, and gives such a plain direction to the deputy that he cannot mistake its meaning. The language of the amendment preserves the language of the old law so that there can be no occasion for judicial decision as to its meaning.

It is obvious that if the deputy tax commissioners are obliged to state the value of the land irrespective of the improvements thereon, they cannot very well discriminate so far as the assessment relates to the value of the land. Deputies will be required to use more care; they will be unable to copy slavishly the previous assessment roll; it will be easy for taxpayers to make a comparison between the assessment of their own property and that of adjacent owners. In the event of legal proceedings being instituted by any taxpayer there will be better evidence to substantiate his claim if it is equitable, and better evidence to uphold the assessment if the valuation was correct.

Press Comments on Tenement Legislation.

The World: "The light is expelling the microbe of immorality along with that of disease. It is therefore well in considering the proposed amendments to the law to dwell on these improvements and to guard the law jealously against any changes that will invite a return to the old looseness of legislation which permitted the old abuses. Senator Wagner's bill and Assemblyman Dale's sanction a return to the old cramped condition by exempting three-story and four-story houses from the law's care. They should be defeated and the powerful lobby that is pushing them should be put to rout."

Evening Post: "The Marshall bill would restore all the old nuisances. No member can support it without writing himself down an enemy of civilization."

Evening Journal: "We have become so hardened to oppression of the poor in the interest of 'vested interests' that it seems almost natural to permit the building of any sort of death trap—if there be profit in it."

The Tribune: "No vital change in the scope of the law should be permitted. Reasonable builders who have detailed complaints to make should, and no doubt will, be listened to, but the keepers of the old dens and the builders who merely want to 'do as they please' are entitled to no consideration. A great deal of the trouble over the new law appears to come from the failure of architects to adapt their plans to get the most out of it. When ingenuity has been shown good results have been achieved."

When Taxes Shall Be Paid.

MR. GROUT REPLIES TO OBJECTIONS BY MR. JEFFERSON M. LEVY TO A LEGISLATIVE MEASURE.

Senator Elsberg's bill, No. 113, which is a modification of one introduced last year without becoming a law, is unexpectedly meeting with oppostion in a certain quarter, though it had been believed that the measure was finally framed to meet the views of all those really desirous of co-operating with the Comptroller in his efforts to improve the municipal financial system. The bill referred to is the one relative to levying taxes and the collection thereof in this city, and has for its object the advancing of the time of payment of the annual tax, so as to make immediately available for current expenses moneys which must now be borrowed in anticipation of the collection of the taxes.

Mr. Jefferson M. Levy, 20 Broad st, considers that the passage of the bill would be a detriment, far-reaching and severe, to the interests of the taxpayers, and the bill being complicated, there is danger that the people will not comprehend its scope before it becomes the law.

"The result of such a law," said Mr. Levy, on Tuesday, "will be that after the payment of a tax bill in 1904 only two months will elapse when the taxpayers will be compelled to pay another tax bill, or it will become an obligation against New York property holders, thereby complicating sales of realty. The only relief for the taxpayer will be a rebate of 3% interest; but you well know that realty holders in New York pay 4 and 5% for the use of money for the purchase of real estate. To be sure, one is not compelled to pay at once, but the tax is there, and I believe it will have the effect of interfering with the conveyancing of property. The bill as it stands I hold to be unconstitutional.

"I have suggested that the way to properly obtain the results which Comptroller Grout proposes would be to gradually advance the time for the payment of taxes over a term of years. For instance, I would make the first year's taxes after this year payable the first of September, 1904; the next year's August 1, 1905; then July 1, 1906; next June 1, 1907; May 1, 1908; April 1, 1909; March 1, 1910; February 1, 1911; January 1, 1912; December 1, 1913, and November 1, 1914. In this way you would obtain the desired result.

"I hope that this proposition will be seriously considered in connection with all the hardships that property-holders in the Borough of Manhattan have to bear, first, by assuming the debt of the city of Brooklyn; second, by paying Brooklyn's taxes to the extent of eighteen million dollars, and, third, by the enormous increase of assessed valuations this year, thereby increasing the tax bills of the majority of property owners twenty-five per cent."

OTHER VIEWS.

Enquiries elsewhere among large real estate interests did not disclose that the state of feeling manifested by Mr. Jefferson M. Levy is at all widespread. The most general understanding was that whatever inconvenience there might be for property-owners would be short-lasting, while they would be permanently benefited through the reduction of the interest charges that the city pays and the consequent reduction of taxation.

Comptroller Grout, said, when Mr. Levy's objections were brought to his attention by the Record and Guide:

"It seems to me that some of the essential provisions of the bill have escaped attention. The bill does not change the date when taxes become a lien, but leaves that date as now, the first Monday of October.

"It does not change the date when interest is incurred for nonpayment of the bill, but leaves that date as now, the first day of December.

"The result is that no one's condition is made any harder than it is under the present law. The entire effect of the bill is to provide for an earlier making and confirming of the assessment rolls, so as to permit the payment of the taxes on and after January 1 of each year, and to provide that during the year the amount of the tax shall in all sales, unless the parties otherwise agree, be apportioned as interest and rents now are. Any payment of tax between January 1 and December 1 is entirely optional on the part of the taxpayer. A rebate at the rate of 3% for the anticipated time is offered as an inducement to him, but if he does not accept the inducement he incurs no penalty unless he delays payment until after the beginning of December, which is the same as the condition now as to such penalty.

"Mr. Levy suggests that I should have proposed a gradual advance of the payment of taxes over a term of years. That was the character of the bill passed last year, and which I asked the Mayor to veto, and such a bill, while preferable from the point of view of the city, is more hurtful to the taxpayer, since by changing the date when the tax becomes a lien, or when the penalty is incurred, it makes it each year harder for those who do not wish to pay or who are not able to pay until the last minute."

Engine House or Plaza.

The depatmental machinery that was set in motion for the purpose of erecting a fire house in the block bounded by Tryon Row, Park Row, Chambers and Center sts, continues to revolve, notwithstanding that the State Railroad Commissioners have urgently recommended that this block be taken for an improvement of the Brooklyn Bridge approach, and to relieve the congestion of traffic there. The suggestion of the commissioners is that the city of New York, the Manhattan Railway Co., the Interurban (Metropolitan) Street Railway Co. and the Interborough (underground) Rapid Transit Company, purchase jointly this entire block, and also the triangle bounded by Park Row and North William st, and convert the space into a system of terminal elevated, surface and subterranean loops, for the elevated, the surface and the underground railways.

The city, already the owner of about one-third of the total area of the block, proposes to carry out its plan to erect on a part of its property a house for the joint occupancy of Engine Company No. 7, and Hook and Ladder Company No. 1; plans, etc., for the building have been adopted and bids for the contract were received this week. The structure will extend through from Chambers st to Park Row, somewhat in the form of an L, with a frontage on the first named street of 96.4½, and 50.3 on Park Row. Rising three stories high, the Chambers st facade presents, in the plans, a simple adaptation of the Italian Renaissance. With the first story a plain granite base for the superstructure, a row of bold Ionic columns project from this base through the second and third stories to support the heavy, classic cornice of the roof, which, extending far out, leaves a space between the columns and the wall of the second and third stories for a simple but effective loggia. The openings in the facade of granite and limestone, the doors and windows, are not pronounced, and most of the decorative details exist in the corbels supporting the balustrade of the loggia, and in the capitals of the columns.

Costing, as it will finally, about $100,000, exclusive of the value of the site, the building will have an exceptional appearance and tone for a fire house, which may make it more acceptable to the owners of the surroundings, who have looked with disfavor upon the proceeding, and would prefer that the city should pursue the course suggested by the railroad commissioners. The present determination of the municipality is not an irremovable bar to the ultimate setting apart of the whole block for plaza purposes; it only puts another obstacle in he way of a desirable improvement, one that would not only facilitate traffic, but add to the dignity of the surroundings of the seat of local government.

Suggestions for Better Government.

A hearing on the Conveyance tax bill will be given by the Senate Committee on Taxation next Wednesday at 2 p. m.

The Merchants' Association having protested, through a committee, to the Governor against the bill creating a railroad commission for New York City, there is now a sentiment in favor of adding to the existing state commission two more members, to especially represent the needs and interests of the metropolis, and then to enlarge the powers and field of action of the commission as a body. The latter proposition has been pressed as a substitute for the bill now pending, but has not yet been formulated and presented as a bill.

The three Grand Central Terminal bills have been reported favorably from the Assembly committee, Mayor Low having made known his wish for their speedy passage. At the hearing on Wednesday a delegation of property owners from Manhattan asked that the grade of the streets where they pass over the road be reduced from 4 to 2 and 1 per cent. The delegation headed by Richard J. Donovan of the Citizens' East Side Association, Cornelius O'Reilly, president of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, and William K. Steinkamp, representing other property owners in the vicinity of Park av.

An act in the Assembly, introduced by Mr. McCormack, amends the city charter so as to provide that whenever any assessment for any local improvement in the borough of Richmond has been confirmed and filed, and the total amount of assessment shall equal or exceed five per centum of the total valuation of all the real estate assessed therefor, it shall be the duty of the collector of assessments and arrears to divide the amount apportioned and assessed upon each parcel of land into five equal parts or installments, and one of the parts, and only one, shall be a lien immediately upon the several pieces of land assessed therefor and payable. The remaining four parts or installments shall, with interest thereon at the rate of four per centum, become a lien upon the land affected, one each year on the corresponding date for the following four years. The installments shall in each case be collected in the same manner and be subject to the same rebate and default as is provided by law in the case of taxes.

PENSIONS FOR BUILDING INSPECTORS.

At the banquet of the Builders' League last December, the Hon. Perez M. Stewart, Superintendent of Buildings in this borough, announced in the course of an address that the department contemplated improving the service by increasing its attractiveness to men of the special ability desired, and would favor an increase of salary and also a retiring pension. In line with this plan, which is believed to be the plan of the borough administration, and to have the approval of Mayor Low, is a bill before the Assembly, introduced by Mr. Bostwick, making provision for pensioning inspectors when they have served twenty years, by creating a pension fund, to be raised by a charge of $5 for each search of the records of the department as to the condition of a building, and fees for transcripts and copies of records. This would have raised last year at least $4,000. The fund will be in the custody of the Controller. The Superintendents of Buildings for the five boroughs would constitute the Trustees of the fund, and establish rules and regulations for its administration. Should an officer or employe die in the service from disease or injuries due to the performance of his duties, a pension of $300 annually would be granted to his widow so long as she remained a widow, or to children under eighteen years old. Service in former bureaus or departments of the city or any of the boroughs performing functions of the Bureau of Buildings would be counted in the twenty years of service, according to the bill, but it is fancied there may be some objection to this particular provision. While there might be no objection, in order to secure the services of particularly able men, to pensioning them in old age, it might not accord with the popular idea or favor the best development of the department to retire them on a pension after only five, or two, or one year's service, even though they have wrought for the remainder of the term of twenty years in some other city department. The possibility of unworthy men being transferred from other branches of the municipal service to this, merely with the object of obtaining the pension, though not perhaps an imminent danger may present itself to some minds as a possibility to be avoided at the outset.

Brokers' Annual Dinner.

The principal speakers at the annual dinner of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, which is set for March 7th at the Waldorf-Astoria, will be Mayor Low, Police Commissioner Greene, William Barclay Parsons, Thomas L. Feitner, John P. Leo, Lawson Purdy, Charles O. Mass, Robert E. Dowling, and John F. Doyle. Any gentleman interested and desiring to attend may obtain a ticket at the Board's rooms, 111 Broadway, the price being $5 each. The dinner committee consists of Charles E. Schuyler, John F. Doyle, Irving Ruland, Gerald N. Brown, W. Willis Reese, Joseph P. Day, Thomas P. Graham and E. De Forest Simmons. It will be an occasion of importance, of unusual interest and of refined pleasure.

Notwithstanding Judge Gaynor's decision, the weight of judicial opinion is adverse to picketing by strikers, and one must believe that when the law is rightly interpreted and enforced pickets must use great circumspection in order to avoid violating it. A man may indeed "stop and rest, to look in a store window or speak to a friend," but he is not privileged to annoy anyone, which pickets often do.

The Hudson Portland Cement Co. has been organized at Hudson, N. Y, and incorporated at Albany, with a capital of $6,000,000. Lyman C. Smith, now engaged in manufacturing typewriters at Syracuse, is at the head of the concern, which obviously has bright hopes and large plans. The Hudson River cement industry is expanding rapidly, and we believe there are possibilities along the valley yet undreamed of. Considering all the advantages offered for miscellaneous manufacturing, and for shipyards and ironworks, in the way of cheaper coal, cheaper labor, lower taxes and rents, and with quite as good transportation facilties as can be found at most large centers, it is strange that the shores of the Hudson are not literally lined with manufactories.

Mayor Low does not regard with approval the agitation for the substitution of an underground for the proposed elevated section of the Atlantic av improvement between Bedford and Howard avs, because he believes that the work should be carried to completion under the existing plans, and then, if experience proves the inadequacy of these plans, further arrangements may be made. The change is much desired by the property owners along the avenue, but it would cost nearly $2,000,000 and cause a delay of nearly or quite two years. President Baldwin of the Long Island Railroad says the work has advanced so far that it is impracticable to change it. The section from East New York to the old city line will be finished within a few days, he says, and within thirty days trains will be running over it. The steel for the elevated section is being rolled and that section will be completed in the fall. If the city ever does decide upon depressing the tracks, it may be added, neighboring property owners will not be assessed, because the street is owned in fee by the railroad company. As the case stands the city has no authority to act; that must come from the Legislature. The general understanding is that the matter will be allowed to rest, and that the work will proceed unchanged.

At present the property is covered with a 4-sty and basement building, with a Wall st frontage of 65.7, a Water st frontage of 40.4, a south line of 64.9, an east line of 40.7, and a total area of about 2,700 square feet. The Reform Club's house is an "L" shaped structure, composed of an old building and an addition, which the organization erected after purchasing the site. The locations are No. 233 5th av and No. 1 East 27th st. In April, 1890, the club bought the property from the late Amos R. Eno for $240,000. It then consisted of a 4-sty brick dwelling, fronting 28 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on 27th st, and a 2-sty brick stable adjoining the house on the east and standing on a lot 25x98.9. The stable was torn down and a 5-sty addition was erected. The old structure was remodelled to suit the purposes of the club. Recently two separate offers, each of $400,000, were made for the property. Although there was no difference in price there was some variation in the terms offered by the rival bidders. It was decided to accept the bid made by the Coe estate which owns adjoining property. Wallace Macfarlane is president of the Reform Club, and its vice-presidents include Charles S. Fairchild, Edward M. Shepard, Everett P. Wheeler, William B. Hornblower, and E. Ellery Anderson. Edwin Baldwin is its secretary and Louis Windmuller the treasurer.

Bryan L. Kennelly has sold for Edward H. Litchfield, to Hugh A. Murray, the block bounded by 3d av, 2d and 3d sts, and the Gowanus Canal. It comprises sixty lots.

As noted in our last issue on page 305, The Title Insurance Co. of New York has bought its own home at No. 203 Montague st, running through to 162 Pierrepont st. They now occupy the Montague st property and will remodel the property.

Real Estate Notes.

Alfred Sax of 18 Broadway is passing a season in the South.

General Frederick C. McLewee is the buyer of 10 West 71st st, recently sold by Susan Rockwell.

Henry Hankins, for many years a hardware and lumber merchant at Hoboken, died recently in Florida.

J. H. Burton, 18 Broadway, is spending a few weeks in the South, in the interest of his lumber business.

Oppenheimer Brothers & Veith are the buyers of the block front on Central Park West, between 62d and 63d sts, sold last week by the Jai Alai Ball Co. of Havana.

The United Real Estate Owners' Association has endorsed Assemblyman Conklin's bill for Sunday opening of saloons between 1 and 11 o'clock, and expects to have a large delegation at the hearing at Albany on Tuesday.

Broker DeLancey T. Smith of 1843 Broadway negotiated the lease of No. 1823 Broadway, adjoining the Circle Theatre on the south, reported last week. Shanley Bros., the lessees, are in possession, and will make extensive alterations.

The Varick Realty Co., a new corporation with offices in the Mills Building, has been formed by the present owners of the block bounded by Washington and West, Hubert and Laight sts, which will be improved with a 11-sty fireproof warehouse.

F. J. Cassidy, real estate broker of No. 35 Nassau st, has opened an office at No. 229 West 42d st, near 7th av, which will be his main office. Mr. Cassidy is an up-to-date real estate man, and has managed successfully several large estates on the upper East Side.

Harry Overington has been appointed manager of the Bronx office of the Lawyers' Title Insurance Co. Mr. Overington has practiced law and dealt in real estate for the past twenty years in the Bronx borough, and is therefore well qualified for the position, being versed in values in that vicinity and a man of large acquaintanceship.

A committee of citizens representing the Borough of Queens and the east side of Manhattan in the section to be affected by the Blackwell's Island Bridge called on Mayor Low and Bridge Commissioner Lindenthal on Monday morning and assured both that the Committee of Forty of Queens Borough does not represent the sentiments of the people when they persist in opposing the plans for the Blackwell's Island Bridge.

The Lawyers' Mortgage Insurance Co. has removed to its new offices on the ground floor of No. 47 Liberty st. With its increased office facilities, the company, under the guidance of its president, Richard M. Hurd, bids fair to extend its present successful business materially. The company has recently increased its capital and surplus to $4,000,000; it deals in mortgages and mortgage certificates on New York and Brooklyn real estate, upon which they guarantee the investor from 4 to 4½%. The mortgages certificates are sold in any amount from $500 up.

A well located plot on West and Washington sts is advertised for long lease on another page. The diagram accompanying shows the advantageous location of the property, close to the Pennsylvania R. R. piers. The new 20-sty "Whitehall" office building has been erected on Battery pl, from West to Washington sts, and the adjoining Battery pl block front has been secured for improvement. Another great structure close by is the new Custom House now building. Terms and other particulars can be secured from L. Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co, 640 Broadway.

Lovejoy & Noyes, 62 Cedar st, announce that they will remove their offices on May 1, to the new Wyllys Building, now in course of construction, at 92 William st, the corner of Platt st, and near Maiden Lane and Liberty st. They have leased the front half of the second floor for offices, which will be handsomely fitted up for their special requirements, giving them more space than they have at the present time. This firm specializes in the renting of business property; in the "old Swamp district," on the East side, they are looked upon as authorities, and probably do a larger real estate brokerage business than any other firm there. Many of the owners in this section are numbered among their clients. They also have a branch office at Arverne, L. I., which, under the management of Lewis H. May, is doing a thriving business. Lovejoy & Noyes have been established for five years, and this is the second time that they have been forced to secure larger quarters. Both are young men, who have grown up in the business, and their success is gratifying to their many friends.

Rumors regarding the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad plans in the neighborhood of the Grand Central Station continue to be heard, the latest one which has been making the rounds for the past week, is that the Central has obtained an option on the Milbank property, at the northeast corner of Madison av and 42d st, with an "L" extending to 43d st. This property measures 113.5 feet on Madison av, 147.3 feet on 42d st, the Madison av corner and the adjoining house, No. 233 Madison av, being formerly the Holy Trinity Church and rectory, and the rest of the property on both streets being covered by 2-sty "taxpayers." This plot was acquired by Joseph Milbank in June, 1896, for $750,000. The Vanderbilt av frontage on this block, 200.10 feet front by 8 feet on 43d st, and 42.9 feet on 42d st, is already controlled by the New York Central. Between this plot and the Milbank plot on 43d st are two buildings on a plot, 42x irregular, owned by Emily and George E. Charles. The southeast corner of Madison av and 43d st is a 5-sty building owned by Charles Miller. For this property the New York Central has also made an offer. Between this and the Milbank property on Madison av are two 4-sty dwellings, fronting 20.10 each. This comprises the entire block between 42d and 43d sts.

Material Market.

LUMBER.

With but few exceptions, the prices of lumber now current have ruled ever since winter set in, and are expected to hold yet some weeks, which is as far ahead as it is safe to prophesy. It is fully expected, however, that these values will not be seen soon again after the winter passes. Notwithstanding all the hopes for a lower level of quotations, to encourage small builders, the prospects are against them. Retailers have for sometime inclined to the belief that concessions to the general public were forthcoming, a belief which was based on a closer acquaintance with actual consumers than the wholesaler and producers can possibly have. Sharing the opinion that schedule-makers should have more consideration for the public welfare, they more or less disregard conditions at lumber camps and saw mills.

The cut of white pine in the northwest is estimated to be close to a billion feet short this year; and upon the enormous demand for North Carolina pine is based a prediction of a succession of advances during the coming spring and summer. The plain disposition in the councils of the manufacturers to increase prices might be disregarded to some extent but for the pressure of natural circumstances.

On the first of March, it is announced, an advance of two cents a hundred in yellow pine freight rates will become effective on all roads along which yellow pine shipments originate. A strong sentiment in favor of an advance in hemlock next week will probably be carried into effect. Car shortage is expected to be a subject of complaint again as soon as the spring rush begins, and this should be taken into account now, though the railroad companies are expected to acquit themselves better than last year. If they do, it will be unnecessary to imitate in the North proceedings that have been taken in Louisiana, where the state railroad commission has ruled that all railroads in that state must furnish cars upon requisition of shippers within ten days after requisition is made, and that failure to do so will result in a demurrage or similiar charge of $1 a day per car for each day after ten days has expired. The American people are collectively long-suffering, but when pushed too hard they will sometimes strike back.

The hardwood manufacturers, which met for the first time in national convention on January 27-28 at Cincinnati, signalized the occasion by elevating prices from ten to fifteen per cent., and is to be revised semi-annually "or as occasion requires." But it is not the professed object of the association to control prices. "We believe that associations organized for such purposes in the end defeat their own object," affirmed the president in his annual address. "It is however our purpose, and it will be our constant endeavor," he continued, "to keep our members fully informed concerning the condition of the lumber trade, the relative demand and supply for manufactured lumber, as well as the conditions and outlook of the industrial world generally along these lines. We will from time to time, as we have in the past, issue a price list which will be prepared by this valuation committee and will be based on what the conditions of trade justify in the matter of price. This, of course, will be determined from the best information obtainable, and the adoption thereof will be recommended to its members. The association should publish and distribute among its members an official, classified freight tariff book and price current. This should show, in compact form, rates and weights of all lumber covered by our grading rules, showing the rates from originating points and delivered prices at distributing points, and of course changes should be made from time to time as the changes in tariffs demand. The association should issue a new price list on February 1, and I think the price list should be issued regularly, once every six months, or as occasion may require. I would recommend the association doing what it can to persuade its members to sell their product on terms of thirty days net instead of those which are in vogue at present."

BRICK AND CEMENT.

The building business went into winter quarters early on Monday morning, there to remain for most of the week. Nothing scarcely was doing in brick: no arrivals, because of the river being closed again; no demand, because of the severity of the weather.

Natural cements are still being very largely used. Up to 1890 the national output increased. Since then it has been about ten million barrels annually. Up to twenty years ago they were practically the only cements used in engineering work in this country. They are made from limestone, carrying a large percentage of clayey matter; are burned at a low temperature in stack or pot kilns, and are, of course, entirely dependent upon the character of the rock from which they are made. The principal points where they are produced in this country are the Rosendale district on the Hudson, the Louisville district in Kentucky and southern Indiana, and the Lehigh Valley district of eastern Pennsylvania. There are besides these a number of scattered mills, as at Cumberland, Md., Akron, N.Y., Utica, Ill., and Milwaukee, Wis.

The Portland cement production of the United States during the calendar year of 1902 amounted to more than the entire consumption of Portland cement in this country, imported and domestic, from the time of its discovery up to and including the year 1890. The general theory of the manufacture of Portland cement is simple. Manufacturers have merely to burn at a temperature of approximately 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit a suitable mixture of lime, silica, alumina and iron and grind the resulting clinker to a powder. If the proper mixture could be regularly found in nature, no preparatory grinding would be necessary, and a large portion of the cost of manufacture would be thereby eliminated. Pockets of such composition are occasionally found, but a difference of one-half of one per cent. will injuriously affect the character of the resulting cement. All high-grade Portland cements are artificially compounded and corrected.

PLASTER.

"The average price received for plaster now is twenty-five per cent. less than the average cost of manufacture fifteen years ago," remarked a plaster manufacturer recently. "I have not the figures at hand, but am quite certain that the same thing is true of hydraulic cements, and doubtless of nearly all other building materials. While the cost of manufacturing has been largely reduced, it has not been done at the expense of quality, for a much better article is now being supplied by the manufacturers of all building materials than ever before. These changes have not been brought about by chance, but are the result of the increased thought which manufacturers have been giving to their business. We are selling plaster so low now that it can be used in the construction of almost everything, from a granite monument to a nigger baby. It has become a competitor of lime, fire-proofing, marble and whiting, and we are reliably informed is now used to improve food products—this, I presume, is to make them stick to the ribs. For the benefit of our cement friends, I will add that recently a process has been discovered by which hydraulic plaster can be made, thus furnishing another strong bond of sympathy and another reason why we should stick together.

"The immediate outlook for the plaster trade is most encouraging and we have every reason to expect a satisfactory year's business. The increased cost of labor, which is a large item with us, must necessarily force prices to a higher level than they were a few years back, when labor was much cheaper. I do not object to higher wages, but I feel that the employer's menace is the uncertainty and instability of the employe."

RUBBER TILING.

A surface for floors in banks, hotels, office buildings and steam vessels, where there is much passage to and fro, and where bare floors are unpleasant and less enduring coverings availeth not, has been evolved out of rubber. Some pretty color combinations in shapes resembling tiles are met with in this material. The Empire building has 9,000 square feet of it in the main corridor and elevators, the Broad Exchange, 4,000 square feet, and the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Co.'s building, 3,000 square feet in the main office. The American Line has 30,000 square feet distributed among the various vessels, and the Pennsylvania ferryboats, New Brunswick, Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburg and Jersey City also have it in their cabins (over 70,000 square feet). It can also be seen at the Waldorf-Astoria, the Imperial, the Manhattan, the Normandie and other hotels, at the Greenwich and Bowery Savings Banks, and in many palace cars. For public places darker colors are usually chosen than for dwellings; in some houses one sees yellow tile forms on a bright green background, or yellow on maroon, or white and black on grey, while a copper-colored tile on a dark green background is well adapted to public lobbies and halls. Prices cannot be quoted, but are understood to be comparable with the exceptional qualities of the material.

A member of the commission which came here to select a post-office site says New York would not be a loser by a year's delay. Then let us wait, seeing that we must.

The old Hall of Records has been laid low. Just now only the columns stand, to give the pile of debris somewhat the appearance of an ancient ruin in Athens or Rome.

Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Co., 10 Bridge st, New York, have prepared for general distribution a reprint of Mr. E. H. Sniffiin's paper on the steam turbine, read before the American Street Railway Association at Detroit.

At the office of the Supervising Architect, Washington, sealed proposals will be received until 3 o'clock P. M., on the 18th day of March, and then opened, for repairs, painting, etc., at the U. S. Post Office, Buffalo, N. Y. Copies of the specification may be had at the office of the Supervising Architect.

A vast amount of money, compared to former standards, is being spent in decorating and furnishing new hotels. Your traveller demands luxury where he eats, sleeps and idles awhile.

The Alignum Co, manufacturers of doors, trim and flooring, have opened offices at No. 1123 Broadway. The Building Department has passed "Alignum" unconditionally as a fireproof substitute for wood. The extensive factory of the Alignum Co. is located at 330 to 334 East 98th st.

The new Hall of Records, instead of being finished off with cement, will have marble finishings, as was intended by the architect, John A Thomas. The change has been authorized by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. The substitution of marble for cement will add to the beauty of the building, and will cost $250,000.

Of interest in the line of concrete fireproof floor construction was a fire, water and weight test recently made by the White Fireproof Construction Co., 162-164 West 27th st, to demonstrate the qualities which they claim for their system of floor arches. The test was made on three sections of floors which formed the roof of a one-room brick house, 14x10x10. Briefly stated, the test consisted in maintaining for a period of four hours a continual fire, under the arches, at an average temperature of 1,700 degrees, after which a stream of water from a 1⅛ inch nozzle under a fifty-pound pressure was thrown directly on the under surface of the arch and kept playing there for ten minutes. After this, a severe weight test, lasting forty-eight hours, was made. On examining the arches afterward a number of experts found them absolutely intact, and the concrete, which had been placed around the underside of the iron beams, was not damaged. That owners and builders have been quick to see the merits of the "White" system and take advantage of it is shown by the following partial list of buildings in which this company is now putting its system of fireproofing: N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Building, Brooklyn, N. Y.; N. Y. Edison Co. Building, Waterside Station; Webster Apartment House, 38 West 45th st.; Scammel st. tenements, Scammel and Monroe sts; New Siegel-Cooper warehouse, 18th st, near 8th av; R. C. C. A., 192d st and Sedgwick av; Manhattan R. R. Co., 129th st and 3d av; Grace Church parish house, 11th st and 4th av.

CONVEYANCES.

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants or warranty.

2d.—C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed can be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no express covenants, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the Insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482, denote that the property is in section 2 block 482.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers, the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as head lines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage is drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

February 13, 14, 16, 17, 18 and 19.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as head lines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

THE expectations of better prices upon the Stock Market, mentioned last week, were based upon the then seeming certainty of a smooth and speedy passage of the Aldrich bill through Congress. The uncertain and disturbed conditions that actually supervened on the market were due to the clouding of this prospect, and even to fears that, as the time left for action was becoming so short, the bill could not pass at all. It is difficult to believe that Congress will leave the business community facing another and severer currency stringency in the coming fall without bestowing this simple palliative of one of the worst features of our system—the accumulation of money in the Treasury at the moment when it is most in demand for the transaction of the business of the country. If they do they will be guilty of a serious neglect of duty, and the President will be justified in reminding them of it by calling a special session to consider the whole currency question. It is to be hoped that either they or he will not wait for mischief to be done before applying the remedy that either has the power to apply. The hardening of both call and time money is as much due to the anxiety that the present condition of the Aldrich bill creates in the mind of the community as to the falling off in the reserves of the banks. The latter movement is customary at this time of the year, but the caution that failure of the bill would engender would not only hasten the process, but would also prevent repletion of the reserves when, under ordinary conditions, money should return to this centre. Consequently, with the powers of the Secretary of the Treasury to afford relief in a time of pinch restricted to their present proportions, money will become dearer and stay so. This will certainly tend to contract business, if it is not followed by more serious consequences. In view of the criticism his action met with and the reproof implied in a refusal of Congress to give legal sanction to its repetition, the Secretary of the Treasury cannot be expected to again receive as security for government deposits other collateral than that specified by law; and, so far as he is concerned, any relief he could give to the money market, should it be required next fall, would be less than he gave last year. The circumstances of the moment gave more than ordinary importance to the small shipment of gold to Buenos Ayres this week, because, although a special transaction, it shows that London has still power to call gold from this market, and adds another complication to an already unsatisfactory situation.

IF London dispatches are to be credited, the South American demand for gold, which has been partly met by shipments from New York, is about over. Further shipments from here are not expected. The incident serves to call attention to the recovery that has taken place in the Argentinas. As a result of good crops and good prices for wool, the Republic is doing a large trade with Australia and South Africa, as well as with Europe, and in consequence has been drawing gold from all three. This is in striking contrast with her previous position since the Baring fiasco, and is much to be esteemed. Business conditions of Europe have brightened this week, owing to the passing of the war cloud from the Balkans. This was brought about partly by the prompt acceptance of the plan of reform for Macedonia by the Sultan, but more particularly by Russia's intimation to the sympathizing Balkan states that any that should forcibly interfere would be left to its fate precisely as Greece was in 1898. The Powers seem to be sincere in their union on this matter, and as determined that reforms shall be brought about peaceably if possible as that they shall be brought about, peaceably or not. This being the development of the latest phase of the Near Eastern question, the Exchanges have taken heart with accelerated liveliness in transactions. One of the important features of the situation is the return of the French investor to the home market. This we have noted before, but it is now more marked than ever, and is important in indicating that the dread of internal political conditions no longer sways the mind of the French investor, and this is a political barometer whose records are entitled to respect. Another item of interest is that Spanish 4s, which during our late struggle over Cuba sold down to 40, are now selling at the highest prices in their history, something above 91, that is, from a 10% to a 4.4% basis. It is said that the most recent advance is due to buying by the Bank of Spain in connection with a financial operation the nature of which is yet to be divulged, but in the main the appreciation of the quotations of this typical security is due to the improved economic condition of Spain itself, and this in turn to the relief from the burden of colonies she could neither support nor control. German and British iron markets are improving. Superficial observers see in this only a result of the American demand, but those who look closer must give the fact a larger commercial barometrical value, pointing to a revival of business generally. This is the proper estimate to be placed upon it, and it is the natural corollary from the not merely bettered conditions in Europe, but also from satisfactory harvests and improved prospects in other parts of the world that look to Europe for their supplies of manufactures as well as for the capital to carry on their own industries.

AS long as there is no possibility of the passage of Comptroller Grout's bill amending the act constituting the Rapid Transit Commission, it may be hoped that the administration will use all its influence to have passed the amendments to the same act, introduced recently by Senator Elsberg. These amendments, which have been prompted by the Citizen's Union, are designed to increase the powers of the Rapid Transit Commission, and enable it to secure better terms in letting contracts for constructing and operating extensions to the Subway system. If they are passed the Commission will be able to let the construction contract in sections, and so save large sums to the city; it is given the power of granting the operating contract for twenty years, or if the city supplies the equipment, for ten years. It is even enabled to operate the road itself in case an advantageous arrangement cannot be made with a private corporation. Past experience has shown that these increased powers are necessary in order that the city itself may reap the advantage of the increased traffic instead of turning it over for seventy-five years to private capitalists. Under the present contract, no matter how large the income from the tunnel grows, the city does not receive anything more than a fixed rental; and Mr. Edward M. Shepard estimates that these terms are worth from $20,000,000 to $50,000,000 to the Subway company. Doubtless there was no way in which part of this money could have been saved to the city, except by the municipal operation of the road —a step for which public opinion was not prepared; but it can be saved hereafter by giving the Rapid Transit Commission the powers proposed in these amendments. In this matter, New York cannot do better than follow the example of Paris. In another column will be found some account of the way in which the new Metropolitan Underground R. R. in that city has succeeded. Apparently some serious mistakes have been made in constructing the road—mistakes which have, so far as possible, been avoided in New York; but the operating contract gives the city a third of the gross receipts—a proportion which not only pays for the interest on the bonds, but already gives the municipality a profit of hundreds of thousands of dollars a year. It is interesting to note that in spite of a 3-cent fare for a large part of its traffic, and the provision of a seat for every passenger, the company can still operate the road for 42 per cent. of its gross receipts, which is very much better than New York transit companies can do with a 5-cent fare, and ears that are frequently jammed from door to door. Moreover, although the Paris company only receives 25 per cent. of the gross receipts net, its stock is now selling for twice the figure at which it was originally issued.

THE effect of prevailing conditions in the iron and steel trade has been to cause additions to be made in the prices of iron ore, steel rails and wire nails. Presumably this tendency will be carried into prices of other iron and steel products as the spring demand reveals itself. This state of things may seem inconsistent with the increasing stocks of pig iron alluded to last week and with other testimony that constructive work throughout the country has seen its maximum for the time being. A little thought, however, will show that this may be the case and yet prices may be advanced in anticipation of the coming season's demand. Any change in activity can only be sufficient to act as a warning of a future a good way ahead and in the interval there may be periods of industry equalling any that have gone before in all particulars except length of duration.

The Tenement-House Situation.

THE announcement made this week by Governor Odell that he will withhold his sanction from any measure that attacks the principle or lessens the efficiency of the present Tenement-House law is important and welcome. It is important, because it illustrates the value of reflection even in high places. It is a diplomatic statement that the Governor has somewhat changed his mind, and this is distinctly to the Governor's credit. The announcement is welcome, because in his message published at the opening of the year, Governor Odell used language which might have warranted the supposition that he was not entirely in accord with the existing Tenement-House Law. We were inclined at the time to believe that the Governor's heart in this matter had been touched by the appeal of some of his friends, and thus it was his "feeler," rather than his "thinker," that found voice in the annual declaration. We will not say that this, too, was not to the Governor's credit, but clearly his position now is the more instructed one.

The only regret that hinges upon the circumstances is that the Governor's remarks undoubtedly stimulated opposition to the new law, and so unsettled, in some degree, a situation that still contained some unnecessary agitation and disturbance of mind. It certainly did not make for peace, but possibly encouraged our Brooklyn friends to believe in the possibility of a measure of legislative self-stultification almost without precedent. It lead to the introduction into the Legislature of a number of bills, some at least of which could not accurately be regarded as amendatory. They were essentially hostile, and if passed would have "gutted" the substantial progress already made in Tenement-House Reform. There was simply no hope for bills of this character. They were "impossible." The proposal of them and the agitation for them was sheer waste of effort. They arrested the minds of people upon an essentially false issue, and impeded the happy effects that could be secured only by a frank acceptation of the real situation and a friendly effort to secure reasonable and conciliatory amendments.

No single person maintains that the present law is perfect. It is, in a solid sense, experimental. The Medes and Persians did not frame it, nor are people of that persuasion now advocating and supporting it. Nevertheless, in the rational course of events each year must see this law more firmly imbedded in the social fabric, and its improvement must be wrought, so to speak, by the scientific and skilful engineer, and not, as some of our Brooklyn friends advise, through the instrumentality of the pick, crowbar and sledge-hammer. The opposition must join the forces working for Tenement-House Reform, and this done, reform the law itself from within. From this point of view the situation is, in our judgment, an entirely hopeful one for them.

Mr. De Forest and those immediately associated with him are completely willing to hear, consider and adopt every fair proposition that does not emasculate the law, and it is perhaps fair to read between the lines of the Governor's latest utterance something to the effect that while he will not sign any legislation hostile to the Tenement-House Law, he has some expectation that the present session will produce reasonable amendments, conceding to the building trade all that should be granted. There are lines of compromise in this as in all other cases. For instance, it is not impossible to suggest some curtailment of the area of courts in Brooklyn, under special or well-defined conditions. The law, moreover, might be eased as to the limitation of the height of certain buildings, allowing the builder greater latitude, yet retaining present requirements for light and air. Also, the utmost rigors of the law might not be pressed in the really suburban confines of the city, and concessions might be made safely in the matter of some structural requirements. We are sure that Mr. De Forest will be able to discover for the real estate owner and builder some reasonable concessions; certainly he will not oppose any bill that may be introduced and will confine itself to action along these or similar lines. The new law is rapidly being acclimatized in the Borough of Manhattan, and the current year promises great activity in the building of tenement houses. There is good soil in Brooklyn, too, for the law to take root and flourish, and, although prophesy is always dangerous, it would be safe to predict that a year or two hence the friends of good tenements will be in the majority even among the real estate men of Brooklyn and the Bronx.

IT will be remembered that one of the reasons given by Governor Odell for pushing his scheme of taxation was the necessity of relieving real estate from part of its onerous burden. It is, therefore, very curious to find his plans whittled down to three propositions, two of which bear hardly on real estate and the third, too, insignificant in expected results to be of much consequence either to real estate or anything else. Of the two first referred to, one, the proposed tax on realty transfers has gone back to committee after barely escaping defeat in the Assembly, or, as some say, to save it from defeat; and the other, the fifty cent tax on mortgages, is about to be introduced. The terms of the bill, as foreshadowed in despatches from Albany, are about what was expected. The tax is to be in lieu of all other taxes on mortgages; one-half of the proceeds are to go to the State and one-half to the locality in which they are collected; mortgages of savings banks, life insurance companies and building and loan associations are to be exempt. It is hoped that this bill will only be introduced as a mark of respect for the Governor's opinions, and that courtesy being performed, it will be sent to the lethal chamber of committee. It is objectionable as a measure of duplicate taxation, as a discrimination in favor of certain classes of investors to the prejudice of others to the substantial extent of one-half of one per cent. per annum in interest, equivalent on the principal of a four per cent. mortgage to 12½%; as liable to disturb the real estate money market, and also an infraction of an implied promise to better the condition of real estate by removing some part of its excessive burdens. The best that can be said for the proposal is that it does not materially change existing conditions so far as the relations of investors in the mortgage market are concerned, or the source from which the revenue is now obtained. This is only partly true. Exempt institutions have only an advantage as investors in mortgage loans to the extent that the personal property tax on mortgages is elsewhere enforced, which is practically not at all. The existence of this form of property must be very obvious, as, for instance, in estates in probation, to receive the notice of the assessors. That the burden of the public expenditure is almost wholly upon real estate we all know, but there does not appear to be any reason why the form should be changed. Certainly if there is to be a change it should be one of relief and not a perpetuation of existing evils. As to the claim that the legal exemption of mortgages from other forms of taxation will encourage capital to enter the real estate market in quantity increased sufficiently to reduce interest rates equivalently with the tax, or more so, that is so very problematical as to be outside the range of serious consideration. In our opinion the proposed tax is too high and too direct in its application to find anything like its own offset, and this is particularly the case when money is in demand from all sides and not over plentiful.

WHILE Great Britain has the credit of carrying unionism to the greatest extreme it has reached anywhere, that country is also the first to tackle the problem of the responsibilities of the unions towards the state. It has been decided there that a union can be held responsible for unlawful acts of its members and pecuniary compensation exacted for damages done by them. The courts have taken the position that these damages shall be substantial and not nominal merely, and in what is known as the Taff Vale case the Society of Amalgamated Railway Servants have to satisfy a judgment that if repeated a few times would have a serious effect upon the financial standing of the union. Another matter that is in the balance just now is the dependence that may be placed upon machinery created to prevent strikes. It will be remembered that a few years ago there was a dreadful conflict in the engineering and shipbuilding trades. One result of this strike was that a special agreement was made between the Federated Shipbuilding and Engineering Employers and the Amalgamated Society of Engineers. Under this agreement, when a dispute occurs in any engineering shop it must first of all be discussed between the individual employer and the man or men concerned. If they cannot agree, the matter must be referred to the local officials of the engineers' society in conjunction with the local employers' association. If a settlement is still found to be impossible, the question in dispute is appealed to a joint conference of the Executive Council of the Federation of the Shipbuilding and Engineering Employers (which embraces nearly all the firms of any importance in the United Kingdom) and the Executive Council of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers. This is the final court of appeal. During the negotiations work must be continued under the conditions prevailing at the time the dispute arose. This agreement is undergoing the severest test it has had. Owing to the decline in the shipbuilding trade, the employers have in a number of instances demanded a lowering of the wage schedules. The men have shown a disposition to resist this demand, and the matter has reached the local council with no chance of amicable settlement. As a rule demands for lower rates of wages in Great Britain called for by the recent depression have been conceded without struggle, and it remains to be seen whether the engineers will imitate the amicable policy of other trades or renew the struggle in which they were so badly beaten five years ago.

The Theory of Urban Land Values.

AN ATTEMPT TO SET FORTH THE PRINCIPLES AND CONDITIONS THAT DETERMINE THE PRICE OF CITY REAL ESTAE.

CHAPTER VII.—CURRENTS OF TRAVEL.

By Richard M. Hurd, President of the Lawyers' Mortgage Insurance Company.

The life of a city involves continual travel, day and night, throughout its entire area, the most notable feature of which, and the basis of its effect on the city's structure, is its regularity. The inhabitants of a city do not intermingle at random, but go from one place to another by the quickest, shortest, or most agreeable route. For example, in New York many thousands of the upper classes have never been west of Sixth Avenue or east of Third Avenue, except to the ferries, and many thousands on the lower east side have never seen Fifth Avenue, while in New Orleans, many Creoles have never crossed Canal Street into the American quarter.

The chief daily movements consist of the journeys of business men between their residences and their places of business, the complex interweaving of these men within the business centre and the shorter trips of workmen between their homes and their workshops.

In modern cities the main currents of business men's travel are carried by street railroads, so that the travel consists of short trips on foot converging to the street railroads, a long trip in the cars to the business centre and there short trips on foot again. In some cities where there are hills between the business and residence sections, the currents of foot travel follow a zigzag course up and down the hill, it being easier to turn corners than encounter grades. A variation may occur in the return trip where men stop at clubs, cafés or hotel lobbies, the location of these favorite haunts causing a different route to be taken, with some resulting influence on values.

Within the business districts occur the continual interchange of visits, by means of which the business of the city is accomplished. Here, although the trips are short, the necessity for saving time leads to the gathering together of the various forms of business in special districts. In large cities the daily trips of workmen are made chiefly on foot and are widely diffused throughout the tenement districts, with small effect except that certain more convenient streets attract cheap shops.

The daily trips of women are made either for shopping, calling or driving. Here, as in men's trips, the travel consists of short trips on foot to the street car lines, which carry the concentrated travel to the largest shops, where the cars are left and the women walk to the other shops. For the same reason of convenience women's shops are crowded together in order to save time in going among them.

The display of goods is vital for shops, and in order to display goods shade is necessary; hence the side of the street which is shady during the part of the day in which women shop is normally worth from 20 per cent. to 40 per cent. and occasionally 100 per cent. more than the sunny side of the street. The west side of streets running north and south, and the south side of streets running east and west, are shady the greater part of the year from about 12 or 1 o'clock on, permitting a display of goods without fear of fading, and rendering the sidewalk agreeable. The greater part of the purchasing in the large shops is done by women of the middle classes, whose household duties prevent from reaching the shops till after 11 o'clock. The busiest shopping hours are from 11 o'clock to 4 o'clock, many women taking lunch either in the department stores or in restaurants nearby. The women of wealth shop usually in the morning between 11 and 2 o'clock, so that even in their case the west or south side of the street has some advantage of shade. In southern cities where shade is even more important, the relative value of the four corners of two intersecting business streets is well defined, the southwest corner being the most valuable, the southeast next, the northwest next, and finally the northeast corner. This refers only to retail shopping fronts, the corners having a different order of preference if desired for other purposes, such as hotels or office buildings. It is said that in such northern latitudes as those of St. Petersburg and Montreal the sunny side of the street is more valuable than the shady side, since it attracts the travel in the long winters. In New York some difference can be noted in the tides of foot travel according to the time of year, but since for eight or nine months of the year the climate is mild, the shops become established on the shady side of the street and whatever travel in winter changes to the sunny side is not sufficient to draw them over.

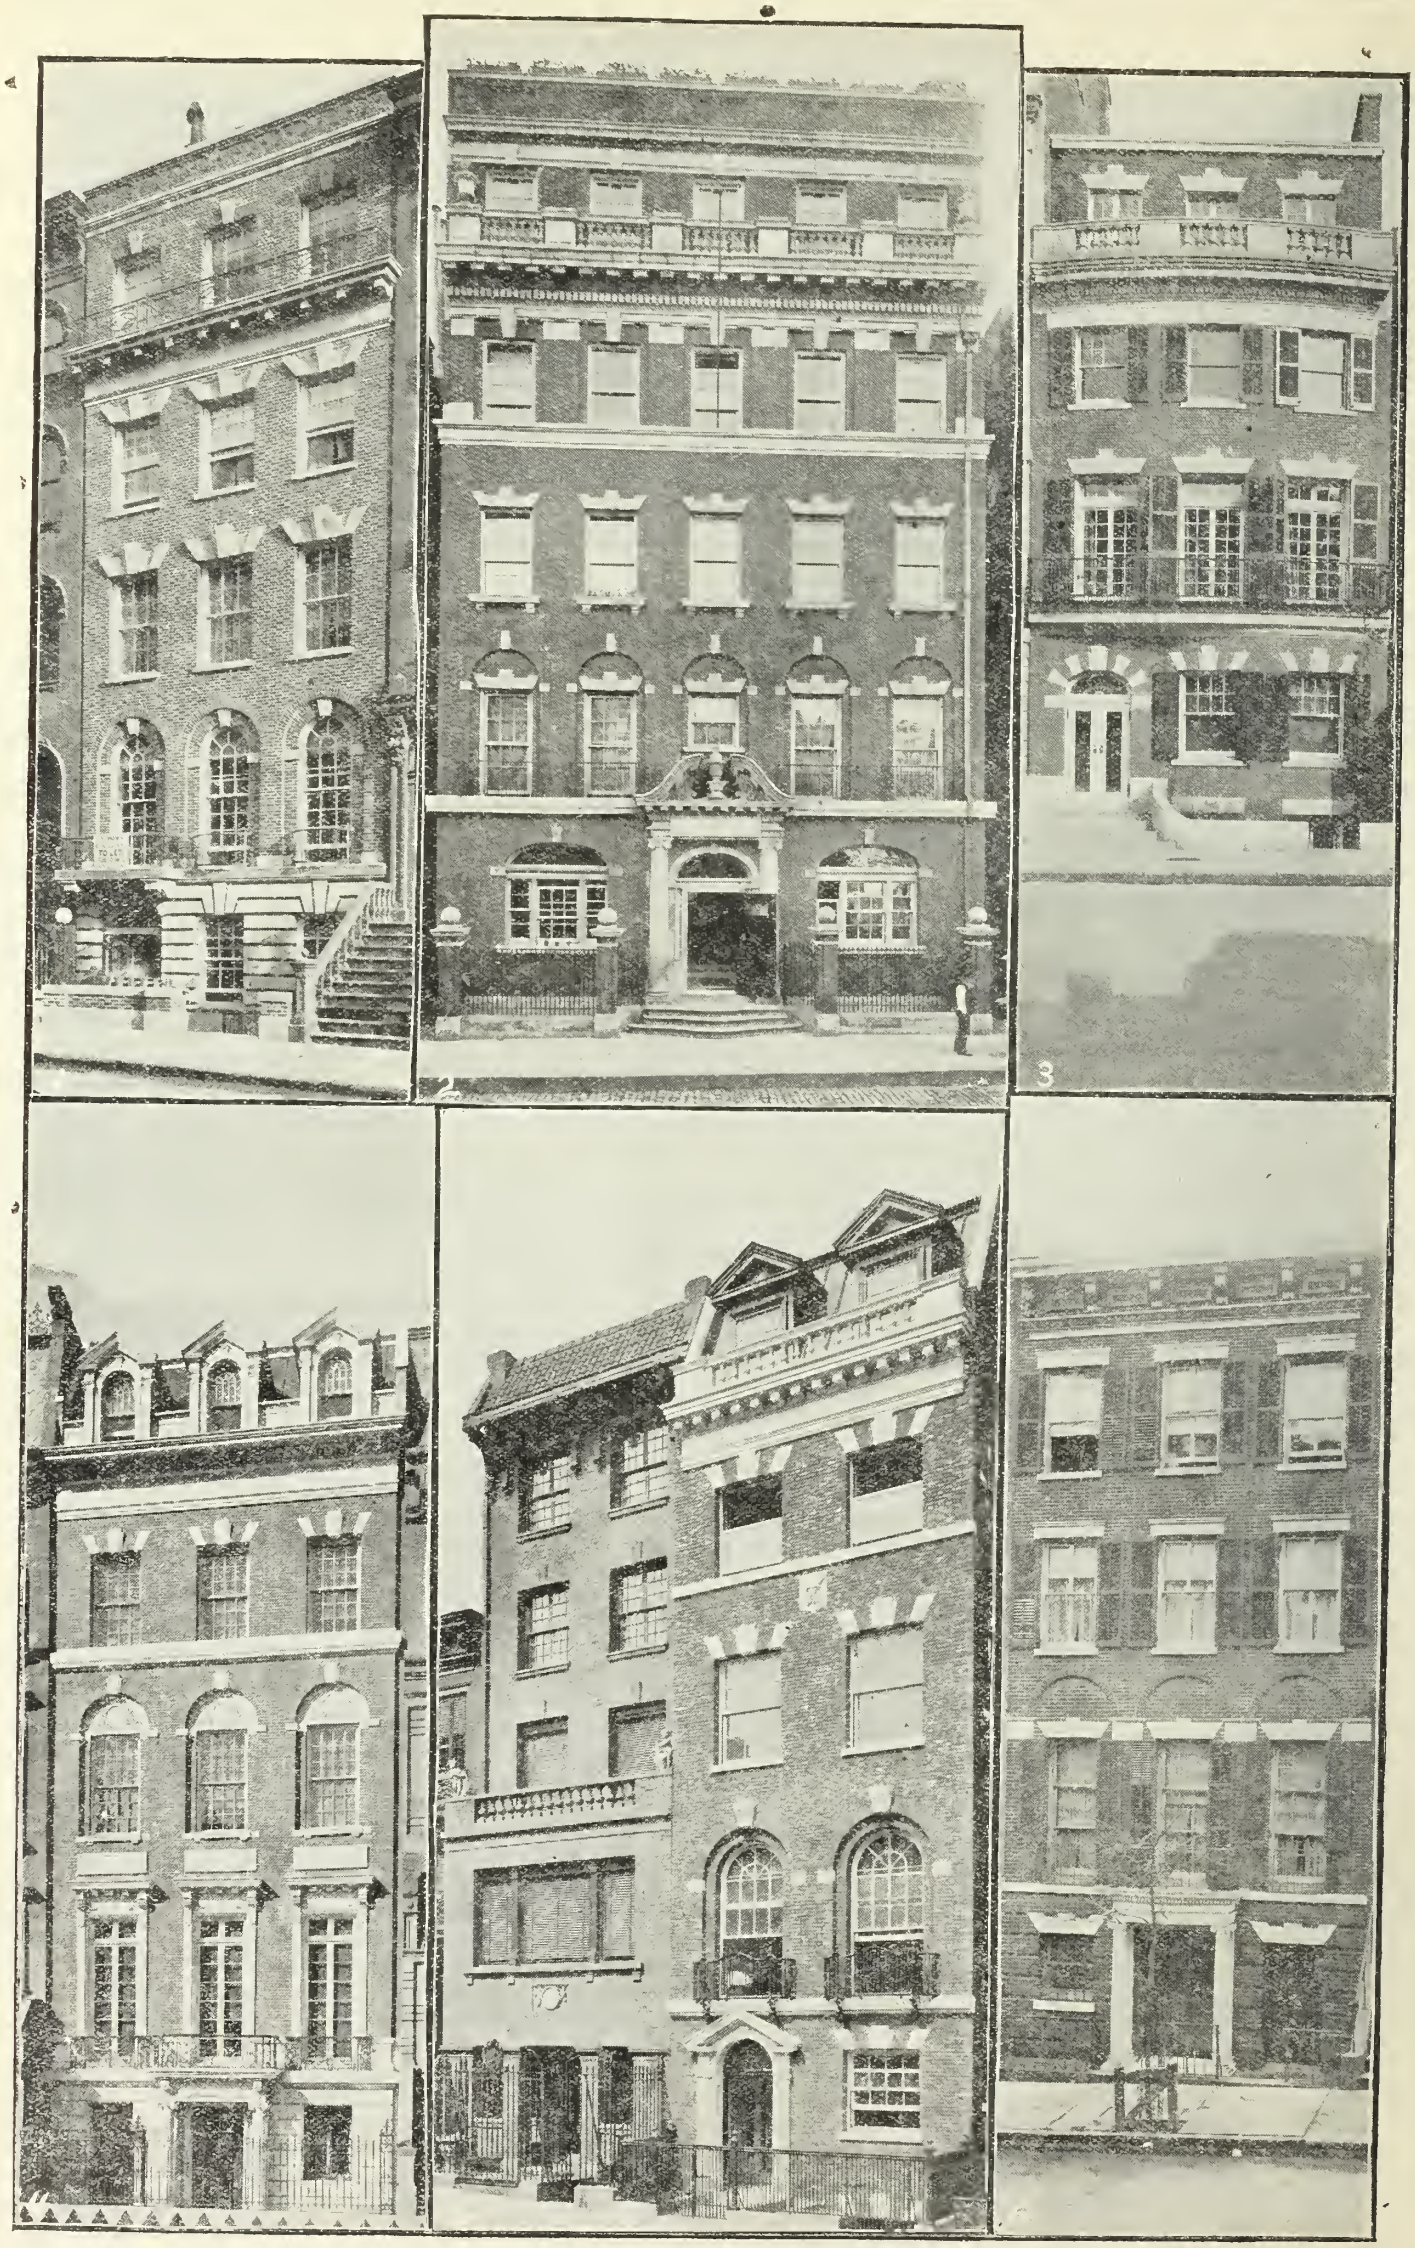
Other factors are sometimes strong enough to overcome the advantage of shade, such as proximity to a section of customers, as in New York on Sixth Avenue, between 34th and 59th Streets, where the east side of the street is more valuable than the west side.

In the larger cities the general use of private carriages by wealthy women influences values, in that the high grade women's shops seek locations away from car lines and easily accessible to the "carriage trade." Such locations are usually on or near the most fashionable axial streets, such as Fifth Avenue in New York, Michigan Avenue in Chicago, and Boylston Street in Boston, all of which were fashionable driving streets long before the residences facing them were driven out by shops.

The daily shopping of women clerks, shop girls, &c., is done either at small stores in the neighborhood where they live or at the large department stores, to which thy make a special trip, lower prices being more important to them than the time consumed.

The travel of mechanics and laborers in the morning is hurried by their having to report at the workshops at a certain hour, but in the evening they have a chance to shop in the small stores on the way from the factory to their homes. Ordinarily, the time of workmen and their wives is so much occupied during the week that the bulk of their shopping is done on Saturday nights from 6 to 10 o'clock, on the traffic streets which pierce the tenement districts.

In the smaller cities there are so few strangers that their influence may be disregarded. In the large cities, however, there is a large and steady visiting population, which varies daily as to individuals. The average number of strangers in New York is estimated at 100,000 people, who support many of the theatres, shops, and hotels, the latter being important as the starting points from which the visitors trips originate.



In the smaller cities suburbanites are few in number, and reaching the business centre chiefly in electric cars merge with the general population and may be disregarded. In the large cities suburbanites arrive by ferry or train and usually make hurried trips to their offices in the morning and back in the evening. This effort to reduce the time between their homes and their businss militates against their purchases en route, with the exception of small articles which can be carried, such as fruit, books, flowers, furnishing goods, &c., shops for which locate around some of the ferries and railroad depots. An extreme example of a large current of daily foot travel of the highest economic quality is furnished by the summer travel on Rector Street, New York, where thousands of wealthy men walk daily from the Wall Street section to and from the Sandy Hook boat. Here every factor is favorable to promoting an increase of values, except the speed with which the walking is done and the fact that the traffic lasts only five months of the year, which causes it to have no influence on values.

Added to the daily travel in a city is the evening travel to the theatres, opera, music halls, &c. The theatres, usually on street car lines and near the most important hotels, chiefly attract the evening travel, which in turn draws restaurants, saloons, cigar shops, candy shops, soda water fountains, florist shops, &c. The variations between summer and winter business become more marked the higher the social class, the little shops on the lower east side of New York probably selling an equal amount of goods throughout the year, the shops supplying the wants of the middle classes falling off during the hot summer months, and the season for fashionable shops lasting about five months. The competitors of the fashionable New York shops are the shops at Newport, Lenox, Bar Harbor, and those of Paris and London, and the competitors of the next grade of shops are those of the summer resorts of New Jersey, Long Island, or near New York. Tradesmen in many cases meet this condition by having winter stores in New York and summer stores where their patrons go. In so far as retail purchases are made outside of New York, the earning power and value of retail property in New York is lowered, this varying in proportion to the length of the summer absence.

The main effect of daily currents of travel is on the location of retail stores, increasing traffic being certain ultimately to change any street into a shopping street. As a corollary to this is the important fact that the relocation of the best residence districts is certain to change the axis of the principal travel within the city, which will draw the shops and values to new streets. Such changes of axis have taken place in New York from Pearl Street to Broadway, and from streets parallel to the river front to streets at right angles to it in St. Louis, St. Joseph,

RECENT BRICKWORK IN NEW YORK.

Minneapolis, and are now taking place in Toledo, Portland, Ore., and Cincinnati. As shops follow the shifting currents of travel, rentals move with them, and the value of retail land depends on the number of people passing, qualified by their purchasing power, the causes which bring them past the property and their method of locomotion. This dependence of retail business on daily traffic is due to the operation of the laws of chance, by which of a given number of passers-by a certain proportion will become customers.

The mention of traffic within a city suggests the double function of a city street as contrasted with the single function of a country road. A country road is a means of communication only, while a city street also furnishes frontage for buildings. Ordinarily, city streets are first a means of communication and later furnish frontage for buildings, but in waterfront cities this may be reversed. The principal business streets usually have some definite point of origin, such as a ferry or a railroad station within a city, or a country town or district outside of it, and long distance or through traffic is a prime essential for business streets, those which are cut off at one or both ends being almost useless for retail business, even though immediately contiguous to main arteries of traffic. Currents of traffic are not always straight, but may follow a street which has turns or angles, or a short street cut through a block between two main business streets, as with New Bond Street in London, and Union Street in Nashville. A serious detriment to values is caused by a break in the continuity of shops, whether due to a vacant lot, a church, a private residence, or an institution of any kind. A row of stores resembles a chain, the insertion of a vacancy or of any different utilization breaking its cohesion.

Besides the main currents of travel, the little feeding streams are closely watched, such shops as hatters, tailors, lunch rooms, men's furnishing goods, etc., locating in the men's district near the office buildings. The grade of shops on the streets leading from the office sections conforms to the character of the passers-by, high-class shops being where employers pass, and cheaper shops where clerks go, while push-carts and hawkers catch the office boy trade.

A noteworthy qualification in the location of retail shops is that the larger and more expensive the articles to be purchased the further people will go in search of them. Large and well managed shops will attract purchasers wherever located, but even such shops are extremely sensitive to the merits of different locations and pay high rents to be exactly where they can obtain the largest number of customers. In all cities there are constant changes in the population, and all shops to be most successful must keep themselves before the public by means of prominent locations.

The most striking feature of the daily travel within a city is its fluidity, or the closeness within which it seeks its own level. Obstructions check it and turn it aside as they would a stream of water. In flowing down a street it backs up each cross street, carrying stores to a distance proportionate to the strength of the current; and where two currents meet the pressure at the intersection intensifies the back currents. The stronger the current the further it spreads back or the greater the depth of shops, in some cases running through the block, as on 23d Street, New York, where the shops extend to 22d Street on one side and 24th Street on the other. Similarly, the stronger the current of traffic the higher it is heaped up, or the taller the buildings to accommodate it. The current of travel blocked by Washington Square, New York, flowed up Broadway and 6th Avenue and meeting at 23d Street, a back current of business building has flowed down 5th Avenue, in the same way that a stream meeting a rock divides, the pressure of water causing a current to flow back to the rock.

Street railroads have wrought a revolution in the structure of cities, scattering population over a wide area, adding value to the circumference by rendering it accessible for residences, and to the center by concentrating traffic within it, a part of this added value being removed from the intermediate zone. By rendering new districts acessible, thus increasing the area of supply of land, the value of all competititve land is reduced, so that the effect of street railroads on residence land is to lower its average value. The speed of an electric car is so great that the tendency is not to add on gradually to existing residence sections, but to project beyond them into the cheap country land. Ordinarily, capitalistic handling takes hold of a new outlying district and by laying out fine streets and sidewalks, sewers, water, gas, electric light, etc., and erecting high-class houses, establishes a residence section of higher values than much of the residence land nearer the business center. Opposed to this condition are the two factors of long settlement, which makes old residents reluctant to move, and the cost of car fares amounting to between $5 and $10 per month according to the size of the family, which operate in favor of the old fashioned residence sections near the business center.

It may happen that the best business street in a city has no car line on it, as for example Nicollet Avenue in Minneapolis; 6th Street in St. Paul, and Felix Street in St. Joseph, these being for this reason better adapted to the "carriage trade." An example of the effect of street railroads on carriage trade occurred in New York when the construction of the electric roads on Broadway and 23d Street produced such a dangerous intersection that ladies were timid about driving across it. This hastened the northward movement of high-class shops from Broadway below 23d Street to 5th Avenue above 25th Street.

Transfer points, owing to concentration of daily streams of people and consequent opportunity for shops, are strategic points in a city's area, creating business sub-centers, whose prospects of increasing values are limited only by the number and quality of the people likely to utilize them. As examples, note the marked effect of transfers in New York at Broadway and 34th Street, Madison Avenue and 59th Street, Lexington Avenue and 59th Street; also in New Haven at Chapel and Church Streets; in Denver at 15th and Lawrence Streets, and the many transfer points in the outlying districts of Chicago.

The success of street railroads in running cars to the top of fairly high hills has added millions of dollars of value to the higher lands in all hilly cities, as in San Francisco, Seattle, Peoria, etc. Similarly, every improvement in the construction, operation or service of street railroads strengthens their influence on the structure of cities. In general, if a city has less than the normal street railroad mileage the result is a number of small business sub-centers in outlying districts, and a consequent irregular diffusion of values, while a well developed street railroad renders stable the normal distribution of values.

In the largest cities the elevated railroads have the same general effects as the electric street railroads, with the additional influence of removing value from between the stations and increasing it at the stations. Despite the heavy damages paid by the elevated roads in New York, it is doubtful if they have injured many properties. It is certainly noteworthy that over 50 per cent. of the property owners affected did not claim damages from the elevated roads, also that the regular scale of damages paid out of court is only $10 per front foot. One beneficial result of the elevated road between stations is in affording shopkeepers along the route an opportunity to display goods and advertising signs on the upper floors. Where the elevated stations are only five blocks apart, as on the 6th Avenue line in the shopping district from 14th to 23d Streets, no building being more than 600 feet from an elevated station, the crowds from the different stations intermingle, so that all stores on the short stretches between the stations are benefited by the travel.

Where stations are ten blocks apart there is no such overlapping of streams of travel, but if there were sufficient travel to demand it there would be additional stations, in which case the beneficial effects of the elevated would be intensified and the detrimental effects diminished, so that it might be said to be the fault of the property that it has not sufficient business strength to make an elevated road a source of additional value rather than the reverse. While an elevated road is always detrimental in a residence section, and partly detrimental and partly helpful in a small business section, in the most patronized retail shopping sections it is a strong advantage.

The influence of an underground road is similar to that of the elevated, except that the feature of advertising is absent. The longer haul of an underground road creates residence values at still greater distances, and also still further intensifies values at the center of the city and at all stations, especially express stations.

Bridges, ferries and tunnels, which serve as additional outlets to a city, co-operate with long distance transportation facilities, and any change in their location or any competition of new bridges or tunnels by changing traffic routes causes marked shifting of values. Thus the construction of the Brooklyn Bridge by diverting traffic from the old Fulton Street ferry, and throwing it half a mile back from the river on either side, removed millions of dollars of value from the streets leading to the ferries, especially in Brooklyn.

ONE of the perennial topics of discussion is New York's lost grain trade and the means to be taken to recover it. While the discussion goes on it produces no practical movement to achieve the object desired. This is because the pursuit is a hopeless one. As was pointed out in these columns long ago, the grain trade of New York was at its height when the railroad and other carrying systems of the continent were very imperfect. The result was that the bringing of grain to tidewater was expensive and it became an object to substitute water for land carriage as much as possible. To achieve this railroads were built right out from the grain growing sections to the nearest water, whether on the Lakes, the Gulf or the Pacific, and the products of the land have as a consequence been dispersed to tidewater in a number of directions instead of but one as before. Another factor in this change has been the growing independence of cities in the agricultural sections in the matter of capital, which has enabled them to send their products in any direction they chose. It is now extremely doubtful whether New York could successfully compete again for this trade were a really earnest endeavor made to do so, not because facilities equal to those of other cities could not be provided, but because of discriminating railroad tariffs and because a recovery of the grain trade would probably interfere with the enormous sea-going general trade in other more profitable classes with which New York has more than compensated herself for any loss she may have sustained in particular lines.

MR. AUGUST BELMONT, in an interview given out during the past week, asks for fair treatment for the private capital invested in the transit business of this city; and undoubtedly it would be very poor policy to treat those companies unfairly; but one cannot help wondering what percentage of return the private capitalists who invest in these roads consider "fair." In the past they have usually considered themselves "fairly" entitled to 6 or 7 per cent. on a stock that consists largely of water; and it is one of the chief objects of sound municipal government at the present time to insist that they accept smaller returns. They are, however, so accustomed to the chance, not merely of making a fair percentage on the capital invested, but also of adding thereto large fortunes by stock operations that the returns which foreign capitalists consider fair do not tempt them; and it is consequently necessary that the Rapid Transit Commission should have the power, if it cannot make an advantageous bargain in any other way, of equipping and operating the Subway extensions. As to the proposed improvements to the existing structures of the Manhattan Company, we believe that in this case it will pay the city to grant not merely fair, but liberal terms. These improvements are much more necessary to the convenience of the people of New York than they are to the income of the Manhattan Company. If they are begun soon and completed expeditiously they will help enormously—pending the construction of the new Subways—to give the residents of Harlem a better service than they have at present; and even after the new Subway system is completed they will add greatly to the comfort of the inhabitants of New York. Their chief use, however, is their early availability; the city would lose more by any delay in undertaking them than it would gain by holding out for a stiff compensation for the new privileges.

The Real Estate Situation

Rapid Transit Extensions.

The most telling criticism directed against the proposed subway extensions, at the hearing last Thursday was that made by Mr. Edgar J. Levey. The transit necessities of that part of the Bronx, of which Jerome avenue is the main thoroughfare, have undoubtedly been neglected by Mr. Parsons. Jerome avenue should have not merely an elevated road, but a subway with a direct southerly connection. Thus far little or no building has been going on in that part of the Borough, because it is extremely inaccesible; but eventually it is destined to be the line of the most expensive and desirable residence property in the Bronx. The other more important criticism, viz., that the East Side extension should run up 1st avenue instead of Lexington avenue, is not so well taken. First avenue is indeed much broader than Lexington avenue, and is consequently better adapted physically for the purpose, but Lexington avenue is by far the preferable location. The inhabitants of the East Side who live between 2d avenue and the river are not dependent very much upon rapid transit facilities, for they are laborers who work in neighboring factories or on jobs of varying location all over the city. On the other hand, the residents along the line of Park and Madison avenues nearly all belong to that section of the population which has to travel up and down town every day, and consequently particularly need the asistance of a rapid transit subway. At present they are very much worse situated in that respect than are the residents of any other closely populated district, and they deserve the first relief, particularly since Mr. Parsons' plans propose a great increase in efficiency and carrying accommodation for the 2d avenue elevated structure. As yet no one has appeared in opposition to the route selected for the West Side extension south of 42d street, yet that route seems to be one of the most doubtful parts of the plan. It has the advantage indeed of avoiding curves and of sticking throughout as closely as possible to the line of Broadway, and it is along the line of Broadway that the majority of the passengers find their destination. But it also has a good many disadvantages. The route south of Washington Square will run along narrow streets, which will never permit any considerable expansion of facilities, while its occupation of Broadway from 14th to 42d street is by no means an undivided benefit. The great objection is that it intensifies the concentration of traffic and business along the line of Broadway, instead of helping to distribute it—as would a route which followed the line of 7th avenue to some point north of 14th street, and after turning west for a block, continued down 8th avenue, Hudson street and West Broadway. Snch a route would be almost as convenient as the proposed route, would possess a larger traffic capacity, would provide direct connection with the Pennsylvania terminus, and would help to build up that part of the city to the west of Broadway. This last advantage is really most important, because the congestion which ensues from excessive concentration of traffic is one of the greatest threats to the future prosperity of the city.

The New Post Office Site.

The site selected by the commission for the uptown post office will be approved by everybody except those owners and brokers who have been dissappointed in their attempt to sell property to the government. Nowhere else in the city could the government have secured so desirable a location at so small an expense. Its selection will doubtless benefit that part of 8th avenue, and 34th street between 7th and 8th avenues, and is particularly desirable because it tends further to open up a part of the city which until the coming of the Pennsylvania R. R. was very dead. As we have pointed out in reference to the new rapid transit routes, it is becoming peculiarly desirable in New York to enlarge the area of business activity from east to west, because every such enlargement distributes real estate values and street traffic instead of concentrating them. The excessive concentration which now takes place is a great burden to business because of high rents, delays in truck service and congestion of the transit machinery. But if active business could be distributed over other avenues, if, for instance, the business Broadway and 6th avenue could overflow to 7th avenue, and if the important side streets could have their activity extended to as far west as 9th and as far east as 3d avenues, it would be an enormous benefit to the business of the city. The location of such an institution as the uptown post office a little off the main tracks is one of the best means of encouraging this distribution.

Sales of Wall Street. Property.

The most interesting transactions of the week have been the sales of property in or near Wall street. No very definite news has been given out as to whether these sales foreshadow improvements during the coming spring, but from the policy of the purchasers and the character of the property it is very probable that new buildings will soon be erected. The United States Realty and Construction Co., now that it has disposed of the Trinity Building, has no very large speculative building operation under way, and it is probable that these Wall street and Exchange place purchases will help to keep its construction department busy during the coming year. If so, there will be no less than five buildings under construction on Wall street this summer, and it is apparent that that street will in a few years be lined with tall buildings from Broadway to the river. During the past two years an average of some $10,000,000 has been invested each year in office buildings without at all exhausting the demand for new accommodations, and from the extent of this current demand it is apparent that the new office buildings which are completed this spring will be rapidly filled up. It looks as if even a larger amount of building will be commenced during 1903, but the buildings will average smaller. They will be situated more on the outer edge of the financial district than in its center, and they will be twelve and fifteen rather than eighteen and twenty-story buildings. It is obvious that the whole existing tendency in respect to this gilt-edged real estate is to bring about a relatively permanent condition of things. Banking houses, insurance companies and other money-eyed institutions are seeking more and more to find quarters, in which they can settle down with the assurance that they will have no further cause for removal, and they are seeking also to secure whatever advantage these offices have in the way of light and air. It is probable that within five years under the influence of these demands all the real estate in the heart of the financial district will have passed into the hands of people or institutions that will not sell and will have no reason to improve. Transactions in real estate situated within a quarter of a mile of the Stock Exchange will become as rare as they are in the corresponding section of London. Gilt-edged real estate, like gilt-edged bonds, will be, metaphorically speaking, locked up in the strong boxes of the big financial institutions.

As there seems to be a renewed interest in fine brickwork, another series of examples of contemporaneous work is given herein. The houses represented are:

1. Bachelor apartment house, No. 173 Madison av, Alfred H. Taylor, architect. The design is a kind of Colonial. Note the particularly striking effect produced by the use of two materials —stone in combination with the brick.
2. Nursery and Kindergarten, No. 320 East 82d st, Janes & Leo, architects.
3. No. 19 East 86th st, Grosvenor Atterbury, architect.
4. No. 76 Park av.
5. Nos. 113 and 115 East 40th st. A well-known critic has said that these two buildings produce a distinctly pleasurable impression, derived partly from the attractive color and surface of the brick, and partly because they create an effect of mixed propriety and distinction. Architects: No. 113, Morris, Butler & Rodman; No. 115, Geo. E. Wood.
6. No. 118 East 40th st. An old brick dwelling altered. The stoop has been removed and the entrance placed in the middle of the ground floor and marked by a well proportioned pair of Ionic columns. The windows of the second story have been arched and fitted with white stone trimmings, while, above, the old brownstone trimmings have apparently been painted white. Thus, the effect of unobtrusive propriety and distinction has been obtained by simple and inexpensive means.

Some Inconveniences of the Paris Metropolitan Railway.

At a time when our engineers are carrying out in New York considerable works in connection with the new lines of electric underground railway, it is interesting to know the qualities and defects of similar existing railways. For example, the Paris Metropolitan, the latest to be constructed, seemed perfect when it was opened, but it has since been found to have many imperfections. Begun after the London and Berlin "undergrounds," one would have thought that the Paris Metropolitan would have benefited to a very great extent by technical experience acquired by engineers. Unfortunately, French engineers had, above all things, to carry out their work rapidly. It took some thirty years to decide on the making of the lines, but those who executed the work made a point of finishing everything in eighteen months. And, therefore, though the first section of the Paris Metropolitan, which was voted in 1898 and inaugurated in 1900, it justly regarded not only as a marvelous piece of technical work, but also as a veritable "tour de force" from the point of view of rapid construction, its many inconveniences as regards working having given rise to much criticism.

These inconveniences, almost all of which are due to the narrowness of the tunnels, are becoming more serious every day as the traffic is extended. The engineers in whose hands the construction of the other Parisian lines has been placed are finding the practical problem more difficult to solve than the technical part of their work. In fact, if they made the first lines too narrow it was because they were not allowed to make them larger. Compelled to follow the axis of the streets, they had to keep the width of the tunnels within the dimensions of the roadway. They were obliged to avoid the cellars of river-side houses and leave space for the drains at each side of the tunnels. Hence, the tunnels of the Paris Metropolitan are only 8 metres 60 in breadth, and 6 metres 10 in height—measurements which allow of the passage of two trains side by side, but which ought to be doubled in order to allow of the laying of four pairs of rails which are now necessary for the daily increasing traffic.

Since it was possible to construct a sufficiently large tunnel just below the level of streets, it would seem that Parisian engineers ought to have gone deeper down, say, ten or twelve yards, and tunnelled under the houses. But at such a depth as that they would have encountered water, and would possibly have had great difficulties in overcoming the difficulties which it occasions. The subsoil of Paris is, in fact, essentially variable, and is not, like the ground on which New York is built, invariably solid. Chalk, marl, clay, water, and sand are met with under Paris, and it is not always easy to avoid these shifting substances. Thus, at the present time, in the case of one of the new lines in course of construction, the engineers have encountered a layer of quick sand which is as mobile as water and apparently inexhaustible. In order to execute the masonry of the tunnel, they are thinking of congealing this shifting sand artificially—a curious experiment of great technical interest.

In the case of one of the other lines, that on the left bank of the Seine, the railway passes through the ancient quarries which supplied the stone for building former outer quarters of the city. These quarries, which extend to a great distance, are from ten to seventen yards in depth, and the pickaxes of the laborers have revealed such yawning openings that an artificial subsoil has had to be constructed for a distance of two miles. Pits of a yard in diameter have had to be bored until solid ground was reached, these have been filled with concrete, and when two rows of these columns, which are six yards apart, had been made they were joined, in twos, by a horizontal foundation of armed cement (beton armé), on which was built the masonry of the tunnel, thus protected against all chance of falling in. The cost of this most delicate work has been $360,000 for the two miles.

But, to return to the first lines which were made and their defects, although the broadening of the tunnel was almost impossible there should have been no difficulty in making the stations larger. These are far too small for the number of passengers who use the Metropolitan daily—namely, from 224,000 to 300.000. Bustled on the staircases as they enter and in the too narrow passages, they justly complain of the smallness of the stations of the Metropolitan. Penned in between iron barriers, pushed in front and behind, these poor Parisians stumble about on the stone steps, which should have been replaced by moving staircases, facilitating the extra rapid issue and exit of travellers. Once they have reached the narrow platforms they are either crushed against the walls or nearly pushed over the edge on to the line, their alternative being either suffocation or electrocution by the 550-volt current which passes along the rails.

The platforms are not only too narrow, they are not long enough*. They are all right for trains consisting of one, two or three cars; but now that the Metropolitan railway company is running trains of eight carriages, which occupy the whole length of the platform, it has been recognized impossible to use trains of nine and ten carriages such as are required to cope with Parisian traffic and which the power of the electric current would easily allow.

One of the principal inconveniences of the Paris Metropolitan arises from the continual bustling of passengers who, getting in and out of the cars on the same platform, collide with each other and waste the precious fifteen to twenty seconds during which the trains stop at each station. In order to avoid this difficulty, three platforms have been provided—a central platform for passengers getting out of the train, and two lateral platforms reserved for those who are leaving. Bustling would thus have been prevented, and first-class cars would not be invaded by second-class passengers and vice versa. At the present time the company is considering the employment of second-class carriages without seats, so that those who are in a hurry can pack themselves like herrings in a box, leaving the other cars to women and children!

On the Metropolitan railway rapidity is the principal thing to be aimed at. In Paris, trains running at a speed of twenty-four miles an hour pass only every four minutes. This is not sufficient. The present traffic calls for a train of eight cars every two minutes at ordinary times and every minute at the busiest times of the day. Each carriage containing room for fifty-five passengers, each train for 440, the company would thus be able to transport, and with less bustling than at present, the 240,000 people, who, on an average, pay $8,400† daily in fares. First-class tickets cost 25 centimes; those of the second-class 15 centimes.

Such figures as these explain the crowding which is to be met with everywhere on the Metropolitan; at the entrances, on the platforms, and in the cars; and also to a slight extent the disagreeable odor, and at the same time the stifling heat which the passengers have to endure. That peculiar pungent smell on the Paris "underground" which is due to the creosote with which the sleepers are impregnated is not injurious, but the heat is distinctly disagreeable, and it is to be regretted that, instead of counting on the trains for keeping the air in circulation, the engineers did not include air shafts in their plans and place ventilators in the cars.

But though the enlargement of the stations is possible and the

*At almost all the stations they are 86 yards in length.

†During the first fortnight of 1903, the lowest receipts amounted to $8,136, with 231,059 passengers; the highest, to $10,645. For the first 20 days of this year, 5,019,784 passengers traveled on the Paris "underground," the receipts being $174,756. This shows a considerable increase compared with the corresponding period last year, when there were only 3,297,643 passengers, and $114,030 receipts. From the 1st of January, 1902, to December 10, 1902, the receipts rose to $1,966,800, as against $1,550,425, for the same period in 1901. The increase is, therefore, continually favorable to the enterprise.

ventilation, which up to the present has been neglected, might be increased in the cars and in the tunnels, the broadening of these last presents almost insurmountable difficulties. In addition to those mentioned at the beginning of this article, there is the money difficulty. In order to double the existing lines of the Paris Metropolitan it would be necessary either to recommence the whole of the work or make a second tunnel. In either case the sum already expended, that is $7,388,200 paid by the City of Paris for the work of tunneling, etc., and $3,864,600 by the company for construction of stations, permanent way, etc., would be more than doubled. These expenses are split up into the following items, the line constructed being nearly nine miles long:

Stations, $489,800; permanent ways, $711,200; rolling stock, $510,200; erection workshops for material, $337,200; building generating station and substations, $1,763,400.

The total of $11,200,000, which works out at $860,000 a kllometre, shows how costly underground railways are. It is only right, however, to point out that the profits are in accordance with the expenses, since the expenses of working are 42% of the gross receipts and the net annual proceeds 53%, of which 33% goes to the city of Paris and 25% to the Metropolitan Railway Company.

The 59th St. Widening.

REPRESENTATIVE VIEWS OF PROPERTY OWNERS—STRONG OPPOSITION TO A 100-FT. THOROUGHFARE.

The final hearing in regard to the proposed widening of 59th st, which was given on Wednesday, served to crystallize the scattered objections of property-owners into the fewest possible number of definite propositions, with a general recognition of the inevitability of the improvement. The matter was in the hands of the Board of Local Improvements of the Hudson, Murray Hill and Yorkville districts. What the Local Board was by most observers expected to do was to take 40 feet from the property on the north side and make the street 100 feet wide, between 2d and 5th and 8th and Columbus avs. Consequently, the efforts of the northsiders were directed to either have the widening done on the south side or else to have the total width of the street increased to no more than 80 feet. It cannot be denied that the sentiment in favor of an 80-foot thoroughfare is strong, and not confined to the northsiders exclusively.

The agitation for the widening of 59th st has not found its first expression recently; so long ago as 1872 the desirability of the improvement was recognized and plans were in part formulated, when, by reason of a municipal revolution in that year, the project was abandoned. In 1895 it was again agitated, but the opposition of a prominent member of the city government caused the improvement to be again deferred. At all these times the necessity for widening was based largely upon the fact that 59th st is the first thoroughfare going entirely across the city south of 110th st, and that it is the only business thoroughfare between the last-mentioned street and 42d st. The main object to be obtained was to provide a practical street that would accommodate the business traffic crossing the city beween these points. Since 1895 the Blackwell's Island Bridge has been projected and is now actually in course of construction. This bridge will find grade at 2d av, between 59th and 60th sts. At the conclusion of the hearing on Wednesday, the Board went into executive session, and voted unanimously to recommend the widening of 59th st 40 feet on the north side, between 2d and 5th avs, and between 8th and Columbus avs.

Mr. William E. Ward, the owner of the premises on the southeast corner of 59th st and 3d av, has made a recommendation that is received with much consideration. He says: "If the Board concludes that a widening of the roadbed is necessary, I suggest that the only feasible plan with respect to relieving the anticipated congestion in 59th st is to remove and abolish the stoop line on both sides of the street from 2d to 5th av. This may be accomplished by order of the city authorities, as was done in 14th st and 23d st, between 5th and 6th avs. This would give 15 feet clear to each sidewalk. Each sidewalk could then be cut off and each curb set back from 1 to 2 feet, which would leave ample roadbed and ample sidewalk. This would widen the roadbed between the curb and the car track from 1 to 2 feet on each side of the street, and there would be a completed street from 32 feet to 34 feet wide in the roadbed which would meet all possible requirements and possible congestion for many years to come. This plan of reducing the sidewalks would save the city many millions of dollars and the property-owners many millions more. The plan is feasible and inexpensive and it is believed that it could be accomplished for an expenditure of about $100,000.

"If, on the other hand, the Board shall determine that the street must be widened by changing the building line, then I am in favor and advocate that the widening take place exclusively on the northerly side of the street, and contend that that is the logical side for each widening. The southerly street line of 59th street is now an unbroken straight line from river to river. This adds considerable value to the property on the southerly side and is a large element in the improvement and use thereof.

"The Board should not lose sight of the excess in the value of the land, irrespective of buildings, on the southerly side of the street over that on the northerly side. As in 59th st, so in 14th st, 23d st, and 125th st, the land on the southerly side is more valuable than that on the northerly side. It is common experience in this city that for all business purposes the southerly side of a street is by far the most desirable and valuable.

BUILDINGS IN THE WAY.

"As to the buildings on the southerly side of 59th st, there is on the southeast corner of 5th av and 59th st the Hotel Savoy, one of the most magnificent hotels in this country; and from there on eastward the property is occupied by established places of business. Between Madison and Park avs is the Hotel Roland, a large building constructed at great expense. At the southwest corner of 59th st and Park av is the recently-erected building of the Board of Education, which was built at an enormous expense to the taxpayers of the city; it is urged that this building alone should be considered as a speaking argument in opposition to the suggested plan to disturb the house line on the southerly side of 59th st. It would be practically destroyed by any change in the house line; it has a frontage of 150 feet on 59th st and of only 100 feet on Park av. Opposite, at the southeast corner of 59th st and Park av, is the building of the Arion Club, a structure which has been standing for a number of years and which is the home of a large number of prominent citizens. Towards the east is the building of the Fidelio Club, which serves a like purpose, and on eastward the property is occupied by established places of business. A large building has been recently erected on the southerly side of 59th st, between Lexington and 3d avs. To change the house line on the southerly side it would be necessary that each and every one of these buildings be disturbed and in many instances wholly demolished, as their use will be taken from them.

WOULD DESTROY USEFULNESS OF THE PROPERTY.

"The expense of reconstruction, the loss of land and rents and the inconvenience resulting would be enormous, and out of all proportion to any benefit that might possibly accrue from the widening by this method. Such modification of these buildings would consume at least two or three years, would impair or wholly destroy the use of the property, and in the meantime drive out tenants and practically bankrupt the owners of the property, and the uncertainty and inconvenience resulting would take from the properties what little value there might be left in them.

"The Board should bear in mind that every owner of property in 59th st who is affected by the proposed change in the building line is opposed to the plan, and for this opposition it is submitted there is abundant reason. The suggestion, if carried out, practically means that the city is to condemn the whole of the property on the southerly side of 59h st. If, however, the Board should conclude upon a widening of the street by disturbing the house line, the northerly side of the street is the logical one upon which such change should operate."

THE OTHER SIDE.

Mr. E. W. Bloomingdale, of the dry-goods firm of Bloomingdale Bros., who own property on both sides of the street, is in favor of widening by adding only 20 feet, to be taken from the southerly side. He says:

"The reasons presented for taking property on the southerly side are many, and we think conclusive. In the first place, as balancing the question of alignment, presented by those who favor the other side of the street, we maintain that if the lines of the street are set back 20 feet on the southerly side, it will not destroy the contour of that side, for the reason that in looking towards and across 5th av, the plaza intervenes, making a stretch of 310 feet of open space between the front building line of the Savoy Hotel and the easterly line of the Plaza Hotel. This large space will make it impossible for the eye to follow the proposed new line from East 59th st to West 59th st, and will certainly soften and tone down what might be considered an undesirable break in the street if the distance separating the buildings were the width of the usual 60 or 80-foot street. Exactly the same conditions obtain on the block between Central Park West and Columbus av. There the building to the west of Columbus av, viz.: the Roosevelt Hospital is set back some distance from the building line of 59th st, while at the 8th av end there is again a large plaza separating the beginning of the improvement at 8th av with the building line of the private property on 59th st to the east of Broadway. But there are other and further reasons for widening on the southerly side, and these are, first, the expense; second, safety to traffic; third, safety to foot passengers.

"We submit that while New York is a rich municipality, that a million dollars additional cost should not be incurred in the making of an improvement, unless great and substantial benefit is to be gained thereby. But aside from the mere money damage, for which compensation will be made, the damage to property-owners, by reducing the depth of their holdings and the consequent effect on plans for new improvements, will be much less by taking from that side where there are more large plots which would not be injured in the taking of the proposed strip. The Savoy Hotel, the Riding Academy, the Antoinettes, Arion Hall and Terrace Garden, all of which are on the southerly side of 59th st, have a depth of from 125 to 200 feet, and these large areas will be but slightly injured in the taking of the land needed for this improvement."

Staten Island Ferry.

VIEWS OF THE PRESIDENT OF RICHMOND BOROUGH—WHY HE PREFERS ST. GEORGE TO TOMPKINSVILLE AS A TERMINAL.

It must be admitted that Staten Island has arrived at a crisis in its affairs, for no question of internal economy can overshadow the one now presented for a decision, which will determine the degree of accessibility to be accorded to the borough. That Staten Island, with its superb situation, is not favored with a larger population and is not more advanced in material prosperity is altogether owing to the difficulties attendant upon getting there. As the franchise about to be let will extend over a period of twenty-five years, it is a case of almost now or never for this generation. The present owners of the lease are the Staten Island Harbor and Transportation Company, and the rival bidders are Henry H. Rogers, of the Standard Oil Company, and the Staten Island Rapid Transit R. R. Company, back of which is the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The recommendation of the Dock Commissioner, Mr. Hawkes, favors leasing to the Rapid Transit Company, which has agreed to provide two new boats immediately and more at the end of five years, if the facilities should not then be adequate, in the judgment of an arbitration committee. This company would maintain the same terminal at St. George, but would not grant a 3-cent commutation rate, which the residents of that borough are desirous of obtaining, and which Mr. Rogers is willing to grant as a condition of being awarded the franchise.

The situation is complicated by conflicting interests among the people, in regard to the location of the ferry landing, some wishing it to be at Tompkinsville. Commissioner Hawkes, in his efforts to harmonize matters, suggested to the rival claimants that each consent to run a ferry-line, one to Tompkinsville, the other to St. George, and both from Whitehall st. Mr. Rogers would not consider this suggestion.

Among the representative bodies which oppose the granting of the franchise to the Rapid Transit Company, principally because this company will not consent to a 3-cent fare, are: The Chamber of Commerce, the Local Improvement Association of New Dorp, the Huguenot Improvement Association, and the Committee of One hundred and One. The opposition was strongly represented at a hearing given by the Sinking Fund Commissioners this week.

President Cromwell, of Richmond Borough, has endeavored to take an impartial and comprehensive view of the subject. Primarily, he believes that the city should own all the terminals, and thus be able to invite free competition for the franchises; that the rental exacted by the city should be reduced to an absolute minimum; and that the franchise should be granted to whatever responsible person or corporation should offer the facilities best suited to both the present and future needs of the entire island and secure the greatest good to the greatest number of her citizens.

SUPERIOR ADVANTAGES OF ST. GEORGE.

The Record and Guide is permitted to quote President Cromwell further as follows:

"I find myself unable to escape the conclusion that the interests of all the people in all sections of Staten Island, whether they rely for their transportation upon the trolley lines or the steam railroads, will be best subserved by maintaining the main ferry passenger terminal at St. George, with adequate supplemental ferry service for terms and freight, and such passengers as may wish to travel in that way, to both the east and north shores. Changes will, of course, have to be made in the ferry-house at both ends of the line, to most conveniently accommodate all the passengers and give access to the boats by both upper and lower decks, and a radical change must also be made at St. George in the way of street approaches, in order to obviate the existing disadvantages of grade, particularly between Tompkinsville and St. George. To the accomplishment of these changes I propose energetically to devote myself as soon as the ferry franchise question is disposed of.

"Both the steam and trolley roads are necessary to the Island's best development, and I fully realize the great advantages, particularly to the interior portions of the Island, that the trolley roads can give. A proper extension of both systems should be encouraged in every way possible, and they should be given absolutely equal facilities at the terminals. I have not been able to see, however, that this result can be as well accomplished at Tompkinsville as it can be at St. George. The distance to be traveled to the terminal at St. George by those using the trolley lines from the east is only about 700 feet further than it would be to the proposed terminal at Tompkinsville, with the compensating advantage that the passenger on arriving at St. George is several times that distance nearer his destination (Manhattan) than he would be at a terminal at Tompkinsville. Those arriving from the north not only have less distance to travel to St. George by train or trolley, but are materially nearer Manhattan.

RELATIVE EXPENSE.

"Another advantage in the plans proposed for St. George over those for Tompkinsville is the considerable saving in the expenditure of new money. I have had careful estimates made of the probable cost of carrying out both plans, and I am convinced that the plans proposed for Tompkinsville will involve an expenditure of over $250,000 more new money than the plans proposed for St. George.

"Another advantage in favor of St. George is that the terminals there can be secured by the city almost at once, while long delay must of necessity be involved in condemning the land necessary for a terminal at Tompkinsville and the building of the new terminals there.

UPPER DECK TROLLEY LOOP.

"I am of the opinion that we should have upper deck landings at both the New York and the St. George terminals; that the trolley lines should have a loop on the level of the upper decks of the boats, and the trolley cars should be as accessible to the boats as are the cars of the steam railroad; that we should have at the earliest possible day new boats of the most modern type for the service, not only capable of but actually averaging twenty-minute trips between the main terminals and making not less than fifty trips per day and an increased number in direct ratio with the increase in the number of passengers carried; that an improved all-night service be maintained with railroad connection; that separate ferries, particularly for the accommodation of team traffic, but also for foot passengers who may wish to travel in that way, should be run either to West New Brighton or to Port Richmond on the north shore to Stapleton or to Clifton on the south shore; and that a sufficient number of such trips should be made to each shore daily to fully meet the traffic requirements."

President Cromwell also urges the inserting in the lease of a provision for a reasonable commutation rate, so that the daily users of the ferry shall have the customary advantage over transient service. Another hearing in the matter is to be given by the Sinking Fund Commissioners next Wednesday. The whole city is interested in the matter for the sake of the future. The Staten Island ferry should be the best in the world.

Laws Proposed.

SOME ACCOUNT OF MEASURES INTRODUCED IN THE LEGISLATURE TO AFFECT NEW YORK CITY.

An assurance from Albany is that the measures which have been prepared or recommended by our municipal administration will be passed. Among these are three covering the intended New York Central improvements. The first bill relates to the work to be done in the vicinity of the Grand Central Depot; the second to the removal of grade crossings along the Harlem, in the Borough of The Bronx; and the third, to the removal of grade crossings on the Port Morris branch of the Harlem Railroad, which involves the grant to the railroad of a new right-of-way, by tunnel, under St. Mary's Park, in place of the present open cut skirting the park. The first bill discloses that the vault spaces about the station and in Lexington av have not been granted. The original recommendation that Park av be continued by a 60-ft. viaduct from 49th st to 45th st, has been modified by substituting a 50-ft. viaduct, at the request of the railroad company. A roadway 36 ft. in width is estimated to be wide enough for four vehicles to pass abreast. A 50-ft. viaduct, therefore, will provide such a roadway and leave space for two sidewalks 7 ft. in width. The use of the sidewalks upon this viaduct is not likely to be great. The railroad companies are to pay the city an annual rental of $25,000 for the use of the sub-surface of streets shown on their plans south of 57th st and Park av, except as to vault privileges; assume all the expenses of constructing the bridges and viaducts from 45th to 56th st, inclusive, except for the additional width of the 45th st viaduct, and less the sum of $600,000, determined as the cost to the city of acquiring and constructing equivalent street space; contribute the land for the city to build the Park av viaduct; and in all other respects bear the cost and charges involved. The proposed limits of the terminal yard have been slightly modified by a revised map, which omits the vault spaces shown on the former map filed by the railroad company, and contains only such modifications as in their nature are believed to affect no private right. They are unimportant at best, and relate entirely to portions of the cross streets, from 49th to 45th sts, inclusive. No power house will be built upon Manhattan Island more than two blocks from the water front, except with the consent of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. The other features of the bills have been sufficiently described in these columns. All have been drawn in such a way as to make the grant of new power run from the State to the city and from the city to the railroad, and not from the State directly to the railroad.

Another bill that has the favor of Mayor Low is Senator Marshall's, empowering the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the Sinking Fund Commission to authorize the closing of streets. The effect of such a law would be to relieve the Board of Aldermen of the responsibility. It is believed that the Pennsylvania tunnel project would be favored by the enactment of this bill.

TENEMENT HOUSE PROPOSALS.

It is not probable that any of the radical measures now before the Legislature will be enacted. What is expected is that the Governor will endeavor to keep peace with both sides, and will have a bill framed and introduced that will embody such amendments as he believes should be made, and this will be the bill that will be enacted. By this determination the pending measures have lost their importance, except in so far as some of their reasonable proposals may be transferred to the Governor's bill. The Governor has remarked that, as he signed the original act, he is not likely to consent to the breaking down of the law; and that when he referred to the desirability of amendments in his message he did not contemplate anything that should militate against the efficiency of the existing law. It is largely a matter of opinion, however, as to what may or may not weaken the good intent of the law; evidently the Governor believes that certain interests may be soothed and advanced by amendments that will not at all weaken it. Until this officially-inspired bill appears, it may be well to suspend judgment on those that have been heretofore introduced.

Nevertheless, it is a matter of interest to note that Assemblyman Hinson has handed in a bill to Section 55 by providing that: "Where a tenement house heretofore erected on a corner lot, which is not more than one hundred feet in depth, has a yard on the side thereof which does not face the street, which yard is not less than ten feet in width at any point and runs the entire length of such tenement house, the fact that the yard at the rear of such tenement house is not more than three feet in width shall not be deemed a violation of this act." A 3-foot yard is all right sometimes, but is rather narrow for dwelling purposes.

The Governor's bill taxing conveyances of real estate has been recommitted to the Cities Committee, together with a number of amendments. One of the requirements of the original bill is that the actual money consideration shall be specified and sworn to, or the offender shall be liable to a penalty of $200, and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor.

A bill introduced by Assemblyman Cohn amending Article 8, Section 241, of the real property law, requires that a conveyance of real property must contain the true present address of the grantee or lessee by street and number, if there be any, as well as city, borough, town or place.

A bill introduced by Assemblyman Prince prohibiting the issuance of injunctions in a labor strike without notice to the defendant, is being strongly opposed by the Building Trades Association, which interprets the bill as essentially granting immunity to strikers, no matter what means they may use to enforce their demands. Representatives of the Association have entered a protest against the passage of the bill to the Committee on Codes.

A bill handed up by Assemblyman Matthews gives husbands practically the same rights in his wife's real estate as she has in his. It provides that the husband is to have a third part interest in any real estate of his wife who dies intestate, and it gives him the same right to recover that interest as the wife now has under the code.

W. C. Damron has sold No. 219 McDonough st for H. A. Gladding and 657 Putnam av, for the Dewey estate.

A proposed new public school site for the First Ward of Brooklyn, was reported at a meeting of the Board of Education in Manhattan, held this week. It is a proposition which will run counter to the plan of locating a school in the block bounded by Hicks, Cranberry and Middagh sts. Controller Grout objected to this site and Isaac H. Cary recently went to work to obtain options on a new location. He has succeeded in obtaining thirty-day options for the westerly half of the block bounded by Hicks, Middagh and Poplar sts. This plot of land is 200 ft. by 200 ft., and fronts on three streets. There are sixteen separate lots, containing 40,000 square feet, and Mr. Cary says the property can be bought for less than the other site, which contains only 27,500 square feet. Mr. Carey contends that this site is greatly superior to the other in every way, its greatest advantage being a frontage on three streets.

At the meeting of the Realty League, held February 21, it was unanimously resolved:

First: That we are unalterably opposed on principle to any tax on mortgages covering real property for the following reasons:

All such property is already by law required to be assessed and taxed at its full value, and any tax upon the mortgage or mortgages is therefore necessarily double taxation, which the borrower must inevitably pay, and from which no legislation can relieve him, it being already the common practice to provide for the falling due of mortgages upon the passage of any law to tax the same directly or indirectly. We believe for the same reasons that the provision of law under which real estate mortgages are now taxed as personal property should be rescinded.

Second: In case it should not be deemed desirable to relieve mortgages entirely from taxation, we are in favor of an act which would permit localities to decide for themselves what species of property shall be taxed; that is, we are in favor of local option in matters of taxation.

Third: If additional sources of income are required for State purposes, we are in favor of a moderate stamp tax on deeds and mortgages, believing the same to be less objectionable and less burdensome to the community.

Material Market.

NEW POPULARITY OF BRICK FRONTS.

The movement in brick during the week has been but slight, as the weather has placed an embargo on building operations. No arrivals from Haverstraw, owing to the ice blockade, and no change in prices; except that New Jersey common, having at this season a market peculiarly their own, are bringing prices at least equal to Hudson Rivers. New Jersey common bricks, owing to the full supply and reasonable price of Hudson Rivers, have for a year been inconspicuous on this side of the harbor.

"The demand for face brick for new buildings is largely of the red order," remarked a prominent dealer this week. "The particular preference seems to be for what are known as 'Harvard brick,' which is not a patented name, and is merely the designation of the sort that the gates of Harvard College are built of. We are receiving many inquiries about red face brick, and are selling unusual quantities of various kinds Architects tell us that greater depth of color is obtained in the brick manufactured in New Jersey, owing to the sand finish and the color of the clay."

At the present time, however, a variety of colors and surfaces are being put upon the market, as the makers of brick seem to have arrived at a better appreciation of the desirability and commercial possibility of material that is well colored. A large dealer in front brick remarked: "People are realizing that brick is the very best material that can be used in a building. A good hard brick will resist great heat when exposed to fire, and will stand contraction better than any other material. In conflagrations the hardest granite has crumbled like chalk, marble has been reduced to lime and iron has melted like wax. Take the Post-Office yonder; a conflagration destroying the Astor House across the way would most likely crumble the stone surface of the Government building. In the great Boston fire many years ago brick walls stood intact where marble disappeared. Neither will a good hard brick absorb discolorating matter, like that new front over there has done, for instance, though it has only been up a few months. Some expensive and for a few weeks handsome fronts cheat their owners by taking on a begrimed appearance. You want a material hard, smooth, dense, or else it will be a lodgement for dirt. Personally, I don't think much of the Colonial style of brickwork; it was the best our predecessors could do, but we can do better. I have for sale the black-faced headers and the other requirements for the Flemish bond or Colonial styles, but they are not my choice. To me old red bricks look dingy in a crowded city, though they may be all right in other settings.

"That a marked change has occurred in the selection of material for façades is true; the newer parts of the city, but especially the reconstructed portions of the old, are the evidence and result of it. While the fashion is for improved brickwork, I hope it will particularly favor the lighter colored bricks, and give us a brighter and less gloomy-looking city, though, as I said, our firm deal in all kinds."

When this gentleman was asked how he regarded the proposed tenement house legislation, he said that building material men are naturally opposed to anything that will influence or restrict people from using material in the largest quantity.

CEMENT.

While the local demand for present use is no larger than customary at this season, the general request for present and future delivery is quite unusual, and prices incline upward rather than in the other direction.

The cement production in Canada in 1901, according to a recent estimate by a Canadian business review, in the absence of official figures, was 445,000 barrels. The imports were in that year 500,000 barrels, making in all 945,000 barrels. In 1902 the total output had risen to 815,000 barrels, and the imports 486,000 barrels, making a total supply on the market of 1,301,000 barrels. The estimated production for 1903 of the nine factories in operation last year will be 1,515,000 barrels. In addition to this the five new companies that are setting up in Ontario are estimated to produce 825,000; thus the output of Ontario is likely to be well over 2,000,000, while the new factories that are opening in Quebec and Manitoba will bring the output to about 3,000,000 barrels. As the demand is about 1,200,000 barrels, it is predicted that the excess of production is likely to cause a decline in the market, and the present condition of the German market, where cement is selling below cost, is being extensively cited as an example and warning. But the Canadians may be thinking that the American market may furnish a way out for some of their product.

LUMBER.

Advances in hemlock and North Carolina pine were expected, and some enlarged figures are shown in a number of items this week. However, it may be said that as regards hemlock, wholesalers who are obliged to ship straight cars because of the fact of their not having other lumber with which to mix hemlock, are making concessions ranging from fifty cents to a dollar off the list quotations. The northwestern hemlock manufacturers met last week, and made some slight changes in the list quotations.

SLATE.

The export trade of the United States in roofing slate, which rose so precipitately from a value of $800,000 (in round numbers) in 1897, to a value of $1,400,000 in 1898, has, according to an official report published at Washington, been decreasing ever since. In 1901 the value of roofing slate exported was $900,000, a decrease of $50,000 from the value given in 1900. The chief exportation is to Great Britain, to which slate to the value of $750,000 was sent in 1901. In 1898 the value of roofing slate exported to Great Britain was $1,250,000. Exports of slate to British Australia, which have been increasing for the last four years, are the next in value.

COAL.

In the anthracite coal trade of the city conditions are rapidly settling, on the approach of spring, to something near the normal basis. Speculative coal has largely disappeared, but not altogether; and wholesale prices are nearly down to the circular basis. It is believed that by the first of the month the speculative feeling will be as entirely eliminated as it ever is at this center. The production is now enormous; last month was the heaviest on record. The receipts of imported bituminous coal are still as heavy as they have been at any time this year, and some of it has been sold at a loss, which is an indication of the condition of the bituminous market. Another feature of the coal situation that has a tendency to ease prices is the new determination of the railroads to insist that coal be unloaded immediately upon its arrival at tidewater.

It will adjoin the County Court House, and is intended to accommodate the Supreme Court and the other judicial departments now occupying quarters in the County Court House. City Works Commissioner Radfield will have plans drawn without further delay.

The Board of Estimate also appropriated $50,000 for the proposed new Court House in Gates av, and $90,000 for a public bath in the Eastern District. The sum of $50,000 was set aside for alterations in the Borough Hall to provide accommodations for the appellate division of the Supreme Court.

The appellate division is to occupy the rooms formerly used by the Court of Special Sessions, as soon as the alterations to the building are completed.

10TH AV.—The Board of Education, at a meeting held on Thursday, has finally decided to build the De Witt Clinton High School on the site purchased by the city some years ago on 10th av, from 58th to 59th sts. The plans were prepared some time ago by C. B. J. Snyder, superintendent of school buildings, and it is expected that estimates will shortly be called for.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment to-day committed itself to the appropriation of millions of dollars for new buildings in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and authorized preliminary appropriations for the opening of architectural competition for important new buildings. Among the buildings thus authorized are a new Bellevue Hospital, to cost $3,000,000; a new wing to the Kings County Court House, to be built in Jerolemon st, Brooklyn, at a cost of $1,000,000; a new police station in the Seventy-second Precinct, Brooklyn, to cost $80,000; a new wing for the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, to cost $400,000; a municipal building in Queens, to cost $410,000; new buildings for Fordham Hospital, in the Bronx, to cost $500,000; new fire houses in Manhattan and the Bronx, to cost $256,000, and in Brooklyn and Queens, to cost $310,000; eighteen new free baths in Manhattan and three in Brooklyn, to cost $90,000 each; one very large public bath and laundry at 23d st and East River, Manhattan, to cost $200,000, and $540,000 for eighteen public comfort stations in Manhattan, six public comfort stations in Brooklyn, to cost $25,000 each, and a new magistrate's court house in Gates av, Brooklyn, to cost $50,000. These sums will not be set aside actually until after July 1, but the Board to-day set aside $32,000 for the preparations of plans for the new court house in Brooklyn, and then took up the question of rebuilding Bellevue Hospital. The sum of $75,000 was set aside for the preliminary work. The preliminary sum of $11,250 was also appropriated for the new Fordham Hospital. Besides these appropriations the administration expects to appropriate money for the new Seventy-first and Sixty-ninth Regiment armories in Manhattan and for Troop C and the Second Battalion, Naval Reserves, armories in Brooklyn.

34TH ST.—The Century Realty Co., No. 135 Broadway, are having their plot, on the north side of 34th st, 100 feet west of 5th av, excavated, preparatory to the probable erection of a 15-sty hotel from plans by Clinton & Russell, No. 32 Nassau st. The plot fronts 75 feet on 34th st, and has a depth of 111.9; one lot on the westerly side extends through to 35th st, giving it a depth of 197.6. The site is opposite the Waldorf-Astoria, and is immediately west of the new Knickerbocker Trust Co. building. Mr. Wm. A. The plot is bounded by 114th and 116th sts and Broadway and Amsterdam av. The present programme also contemplates the purchase of four or five lots on the south side of 114th st, as the site of the president's house, in line with the University library. The central part of the field is to be reserved for a campus for athletic purposes. The remaining buildings will be located around this central campus and be devoted to academic uses or utilized as dormitories for the students.

Of Interest to the Building Trades.

The work of removing buildings which encroach on White Plains av, in the Bronx, has been advanced rapidly.

The National House and Window Cleaning Company, with offices at No. 42 East 4th st, are doing work for some of the largest houses in the city. A postal card or a telephone message to them asking for estimates will receive prompt attention.

Secretary J. D. Crary announces that the annual meeting of the Association of Dealers in Building Material, for the election of officers and directors and the transaction of general business, will be held in the Association rooms, 18 Broadway, at 3 o'clock, on Thursday, March 19.

The plans for public works in Brooklyn borough this year include the extension of the 4th av improvement from 40th st to Flatbush and Atlantic avs, and the relaying of 3d av, from Union st to Atlantic av. This will give one continuous street to Fort Hamilton for trucking, and another for driving.

The Workingmen's Educational and Home Association, now located at No. 206 East 86th st, intends building a new home for its members on a plot, 100x102, now owned by the Association. Architects willing to submit preliminary sketches can obtain all information of L. Bertram, Treasurer, No. 1286 Lexington av.

Geo. Harrison and John F. Meyer, both of whom have been with a prominent firm in the artificial stone line, have embarked in business for themselves, and opened offices at No. 16 East 18th st. Both gentlemen are well known in the building trade and will be pleased to hear from those who are in the market for artificial stone floors, cellars and pavements; telephone, 3170 18th st.

Charles Smithson, ornamental plasterer, formerly of the firm of Brown & Smithson, has opened an office and factory at Nos. 328 and 330 East 26th st, where he will continue the manufacture of ornamental stucco, papier-mache, composition and cement work. Mr. Smithson is well known in the trade, doing the finest kind of work, specimens of which may be seen at many of the most costly buildings and residences, both city and country.

Recent contracts for passenger and freight elevators, finished or under way, by the Warner Elevator Mfg. Co., of No. 21 Park Row, include the southeast corner of Washington and Duane sts, for the Clark estate; No. 738 Broadway, for Morgan estate; No. 209 West 48th st, Burr & Co.; No. 308 5th av, J. C. Lyons Building and Operating Co.; 5 elevators at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, for R. H. Hood & Co., contractors; and No. 323 5th av, for W. E. Baumgarten Co. The Warner Elevator Mfg. Co. make both hydraulic and electric passenger and freight elevators, and give close attention to all orders.

Plans for new schools and additions in Brooklyn and Queens include the following: A new school between 18th and 19th sts, 6th and 7th avs, to contain 32 class rooms; a new school at Coney Island, to contain 16 class rooms; an addition to Public School No. 84, in Brownsville, which will provide 18 more class rooms. Two additions, giving 24 more class rooms, will be made to Public Schools No. 17 and No. 4, in the Borough of Queens. A new school of 24 class rooms will be built in the 42d District, and a 32-room building will be constructed in Steinway.

Francis Timoney, the oldest manufacturer of brick on the Hudson, died on Tuesday at his home near Fishkill Landing, aged 76. He lived in a mansion high above the shore, overlooking his brickyards, in a suburb called "Timoneyville." Several years ago his property was greatly damaged by a torrent, which poured down the mountain side from a broken reservoir, sweeping away houses and drowning a number of people. Born in Ireland, and with no inheritance of fortune or estate, he established himself in business, succeeded by his own unaided efforts, and left a fine estate, showing that the brick business is, after all, a good line to follow. In his declining years Mr. Timoney was proud and thankful that scrupulous honesty had ever marked his business career. One evening last summer, as he walked down to his gate with the writer, and spoke of his early struggles, he said: "I can say in all sincerity that I never wronged any man out of a dollar." Mr. Timoney was, of course, well known among the builders and dealers in material in this city; he made good brick and was highly esteemed in the trade and by his neighbors.

Conference on Tenement House Legislation.

On Friday afternoon, Tenement House Commissioner De Forest met with State Senator Hawkins and Assemblymen Ellis and Everett, who headed a delegation of Bronx citizens, and compared views in regard to tenement house legislation, in the hope of arriving at an agreement as to what measures should be provided for by the Legislature.

A prominent representative of the Bronx assured the Record and Guide yesterday that the general sentiment of the borough was in favor of revision. No radical changes were asked, but simply what would give encouragement to men who wish to build in a small way. He added:

"We want to be permitted to erect 3-sty frame dwellings outside of the fire limits, at the upper end of the borough, and we want permission to erect 3-sty brick houses inside the fire limits, but planned with proper regard to light and sanitation.

"The conference at the Tenement House Department is, I believe, to establish a harmonious arrangement. We understand that no bill will pass the Governor without the approval of the municipal administration, or, in other words, Commissioner De Forest. The Governor expects the local authorities and citizens to unite on the amendments they think are necessary, and we do not look for anything very radical."

Further inquiries among citizens of the Bronx elicited remarks to the effect that the new law has the effect of increasing rents. While the number of high-priced flats in the Bronx is considerable, the great majority range from $12 to $24 a month, and this is all that most people feel able to pay. Higher rents mean driving the greater part of the present population to Westchester County, Long Island and New Jersey.

"The North Side has scarcely any of the old-time tenements—unsafe, unsanitary and intolerable, the abolition of which was the chief purpose of tenement house reform. All existing flats above the Harlem have been built the last dozen years and are up-to-date in the matter of light and ventilation.

"Is not an investor entitled to a fair chance to get a return on his outlay? Will Mr. De Forest venture to deny that banks and other holders of money are refusing advances which before the enactment of the Tenement House Law they would have mede readily?

"We simply want the matter settled. Borough builders and owners cannot stand the existing depression in the building trades much longer."

The Architectural Record for March.

The March number of the Architectural Record is now ready for delivery and will prove particularly attractive to people who are interested in the problems connected with the growth of New York City. Mr. Charles Mulford Robinson, one of the foremost authorities on the subject, discusses the street plan of a city's business district and draws upon the experience of foreign cities for principles which it will be useful to apply to the growing cities of this country. Mr. Herbert Croly discusses at length some of the metropolitan characteristics of the Greater New York. Mr. J. Lawrence Aspinwall describes with the help of very complete illustrations the house of Mr. C. W. Wetmore at Oyster Bay, Long Island, while Mr. H. A. Caparn enters a plea which will be interesting to the owners of small country places for informal landscape gardening. Among the Paris contents may be mentioned a description of the Thiers Institute in that city, and illustrations of some of the recent work done in portrait statuettes. The price of the magazine is 25 cents and copies may be had on any of the stands of the Manhattan News Co.

CONVEYANCES.

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants or warranty.

2d.—C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed can be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no express covenants, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the Insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482, denote that the property is in section 2 block 482.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers, the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as head lines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage is drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

February 20, 21, 24, 25 and 26.

America's Biggest Building.

With the announcement that after thirty-one years of work the largest building in America is nearing completion comes another to the effect that the big pile is so overcrowded that its 4,500 tenants are beginning to call for the addition of another story; and this, despite the fact that the structure, Philadelphia's City Hall, has 682 rooms, with a total floor space of 118 acres. Mr. John M. Bunker, the superintendent of the building, is also bothered by being told continually that the twenty-two elevators cannot accommodate the thousands of persons who enter the hall daily. "What can we do?" Mr. Bunker asks. "We've put in and put in elevators until we've no place to install another. But something will have to be done soon to relieve the jam."

The chief queer thing to Philadelphia taxpayers is how the city hall cost $24,000,000. A recent report, in endeavoring to explain this expenditure, reveals some interesting facts. It states that $242,500 has been paid to the architect and his assistants in salaries since 1871, when the building was begun; $350,000 for paint and painting, $5,000,000 for 1,464,000 cu. yds. of marble for marble work; $400,000 for fitting-up rooms; $1,250,000 for watchmen and cleaners; $735,000 for electric installation, and so on. The installation of electricity furnished an interesting incident in the hall's history. When the walls were erected electric lighting was unheard of, so that when its installation was ordered the electricians had to chisel through the stone walls for the wires at very considerable expense, and it took them the better part of five years of steady work to wire the building. The dynamo-room is one of the fifty-nine in the building's basement, which runs not only under the hall but under the area in the centre as well. The second highest elevator in the world is in the tower of the building. It runs from the seventh floor, 138 ft. above ground, to the base of the Penn statue, an upward course of 372 ft. The tower also has a clock with 26-ft. dials.

Fire Prevention for the Shop.

The writer can confidently assert, from a fairly extended observation, that there is no safe way of passing a metal boiler stack through a wooden roof. Large thimbles, asbestos backing, good ventilation, etc., are usually deemed sufficient, usually approved by insurance men, and are sometimes, but by no means always, permanently successful. The tricky nature of baked wood exposed to intermittent radiant heat is such that no man can tell whether it will ignite at all, or ignite in six months or ten years. The only sure method of fire prevention where a metal boiler stack passes through a roof is to make the roof all metal, or tile, or equivalent for a large section, say, about eight feet square, with the stack passing through the center of the special section of roof.

The hazard of spontaneous combustion from shop sweepings and oily waste is probably universally understood. The use of oily waste cans and trash cans of all kinds is open to some question. Oily waste and trash cans are innocent enough if some regular system of discipline exists whereby they are regularly emptied at night. While oily waste cans are built on legs and with spring top covers for the purpose of confining any fire which may arise from spontaneous combustion material within the cans, few shop-owners would deliberately care to trust one of these cans to confine such a fire as is invited every time a can full of waste or trash is left over night in the shop. Certain shops decline to use any waste or trash cans, and throw all waste out to the middle of the floor, at the same time making provision for regular cleaning, particularly before nightfall. In this way all objectionable matter is wholly removed promptly. Oily waste cans are insisted on by insurance interests in some localities, and, again, are preferred by some shop managers; but caution is always needful to have the cans emptied regularly at night, and the same rule should be applied to trash boxes, bins, or carts, all of which should be of metal rather than of wood.

Any flue from a brass furnace or other closed draft passage carrying hot gases, should be examined by feeling with the hand where the flue passes through the roof. It is a peculiarity of some such flues that although the hand may be placed on them without inconvenience at points relatively near the source of original heat, they may be much hotter, dangerously hot, in fact, near the free air outlet of the flue. Whether this is due to a recombustion of gases as the stream of heated gases reaches the fresh oxygen of the outer air is left to the conjecture of those who care to meditate thereon, but it is a fact that a flue may be cool near the furnace and very hot near the roof. Such flues can be cured by lengthening them so that the hot portion or part near the outlet is carried up or away clear of all woodwork or buildings.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as head lines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

IN view of the failure of Congress to take any step to better our currency system, or even to apply the modest remedy for one evil proposed by the Aldrich bill, it is not surprising that the rates for money advanced this week, or that the stock market was disorganized. The ordinary movement of money severely tries the resources of this centre at this season of the year, and it may be taken for granted that with the experiences of last fall so well in mind, the attitude of loaners has become more cautious than ever; and, while there are indications that help may be had from abroad, the terms upon which this only can be obtained do not improve the general situation. Congress' inaction is the more to be regretted because, as current railroad earnings continue to reflect a widespread business activity, it is easy to see that if the small measure of legal relief desired had been afforded, confidence would have been sustained, and, while speculation need not necessarily have been encouraged by it, the present disturbance of the security markets need not have taken place. As it is the circumstances of the time have made money the entirely controlling factor of the situation, and its movement can hardly be expected to be otherwise than against quoted values in the long run. It happens that demand is as great in London as here, and this condition is spreading to other points—Berlin and Vienna, for instance, where ease has lately been the rule, while Paris sees a necessity for protecting its supplies from invasion by foreign demands. It is highly probable than London will have to bear the brunt of this universal demand for money, and this makes any support to our security market from that quarter not only unlikely, but more calculated to compel further realizations from over there. From yesterday's movements we may be supposed to have had the shake-up requisite in the circumstances, but the outlook for money does not encourage the hope of a sustained bull movement and rates are distinctly against the maintenance of the high prices until now obtained for low-return issues. The moral of the remarks made in the following paragraph regarding consols and other European issues of the first-class has application on this side of the Atlantic as well as on the other.

THE injunction issued by Judge Adams in the United States District Court at St. Louis to prevent a strike upon the Wabash Railway is an important advance upon judicial interference in labor disputes. Hitherto the powers of the courts have only been used in these matters to restrain picketing and prevent other forms of coercion. Still the injunction issued this week cannot be said to interfere with the liberties of the workman, who can stay with or leave the service of the railway company as he chooses. It prevents the Trainmen's Union from disorganizing the service of the company, and, while only intended to deny directly to the third party the right to interfere between the other two, it ought at the same time teach the workman that as a part of an organization formed for the public service, he has duties towards the public which he must respect. The decision, though rendered on purely legal grounds respecting the rights of the parties interested, is in line with the strong public sentiment that regards as intolerable the actions of unions which overlook every right of the public to be considered before they are committed, and also that constantly growing sentiment that other means of settling disputes between employer and employed must be found to displace those that are subversive of order and destructive of property and business prospects. These sentiments are in no sense actuated by enmity toward workmen. Quite the contrary. Everyone desires that their interests should be protected, which includes their title to proper compensation for their services. Wherever they are improperly treated or paid they have a perfect right to demand and secure redress, but in doing so they must consider the possible consequences of their actions. It is in this wider sense that their policy must be shaped, because it is the indirectly interested third party, but the one from whom the support of the others is drawn who is now the real complainant.

Combustible "Fireproof" Buildings Again.

THE destruction of the Roosevelt Building at the corner of 13th street and Broadway is not likely to increase the confidence of the public in "fireproof" structures. Indeed, no one ought to wonder at the statement made recently that "nothing burns so readily as a fireproof building." As a fact, many of the worst conflagrations we have seen of late have been in so-called "fireproof" buildings, and a public, not sufficiently aware of the real conditions of the case, is likely enough to jump to an unwarranted conclusion. So it has come to this pass that it is hard to get the average man to believe that a building essentially fireproof can be constructed to-day, or that the trouble lies not with the science of building, but with the practice of it.

Who is responsible for this state of affairs? In the first place, the owner. Too often he is a man who, from ignorance and cupidity, prefers cheapness to substantiality. It is he who has created the existing system of the Unqualified Lowest Bid. This system is becoming an unmitigated curse in the building trades. It puts a pressure upon everybody to scamp work and reduce quality, to pare away and trim away to the last degree the substance and durability of our buildings. In other trades that system of purchase may have very decided advantages, but it must be remembered that in almost every other trade the article sold is so to speak more current, more visible, less durable in itself, more subject to examination and final judgment. The manufacturer who puts on the market, let us say a pair of poor shoes, is soon detected and his dishonesty or incompetence quickly comes home to him to roost; but a builder's work hidden under flooring and behind lathing and woodwork is not so readily brought to the test. There is no stamp, or name or trademark on it. Frequently, too, the original owner of the building speedily parts with his property, and this sale acts as a prompt discharge of the moral responsibility of the builder to the man who employed him. We need not ask how many owners of houses in New York City know who erected their buildings?

But, with the owner, the architect also is at fault. Speaking with a few exceptions in mind, the architect unfortunately is never too deeply concerned in the scientific and practical aspect of his work. Fireproofing and a host of similar matters are not really the things he cares about. It is extremely difficult to interest him in them. He is not a builder in the real sense of the word, but a maker of pictures, a scenic artist. He has very little of the scientific conscience of the engineer nor does he share the engineer's love of the real facts of whatever problem he may be called upon to treat. As a result the architect has had practically no share in the improvement, so far as equipment and construction are concerned, of the modern building. He has taken no original interest in its development, and his secondary or adopted interest in it has been "pounded" into him by others outside the profession. The Roosevelt Building, for instance, at the time of its erection, could have been made entirely safe from such a conflagration as the one that destroyed it, at an expenditure of two hundred dollars. But that fact did not appeal to the architect. It is quite true the building was erected before the present building laws. At the time of its construction it was legally up-to-date; but scientifically it was far from up-to-date. The architect used fireproof arches. Yet, although the materials were at his command, he was perfectly content to leave much of the iron of his building unprotected. At the same time, he busied himself with plastering the exterior of his building with a vast amount of not over-admirable ornamentation, a few square feet of which might have been dispensed with for the sake of averting a conflagration such as the one that ultimately destroyed the building. In this he was typical of his profession.

There are literally hundreds of buildings now standing in this city, also called "fireproof"—not one of which really is fireproof. The architect does not show any deep concern about the matter. If the law pushes him, or the owner pushes him, he moves; otherwise he proceeds to fill his building with flammable lumber, adopts the minimum, rather than the maximum of fireproofing, and prefers to spend the money allotted to him upon columns and pilasters, bull's-eye windows and architectural carving, extremely little of which possesses a high degree of artistic excellence. A calculation might show that enough money has been expended in New York City on inferior ornamentation, inside and out, to make every building thoroughly fireproof and structurally sound. And let no one be lead astray to say that buildings cannot be erected absolutely fireproof so far as any interior conflagration is concerned. But to secure this degree of safety efficient fireproof material must be used in every part of the building, all iron work must be covered substantially with terra cotta, wood lathing must be dispensed with (metal lathing is available), and if we must keep wooden trim in our buildings, for which, after all, there is no necessity, the lumber used must be really fireproofed. Even furniture, for that matter, can now be obtained of metal or metal covered. Metal covered doors and window sashes are, moreover, available, and wired glass also can take its proper place in producing buildings absolutely imcombustible so far as any fire that can possibly be started within them.

Our architects might produce such buildings for us were it not that their sympathy is estranged from an effort in this direction. If they produced buildings of this kind, structurally of the highest order, there would be of the money allotted to them very little left to expend upon "architectural trimmings," and it is just these very trimmings of all that enters into a building that the architect is most interested in. Thus, probably the architect will never voluntarily join in the work of reform so long as he is concerned so exclusively with his picture of the building. The owner, however, has reason to join in a demand for really fireproof buildings. He knows that the public prefers a fireproof building, and will pay higher rents to live in one. Until recently it appeared that there was no legal objection to an owner describing his building as "fireproof," when it was really as combustible as, let us say the Roosevelt Building, but a decision has just been rendered by the United States Court in Albany against the Jefferson Hotel Co. in Richmond, Va., granting damages for loss of property to a plaintiff on the ground that he had been falsely assured that the hotel was "fireproof," when really it was not substantially of that character. We trust this decision will be developed and more exactly defined, so that the public will not be deceived with impunity as they are to-day by the term "fireproof," thus creating a false sense of security and bringing the science and practice of building into general contempt.

FROM a policy of distributing the burdens of the state upon all classes of property operating to relieve real estate of its excessive load, the Governor's tax program is reduced to a mere matter of party expediency. The Republican platform of last fall pledged the party to the abolition of the direct tax, hence the direct tax must go, even if the burdens are not distributed, and the load upon real estate, already admitted to be excessive, is made still heavier. That is the present position of the party leaders in the state. But the pledge was conditional, and the condition was more important than the pledge. This was to so mould taxation that those suffering from its severity should be relieved by the exaction of returns from those enjoying lucrative public privileges, for which little or no compensation was paid, and by the imposition of other forms of indirect taxation. This was a policy that could commend itself to the favor of the people. The means first proposed for redeeming the party pledge were calculated to meet its conditions, but now that they are shorn of proposals to make those who are benefiting from the state and contributing nothing to its support share the burden and in their place are inserted the two impositions on realty, the recording tax on conveyances and the tax on mortgages, and an insignificant tax on inheritances, the pledge is reduced to such a mere husk that it can be rejected by any legislator without the slightest danger to his political prospects. Not only is that the fact, but we think he will be better able to face his constituents than if, for instance, instead of a tax upon corporations, he has assisted to place one upon their mortgages. Moreover, confirming the propositions now before the Legislature, he will not only be merely changing the form of a portion of the burden upon real estate, but he will be assisting in making unlikely, if not impossible, the renewal of endeavor to diminish that burden, because it is not probable that the state, once insured of its income from any source, will risk its loss by opening up this question of taxation again. As things stand now, real estate has to provide all the public income not already provided by existing indirect taxation. The passage of the bills now before the Legislature will not alter this, as they would simply change the form in which part of this income is raised, except that they would deprive the owners of the hope which at present exists of obtaining measures of relief through an equitable and scientific schemes of taxation whenever one can be devised. The proper course for the Legislature to take is to abandon further attempts at tax legislation for this session, so that a plan can be drafted by means of which the pledge given last autumn can be honestly and fairly redeemed. Meantime no harm can be done, the State's income must in any event be raised by direct where it is not provided by indirect taxation, and further discussion and consideration may evolve the plan which will give the pledge of the party in power real redemption instead of the pretentious fulfilment that is now designed.

EVERY now and then a resolution is offered in the Board of Aldermen to restrict the height of buildings in this city. The last was offered this week and referred to a committee. It is not likely that it will pass the Board, or if it does that it will receive the approval of the Mayor. Practical men, even those who do not look with favor upon the skyscraper, have long since come to the conclusion that the time has passed when any restriction can be imposed without doing more harm than good. Land values in appropriate sections have so appreciated under the modern system of building that disqualifications of such as has not yet been improved by it would be a manifest injustice to the owners and tend to materially diminish the tax valuations which it is to the interest of the city as a whole to maintain.

The Theory of Urban Land Values.

AN ATTEMPT TO SET FORTH THE PRINCIPLES AND CONDITIONS THAT DETERMINE THE PRICE OF CITY REAL ESTATE.

CHAPTER VIII.—TYPES OF BUILDINGS.

By Richard M. Hurd, President of the Lawyers' Mortgage Insurance Company.

Let us consider next the types of buildings erected for different utilities and their reflex effects on values. The most important consideration governing suitability to location is that of proportion of cost of building to value of land, the safe general rule being that the cost of the building should approximate the value of the land. In other words, the typical successful property, land and building, appears to earn double interest on the cost of the building, one-half of which capitalized as economic rent gives a value to the land equal to the cost of the building. While there are exceptions to this proportion it forms a median line of departure, applying most closely to business property, whether the building is a $5,000 one-story brick on a cheap lot or a $3,000,000 office building in the highest priced location. The chief destruction of capital comes from the erection of expensive buildings on cheap lots, while the erection of cheap buildings, known as tax payers, even on expensive land, should not lead to loss, although it may not lead to great profit. On a street whose traffic is increasing rapidly a business building costing several times the value of the land may profitably be erected, since within ten years the value of the land may overtake the cost of the building. If, however, the building runs at a low return for ten years, the investment may prove a poor one, and the compromise of erecting one or two-stories of sufficient strength to carry later five or six, is sometimes the best solution.

In the largest cities increasing demand for space in favored localities has steadily increased the height of buildings, the practical checks arising from time to time having been successively overcome by new inventions. While fifty years ago the average height of business buildings in New York was three or four stories, and in the best locations five or six stories, the general use of elevators from 1870 on, ran the height up to eight or nine stories, where it was checked by the expense of the heavy walls and by the waste of the most valuable space on the ground floor taken up by the walls. Skeleton steel construction, developed since 1890, has saved the space on the ground floor, modified the cost of the highest buildings and run them up to twelve or sixteen stories, while express elevators have rendered thirty-story buildings practicable.

When skyscrapers were first erected it was the common opinion that buildings of this character in the midst of low buildings by cutting off their light and air robbed them of their rights, so that justice demanded a legal limit to the height of buildings. It was soon found out, however, that where a skyscraper was so built as to require light and air from the adjoining lot, it was the owner of the small lot who had the skyscraper at his mercy. The threat of replacing the low building with a high one, destroying the value of possibly a quarter to a third of the skyscraper, has quite uniformly compelled the owner of the skyscraper to buy or lease for a long term of years the adjoining property, as with the American Surety Building, Washington Life building, etc. Skyscrapers being naturally located on corners, the typical development of a small block would consist of four high buildings on the four corners and four low ones between them controlled by the high ones. With long narrow blocks, as in New York, the development would be more irregular, the tendency being to alternate high and low buildings. Further variations occur where a skyscraper owns one or two lots in an adjoining tract in order to block the erection of another high building, as with the Park Row Realty Building, and the Broad Exchange Building, or the purchase of low buildings across narrow streets to insure light and air, as with some of the life insurance company buildings.

The height of buildings has been limited by statute in Boston and Chicago, and attempts have been made to do so in New York, but the general sentiment seems to be that the economic check is sufficient.

When skyscrapers were new, rents diminished from the ground floor up, as in older buildings, but the upper stories being more desirable on account of better light and air and freedom from noise and dust, the rents were soon equalized. The demand for the upper stories has continued, so that in some buildings higher rents are charged for them, the least desirable floors being from the third to the sixth, this furnishing an economic limitation to the height of buildings.

Wherever modern office buildings have been erected, the advantages they offer have drawn tenants from the dark and old-fashioned buildings surrounding them. The offset to owners from this destruction of capital in old buildings by modern improvements, is the increase in the value of the land due to the possibility of similarly improving their land. Old property two or three blocks away, however, may lose its tenants without any corresponding gain in values, since the increase in space supplied by the skyscraper is so great that its district is more limited. As illustrating the increase of floor space from high buildings, the Bowling Green Building increased the floor space on the same area from 80,000 to 567,000 square feet, and the German-American Building from 26,000 to 126,000 square feet. An example of a shinking office district was offered by lower Wall Street, where of late years buildings have been vacant owing to the completion of the new buildings around the banking center at the intersection of Wall and Nassau Streets. As the office district spreads the old locations regain value, and lower Wall Street is now building up with skyscrapers. Similarly the old three and four-story buildings on lower Broadway became unremunerative and some were closed up, until the Bowling Green Building with its modern facilities attracted tenants. The concentration of the office district caused by skyscrapers results in a great saving of time in the interchange of business, and hence an economic gain to the community.

Subject to limitations from changing conditions and local circumstances in different cities, the following table is an estimate of the character of business buildings, as to cost, height and material, which may suitably be erected on land of varying values:

| On land valued per front foot. | Buildings may cost per cubic foot about: | Construction of buildings may be: | Height of buildings may be: |
|---|---|---|---|
| $200 | 8 to 10 cents | Ordinary brick | 2 story |
| 300 | 8 to 10 cents | Ordinary brick | 3 story |
| 500 | 8 to 10 cents | Ordinary brick | 3 to 4 story |
| 800 | 12 to 20 cents | Ordinary brick | 4 to 5 story |
| 1,000 | 12 to 20 cents | Slowburning | 5 to 6 story |
| 1,500 | 12 to 20 cents | Slowburning | 5 to 6 story |
| 2,000 | 18 to 25 cents | Tending to fireproof | 7 to 9 cents |
| 3,000 | 18 to 25 cents | Tending to fireproof | 7 to 9 cents |
| 6,000 | 30 to 50 cents | Skeleton steel, fireproof | 10 to 12 story |
| 15,000 | 30 to 50 cents | Skeleton steel, fireproof | 12 to 20 story |
| 18,000-35,000 | 30 to 50 cents | Skeleton steel, fireproof | 20 to 30 story |

Turning to residences, the proportion of cost of building may vary from one and a half to three times the value of the land, except as to workmen's cottages, where it may vary from three to five times the value of the land. The highest grade houses are ordinarily built for homes and cost more than they will sell for or than their rentals will pay interest on, this lack of commercial value increasing with the cost of the house. In expensive houses in smaller cities there is a tendency towards restoring the equilibrium between the value of the land and buildings by placing them on plots of 100 to 150 feet front by 200 to 400 feet deep. This equilibrium is more apparent than real, since not over 75 feet of frontage is necessary for the house, the balance of the land being a luxury on which taxes are paid and interest lost. In all cases the cost of the house should be closely proportioned to the cost of the surrounding houses—a $50,000 house in the midst of $5,000 houses, or a $5,000 house in the midst of $1,000 houses, having a commercial value but little in excess of the cheaper neighboring houses. Instances could be cited of houses costing five times as much as the surrounding houses which have not sold for as much as the cheaper ones, because rich people will not live among cheap houses, and poor people cannot afford to keep up large houses. Such houses usually sell for boarding-houses or sanitoriums. On the other hand, a small house in the midst of expensive ones will usually sell and rent well, there being strong competition to obtain a residence location of social importance at small outlay. There is, however, a limit to the erection of cheap residences in good locations, a large number of them spoiling the value of locations otherwise suitable for handsome residences, and some houses in fashionable sections being too small to sell well.

Turning to the larger cities, houses built in blocks represent a pressure of population on land, which does not permit the use of land for light and air around detached houses. In this class of residences the cost of the house should not greatly exceed the value of the land, with a general tendency, where the land is cheap, of the cost of the houses exceeding the land value, and where the land is expensive, the cost of the houses being less than the land value. A still more intense pressure of population on land results in apartment houses, which may properly vary in cost from two to four times the value of the land. Where apartment houses are built in smaller cities, especially if they are large and expensive, they anticipate the pressure on land which has not yet arrived, and are apt to be unsuccessful. Such apartment houses sometimes cost ten to fifteen times the value of the land, the danger of such a top-heavy investment being the abundance of competing land which can be cheaply obtained, and the fact that almost the entire investment is in the building, which is certain to depreciate physically. For example, where a $50,000 apartment house has been erected on $5,000 of land, assuming in 10 years a 30% depreciation of the building, or $15,000, and a 30% appreciation of the land, or $1,500, the net capital loss would be $13,500. The mistake of all owners who erect expensive buildings on cheap land is in not realizing that buildings erected to rent do not dominate their environment. The advantage of an even division of investment between land and building is clear, in that as against the certain physical depreciation of the building there may be an appreciation of the land to offset it. Apartment houses earn on the land more than any other form of residence, except hotels. Where tall apartment houses are erected on the corners of the traffic streets they injure the value of the adjacent lots on the side streets, despite their acting as buffers to the noise and dust of the traffic streets.

With limitations, the following is an estimate of the character of residences as to cost, size and construction, which may suitably be erected on land of varying values:

| On land valued per front ft. | Av'ge frontage of lot. | Construction may be. | Residences may cost. Per cu. ft. | Total |

*These four are all detached.

One feature affecting the suitability of buildings to land is that of the life of buildings. The useful life of a building may be ended from any one of four causes: Physical decay, destruction by fire, change of utility, or competition of new buildings.

The physical decay of ordinary buildings depends more on repairs than on the character of the original materials used. Steel frame buildings are of such recent invention that their life has not yet been tested, but engineers estimate that they will last several hundred years.

An estimate of the physical depreciation of buildings if kept in repair would be as follows:

| Class of building. | Life in years. | Annual depreciation. |
|---|---|---|
| Cheap frame tenements | 10 to 15 | 5 to 10% |
| Ordinary frame residences | 25 to 30 | 2 to 3% |
| Cheap brick tenements and office buildings | 25 to 30 | 2 to 3% |
| Cheap brick or stone residences | 35 to 50 | 1 to 2% |
| Better class frame residences | 35 to 50 | 1 to 2% |
| " " brick and stone residences | 50 to 75 | 1 to 1½% |
| Good brick and stone office buildings | 75 to 100 | 1% |
| Steel skeleton buildings | Unknown. | .... |

The loss from a change of utility is modified by the greater or less convertibility of business buildings, many office buildings being convertible into hotels or lodgings. Thus the old Astor House was changed into an office building twenty or thirty years ago, but was reconverted into a hotel, and there are many instances in western cities of buildings used interconvertibly for lodgings or offices. The destruction of buildings from change of utility constitutes an offset to increased value in land, in that the more rapid the increase in land value, the more rapid the destruction of value in the building.

Competition of new buildings operates more strongly in the case of residences and office buildings than of retail shopping buildings. As to residences, for example, when the public has been educated to prefer light stone or brick renaissance house fronts to the old-fashioned brownstone front, and modern interior arrangements, decoration and plumbing to former styles and equipment, the value of the old house has about departed, even though it is in good physical condition. As to shops, the location is paramount, and tenants pay high rents for the ground floor with little regard to the architectural appearance of the building above.

The natural tendency to erect continually better and handsomer buildings is an added force, drawing retail shops onward into new locations. Thus, while the best business street in an old city has usually been built up with brick houses two or three stories high and converted into shops on the ground floor, the buildings on the next business street are larger and better built, and so on until the best section is reached. Sometimes the best buildings when new are rented for less than the old ones, but as tenants are attracted the pressure of demand causes rents to advance in the new buildings, while removals cause rents to drop in the old ones. When the rents in the new buildings are the highest in the city the shifting of the shop centre and point of highest value has been accomplished. Efforts are sometimes made to bring back tenants to the old buildings by improving them, but rarely succeed, because the onward movement is too strong to be overcome, and because the efforts are usually made too late and without co-operation among the owners of the declining street. The owners of property yielding the highest rents in the city usually anticipate nothing but continued crease of rents and seldom realize that the business centre of a city can shift, until declining rents bring this fact forcibly to their attention. Even then many of them have not the courage or enterprise to tear down their old buildings and erect handsome new ones, and others are financially unable to do so, it being more difficult to obtain building loans on a declining street than on an improving street.

To take up the general effects of the erection of buildings, these may either increase, diminish or have no effect upon the value of the land covered and the surrounding land. The hypothesis of absence of effect we may eliminate, since while the selling price of a lot may not be affected, some effect on the surroundings will surely result. The first principle is that if the building is suited to the needs of the location and is equal to or superior in construction, arrangement and appearance to existing buildings, it tends to increase values, while if inferior and cheaper than existing buildings it tends to depress them. Such an effect of inferior buildings is by no means uniform, as there are locations in which the erection of any building, however poor, increases values.

The effects of buildings differ chiefly according to whether they are erected in a built up section within a city, or in new territory on its outskirts. If erected in a built-up section, old buildings are removed to make place for the new ones, public attention is attracted to the locality and the prices of surrounding land stiffen. The new building is quite certain to draw some tenants from the older surrounding buildings, so that their rents and value will diminish, while the land being suitable for better buildings will increase in value.

The building of new residences in long-established residence sections tends to increase values, public opinion being apt to concede a new lease of life for possibly thirty or forty years to the old residence district.

When buildings are erected on the outskirts of a city where the conversion from agricultural land to building land is taking place, the character of the buildings will at first determine the value of the land. Such districts afford highly competitive sites, where the only difference between lots, barring topography, is in transportation facilities, so that building operators can control values in the new territory by their scale of development, as in South Brooklyn. This is always assuming that the speculative buildings shall be utilized at a normal return on the capital invested, which is begging the whole question. It is the business of building operators to know what class of people can be attracted to the new areas, and their success or failure in moving population to occupy the new houses, and in attracting various classes of people, determine the scale of values. From the standpoint that land has no value until there is demand for its utilization, there is a theoretical gain in transforming speculative or anticipated value into actual value, but the future of all outlying land is discounted many years ahead, so that prices may drop after development. The worst that can happen to a suburban tract is that it should be forced on the market before there is a demand for it, the result being that poor people attracted by low prices, will build cheap houses there and create a shabby and repulsive district, which, if large enough, may act as a bar to the city's growth in that direction. There are many cases, of course, where such occupancy is but temporary, as with the shanty settlements on the upper west side in New York, and the negro ownership on residence streets in Washington.

Whether within or without a city, much can be done to force value into land by the erection of handsome buildings, if done on a large scale. It is true that tenants seeking accommodations are compelled to take them where they exist, except that if good tenants want buildings erected on new sites they can always secure them, capital being easily found where income is assured. This vital limitation to a hypothetical monopoly of existing buildings demonstrates again the fact that it is effective demand and not buildings which creates values.

The building which is most suitable to its location may be defined as that one which will for the longest term of years yield the largest and most certain net return. The time element in this definition eliminates such buildings as a factory in a residence district, or a saloon in a business location, which while yielding a large rent injures the surrounding property. There are cases in rapidly changing sections where the most suitable building is one some years in advance of the time, since the utility of the building yielding the highest present rent will in a few years disappear, necessitating its destruction or reconstruction. Many such cases of discounting the future, though carefully reasoned, have resulted unsuccessfully, owing either to the direction of growth or, equally important, the rate of growth, being misjudged. The community feels its way along a few buildings at a time in one direction or another, watching carefully where anticipated demand is not realized and unsuccessful buildings point a warning. The main principle seems to be that the best neighbors any building can have are buildings similar to itself, business buildings and residences being most keenly responsive to environment, and public buildings, factories, churches, hospitals, transportation terminals, etc., being more independent.

Before outlining the normal yield and resulting land values of the various utilities, we may note that the chief variation in them is in the form of deductions due to nuisances, under which name we may class anything tending to depreciate the value of land. The character of nuisances varies according to the section in which they are located, the cheaper the property the more impregnable to attack, and the more expensive the property the more sensititve to the levelling power of proximity, the tendency of all adjoining buildings being to strike a mean.

To classify nuisances, those affecting retail business property would be, adjoining vacancies, whether caused by rebuilding, fire, removals or failures, low class neighbors such as saloons, dilapidations, whether of buildings, sidewalks or surroundings, and topographical faults, such as sharp variations of grade, underground streams or quicksands. One of the most serious drawbacks which could happen to business buildings would be the construction of a viaduct carrying all the traffic past them at an elevation, as with the 8th Street viaduct in Kansas City and the High Holborn Viaduct in London, the latter being constructed to avoid the blocking of traffic at the intersection of Oxford and Farringdon's Streets. In office sections the chief nuisance to tall buildings consists of their being crowded so close together as to cut off light and air from each other. Apart from this, skyscrapers remote from the earth's surface have but little to fear, unless it be the chimney of adjoining lower buildings, which can be compelled to run up higher if the smoke is objectionable. Temporary nuisances, however, may arise at the ground level, such as streets torn up for repairs, the laying of pipes, etc., or sidewalks blocked while an adjacent building is being erected.

Residences are more easily affected than business property, although values are lower, in that the erection of almost any building other than a residence, constitutes a nuisance. For example, all kinds of factories, even those which emit neither smell nor noise; power-houses of street railroads; hospitals, largely for fear of infection; public schools, on account of the noise made by the scholars; business buildings, hotels or apartment houses, on account of their taking away light, air and quiet from the adjoining property; low lands, owing to fear of malaria—and all cheap, old and dilapidated buildings constitute nuisances. All rough and rocky land, or steep grades with bluffs, hollows, standing pools or ponds, is disadvantageous, unless the unsightliness has been taken away by conversion into small parks. Stables constitute the most common nuisance to residences in New York, a "stable street" having a greatly diminished value, as for example, lots on 55th Street, west of 5th Avenue, sold for about half the price of three on 54th Street, and lots on 52d Street, east of 5th Avenue, about two-thirds the price of those on 51st Street. Street railroads, which in the smaller cities may raise residence values, in the larger cities are always nuisances on residence streets, one certain result being that they attract shops, and when this process begins the desirability of the street for residence ends.

An elevated railroad renders any street through which it runs impossible for residences, while steam railroads ordinarily drive residences a block or two away. Where a railroad runs in part or in whole through a tunnel, as with the New York Central above 56th Street, the injurious effect is modified.

Even residences are a nuisance to their neighbors if they occupy an abnormal proportion of their lot area, as where the entire lot is covered except for a side light well.

So many and so severe are the nuisances to residence property that many residence neighborhoods are controlled by restrictions, usually running with the land, but sometimes limited in time. In the smaller cities the ordinary restrictions in new residence sections provide that the premises shall be occupied for residence purposes exclusively, that no residence shall be erected costing less than a given amount, and that no residence shall be placed within a certain distance of the front line of the lots. Such restrictions greatly enhance values, in guaranteeing protection against cheap buildings, stores, saloons, etc. In New York the Murray Hill restriction to residences is well known, this having undoubtedly helped to keep stores and apartments away from some locations on Murray Hill. As instancing the value of a restriction, recently on 53d Street, west of Fifth Avenue, the owner of the only two lots not restricted to private residences, having planned an apartment house, was paid $25,000 to restrict them to private residences. The chief disadvantage in restricting land to certain uses is that the utility of American city land changes rapidly, and when residence property should be converted to stores but cannot owing to restrictions, a serious detriment to values occurs.

The Real Estate Situation

Morningside Heights.

The gift to Barnard College of a sufficient sum of money to purchase the three city blocks south of its present building comes in the nick of time, because in a very few years, it would have been too late. The New York Hospital would have received offers from builders which it could not have afforded to reject. It is very much to the interest, however, of that part of the city that Barnard College should have secured the lots, because if Columbia and Barnard have plenty of room in which to grow, they are the less likely ever to be compelled to leave their present situation. As it is, the acquisition of the three additional blocks will enable the designers of the new buildings to give architectural unity to a group of buildings extending in all over the whole area between Amsterdam and Claremont avenues, 119th and 115th streets. A block in the southwest corner is indeed missing from this square, and the existing buildings of Barnard College are over the line in the northwest corner; but these lacks of symmetry in the ground plan can be disguised by skillful planning. There promises in the end to be a group of university buildings erected on Morningside Heights, which for compactness, convenience, and beauty will not be excelled anywhere in the country, and which will give the hill on which they are situated an altogether special dignity and distinction. Such a group of buildings is not only for its immediate neighborhood, it is good for the whole West Side, because it relieves the monotony of its apartment houses and dwellings, and attracts visitors from all over the country to that particular part of New York. It is such institutions as Columbia University that help to make New York a metropolis in fact as well as in name, for among its metropolitan aspects, none will be more conspicuous than such a unique and beautiful set of buildings as that which Columbia is eventually destined to have. It is a pity that an even larger part of the hill cannot be reserved for kindred purposes—that, for instance, the proposed building of the Fine Arts Federation could not be situated in the same vicinity. But presumably that building, if it is ever built, will need a more central location. We may be sure, however, that within the next few years whatever is left of Morningside Heights by Columbia and Barnard will be covered with apartment houses.

Kinds and Directions of Real Estate Activity.

The past week has witnessed no diminution of the activity which has prevailed since the fall. During the year 1902 there were more transactions in real estate recorded than during any previous year in the city's history, but the year 1903 bids fair to go ahead of the figures of the year before. This excess is not considerable; but it is sufficient to indicate the growing rather than the diminishing vitality of the causes which are making for real estate activity. There is a good sale at the present time for almost all kinds of property situated in all parts of the city, but the demand is particularly good in those sections which are available for small lofts and for tenements. During the past week, for instance, there have been a great many sites for new flats and tenements sold; and this indication of the drift of things is confirmed by the building records for the first two months of the year. These figures show, indeed, a slight decrease from the corresponding figures of last year; but the falling off is not large enough to possess much significance. What is significant, however, is the items in which the falling off has taken place. If these variations are premonitory of the course of building operations throughout 1903, we may expect a decrease of perhaps 50 per cent. in the number of apartment hotels erected, for announcements of new structures of this kind are not as numerous as they were. The number of expensive residences erected particularly by speculative builders are also diminishing; and in spite of the fact that plans will be filed for some ten very expensive ones, to be put up by their owners, the gross amount of money spent will probably be smaller. So far as business buildings go, it is probable that the large totals of last year will be equalled, if not exceeded. The class of improvement, however, in which an increase is certainly foreshadowed by the records of the first two months, is that of tenements and apartment houses, particularly the latter. It is probable that over $25,000,000 will be spent during the coming year for new houses of this character instead of only $15,000,000 as during last year. The totals will not, however, be as large as we anticipated, because practically no building is foreshadowed for the immediate future on Washington Heights. Apparently the syndicates controlling vacant property in those parts do not propose to start the movement this spring, but will reserve building operations for another year—until some of the effects of Subway operations are apparent. Moreover, the Washington Heights section of the tunnel will not be running until the expiration of several months after the opening of the main line. Consequently the building during the year 1903 will be determined by old rather than the new transit conditions.

The Right of Property in News.

Following so closely the decision of Judge Groscup of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the case of the National Telegraph News Co. vs. the Western Union Telegraph Co., the decision rendered last week by the Supreme Court of the State of Massachusetts, sustaining the former ruling of Justice Fox, of a lower court, in the case of The F. W. Dodge Company vs. The Construction Information Co., unquestionably establishes the right of property in news.

In the case of The F. W. Dodge Co. the plaintiff is engaged in the collection of information in regard to the erection of buildings, which it furnished to its subscribers. It is alleged that the defendant (The Construction Information Company) buys the reports from the plaintiff's (The F. W. Dodge Co.'s) subscribers and resells the information to its own subscribers. The claim of the defendant was that the plaintiff had no property right to the information in question.

The Court found that while the information is not a visible, tangible property, there nevertheless exists in it a valuable right which the Court should protect in every way from any one who attempted to enjoy or use it to the damage of the owner. Any one gathering news or information at some expense to himself and furnishing it daily to subscribers, orally or in writing, under a contract by which they agree to hold it in strict confidence and for the use in their own business has this right of property, which a Court of Equity will protect, this protection covering not merely the information itself, but the "form of expression" itself, which the Court held is the symbol of the owner's possession.

Judge Groscup's opinion brought out the obvious fact that the parasite, if not restrained, after killing the parent company would itself die and the public would be left without any service at any price.

In this connection, Justice Braley of Massachusetts recently issued a decree in favor of The F. W. Dodge Company against A. Q. Cole & Co., for perpetual injunction and damages on the ground that a third party should not be allowed to interfere between a contracting subscriber and a news company, thus obtaining information contrary to the terms of the existing contract. In the case of The Exchange Telegraph vs. Central News it was held that the "Court should see to it that the parties serving and the parties being served each should receive that which the contract between them calls for."

The liability of a subscriber contracting for building or other information, who through carelessness or through purpose permits the use of his reports by others than those concerned in his own business, is, of course, too obvious to need to be pointed out.

Tenements and Tenants.

HOW THE NEW LAW WORKS OUT IN PRACTICE—ACTUAL RESULTS AND EXPERIENCES—DOES IT PAY TO BUILD?

It is apparent that the fever for a radical revision of the tenement house law, which broke out when the Legislature met, has given way to a calm consideration of the subject within the radius of possibility and moderation, where the Governor and the city authorities seem willing to meet the proponents. Some aspects can yet be studied with profit. Is the law really a drawback to building operations; are the new tenements a source of greater or less net income to the investor; does a better class of people replace their predecessors in remodeled tenements, and is any sort being driven to extremities? A Record and Guide investigator set out this week to find answers to some of these questions, and one way of stating results is to cite examples.

Some of the critics who have agitated most strongly for a modification of the law have been speculative builders. Since the law went into effect a certain firm bought an old house, one having no air shafts in it at all. They paid for that house $19,500, and laid out $3,500 in making it over so as to conform to the new requirements. They literally gutted it in their work of remodeling; and when they had finished, after eight weeks, they sold it for $29,000, thus making a profit of $6,000, all within two months. They went to the extreme limit in making their improvements, doing all that the law required, and they found the house in the very worst shape.

The De Forest law provides that any dwelling hereafter converted is to conform to the provisions for new tenements. A house in Little Italy was in such bad order that the authorities expelled the tenants, and the owner, an Italian, who is a large property-holder, was obliged to fix it over according to law. He now says he is glad, because he gets from 50 to 75 cents more per apartment per month; and, as there are 16 apartments, he is getting $96 a year to pay on the cost of his improvements, which was $700.

A man had a house which under the old law contained four apartments on a floor, each renting for $6.50; total income per floor, per month, $26. Under the new law, having been obliged to make alterations, the floor space is divided into but three apartments, two in front and one at the rear. For the two in front he receives $12 each, and for the one in the rear, $8 or $9. Thus, he receives $32 or $33, where formerly he received but $26. Roughly, this is an increase of 22 per cent. in his income, and where is the owner who can show that it costs him 22 per cent. to make over an old building under the law?

COST OF ALTERATIONS.

Experience has not yet shown what per cent. would represent the average cost of alterations; they can be made in some instances for $1,000, and in others for $600; perhaps there are instances where all the changes necessary could be made for from two to four hundred dollars. Under old conditions, where there were, in the most deplorable cases, three or four families inhabiting one little dark floor, there are now, in converted houses, only two or three families on a floor, occupying bright and not unhealthful apartments.

One of the new type of houses can be found at 310 and 312 East 4th st, fairly within a characteristic East Side tenement house district. With the front laid up in cream-colored brick, the general effect of the exterior is agreeable. The main hall is papered handsomely, the sound of footfalls is smothered by heavy carpeting; no voices or noise penetrates through walls, and substantial construction gives each family the quiet and privacy it is entitled to. The house has been occupied about six months, by twenty-four families, four on a floor. Some of the apartments contain four and others five rooms. The 5-room apartments, front or back, rent for $26 a month, the janitor said, the 4-room apartments command $21 and $22. A bath for each apartment, a dumb-waiter, with a man to tend it, and halls kept clean, are the conveniences. No hot water or steam heat, but each room is open to outside light and air. As other apartments of the same size in the neighborhood rent for $16 or $17, the owner of the new house has no reason to regret her investment.

At 31 Attorney st is a five-story double tenement, with a rear house, that has been made over; inside rooms are open to outside rooms; glass panels in the doors admit the light. Cost of improvements, $600; increased income, $8 per floor, per month.

VIEWS OF OWNERS.

At 107 Russell st, Greenpoint, William Holm, a foreman iron worker, has built a 3-story house on a 20-ft. lot. In general plan it is such a house as is often found in small cities; roomy and bright. Every room has at least one window; the kitchen, dining-room and two bedrooms are lighted from the yard. On a depth of 74 feet, each floor contains 6 rooms and bath, all of good size. Mr. Holm occupies the first floor, the second is rented for $25, and the third is not yet rented. Twenty-five a month is much above the average for that neighborhood. A Greenpoint builder remarked: "When people get able to pay $25 a month, they move down to Brooklyn." The owner himself said:

"Where I was living before, I had to sleep in a dark room, and I always had a headache in the morning. Now I have a nice home of my own, and no more headaches, because there is fresh air. There are houses like this in other parts of the city, but those I have seen rent for $35 and $40. I think this house will pay all right, but it will not much more than pay. It cost me $11,200. I think the new law is all right. If you want to put up good houses, it is a good law; if you want to build poor houses, it is a bad law. I think the people will be more satisfied afterward if the law is not changed."

On the same street with Mr. Holm is a row of three double 3-sty flats, Nos. 135, 137, 139, built in conformity to the new law. The floors are all rented for $15 and $16; one house has been sold. In each of these houses there is an inner court, 16x14, which lights two bedrooms in each of the two apartments on the floor. The dining-room has a window looking into the yard, and the kitchen, which occupies the "extension," contains three windows. Patrick McTiernan, the builder, said:

"I sold one of the houses for $11,500. They will pay the investor, but there is no money in it for the builder. I won't build any more houses like this unless the law is changed."

In what respect has the new law added to the cost of construction, he was asked:

"Oh, the large court, and then they were so particular about every little thing. Besides, look at the increase in the cost of labor and materials. You have to pay a bricklayer $5.20 a day and a plasterer $5 a day."

Mr. McTiernan thought that builders would be satisfied if they could reduce the size of the court somewhat.

A large real estate holder in the Bronx said that if the law could be amended so as to permit the building of three-story houses, as described in last week's Record and Guide, no fault would be found with it.

SOCIAL EFFECTS.

It is important to know that three-fourths of the new houses are rented before they are completed; rented from the plans. This shows two things: that there is a large demand for light and air, and that there are people enough to pay the higher prices. These two facts suggested the following questions, which Dr. W. R. Patterson, Registrar of the Tenement House Department, was asked to reply to:

"Is a better class of people replacing a poorer class in the tenements?"

"I cannot answer that," said Dr. Patterson, "because I have not been in a position to interview the new tenants."

"When all tenements shall be converted, what will become of those families which cannot pay the higher rents?"

"I can only say that what has been going on in the past will continue in the future. There seems to be an apartment for everybody when the time comes. Somehow or other the question is always solved. We must admit that wages are advancing. Labor is in great demand; no small part of the increased cost of building is due to increased wages. Increased work and larger wages mean better economic conditions. More people are able to pay higher rent. The fashion is now, in building, to add stories without increasing the price that must be paid for occupancy on the ground level. Large houses are taking the place of smaller ones, as they are more economical in proportion."

"Is the average family required to adopt a higher standard of living?"

"I should say a different standard. It will be better in the sense of cleaner and more healthful, not in the sense of more expensive furnishing. If you carry out this law, we shall have them with a different home than they have had hitherto and one thing leads to another."

"Does the increased rent recompense the owners for their expenditures?"

"I should say that it does, for the reason that owners continue to construct them, and we note at present quite an increase in building activity in this line."

"Do they net as much from the new or remodeled buildings as they did under the old arrangement?"

"It is probably too early to give a definite reply. What is netted upon a given building is dependent largely upon the per cent. of vacancies that obtains in that building. I think one may be justified in assuming that, other conditions equal, the length of tenancy will be greater in the new than in the old buildings, for they are more attractive."

Dr. Patterson, being asked further regarding social aspects of the law, said:

"Naturally it is somewhat early to speak of the social effect of the law. The department is led to believe that it has done good work along this line. I was personally informed by an owner that his property did not produce the amount that it formerly did, as the new department had driven the immoral persons who formerly occupied his houses out of that section of the city. I think it is also an undisputed fact that the gangs, or rings, who made a business of placing immoral persons in tenements have, to use the words of one of our 'plain clothes' men, 'had the fear of God put into their hearts;' i. e., knowing the department will enforce violations if issued against them, they have practically ceased to carry on their former occupation."

Put to the Test.

RESULTS AND DEDUCTIONS FROM THE FIRE IN THE ROOSEVELT BUILDING ON BROADWAY.

The fire that occurred in the Roosevelt Building, on the northwest corner of Broadway and 13th st, February 26, had some interesting features. The building, which is 8 stories high, has a steel skeleton, fireproof construction, with cast-iron interior columns, plain finished brick curtain walls, with terra cotta trimmings, except for stone fronts in first and second stories. The floor covering consisted of 1-inch boards on wooden sleepers, concrete-filled, and the ceilings were plastered directly to floor arches. As near as can be determined, the fire started in the rear part of the southern half of the sixth floor, amongst a quantity of drummers' trunks, samples, etc. It ascended the central stair and elevator shaft, which was practically not cut off except by thin glass windows in wooden sashes, and entered each of the floors above. The sixth and seventh floors were divided in about the centre (north of the stair shaft) by 2-inch hollow tile partitions plastered one-half inch on each side, and these succeeded admirably in confining most of the fire on these floors to the southern half; but in this portion the stock loss was about total on each floor. In the eighth floor the fire raged more fiercely than on the others; and with the accumulated heat from the two floors below produced the most disastrous results.

Five of the cast-iron columns supporting the roof broke off clean about 2 ft. from the top, and all of the remaining columns were badly warped and twisted; likewise part of the framework of the outer walls, where the protection had been pulled off by the falling of the roof beams. The giving-way of the columns caused the entire roof excepting about one-third of area in one corner to fall, and in doing so one section of it fell through the eighth floor, making a hole in the same about 12x15 ft., and landed on the seventh floor, which sagged considerably from the increased load, but remained intact. Part of the roof in falling landed on the stair landing in the central shaft referred to and fell straight down through the building, carrying each landing with it in succession. The ironwork in the sixth and seventh floors appears to be in good condition, and structurally the building does not appear to be seriously damaged below the eighth floor, with the exception of the two broken floors where the roof fell through. The exterior walls being chiefly of brick and terra cotta, damage to them was slight. Had they been of stone the loss would probably have been much larger. Loss on building estimated at from 25% to 30%.

While this fire is probably the most important that has occurred in this class of buildings in New York, it can hardly be considered as teaching any new lesson, but rather as demonstrating and emphasizing the opinions universally held by insurance engineers, firstly, that vertical openings not thoroughly enclosed in fireproof material are a vital defect and put an otherwise well-built building practically at the mercy of any fire once well under way; and, secondly, that unprotected ironwork is a dangerous thing, never to be depended upon. The floor arches withstood the extreme heat of the fire satisfactorily, and it can be stated to a certainty that had the elevators and stairways been enclosed according to underwriters' standards, and the ironwork been protected, the same fire under the same conditions would not have spread beyond the floor upon which it originated.

Another point the fire emphasizes is the necessity of at least two stairways in all buildings of this class, and the importance of having the treads rest on an iron web or plate, as called for under the new laws. It will be noted that one stairway in this risk was made a wreck by the falling of the roof, and had it not been for the second stairway, escape would have been entirely cut off for the firemen, and there would have been no way to fight the blaze except from adjoining buildings.

From an insurance standpoint, a fireproof building with unprotected ironwork and floors not cut off, when filled with merchandise, "is scarcely better than an ordinary constructed building; and so far as the stocks in such buildings are concerned, they are hardly as desirable, if all on one floor," as when in an ordinary building of medium height. The floors of a fireproof building act as a reverberating furnace and stocks contained therein are liable to be most effectuallly cremated; but if they be distributed over several floors properly cut off, only that proportion on the floor where the fire originated should suffer.

The Equal Assessment of Real Estate.

The following letter which has been addressed to Mr. Lawson Purdy by James L. Wells, the President of the Tax Board, will prove of interest to the readers of the Record and Guide:

My Dear Mr. Purdy.—I have your letter of the 7th asking for my opinion of the bill to amend the Greater New York Charter, by providing for a separate statement of the value of land in assessments of real estate and for the publication of the Annual Record of the Assessed Valuation of Real Estate in the City of New York.

The problem of procuring an equal assessment of real estate is difficult to solve without the effective co-operation of the public. It is physically impossible for the Tax Commissioners themselves to examine personally the assessment of over half a million parcels of real estate. In spite of the best supervision that could be given by the present and preceding boards, there always have been many parcels of real estate grossly under-assessed.

The assessment roll of 1902 furnishes the following examples:

East side of Madison av, south of 42d st; 4-sty building; was assessed at $30,000; sold in October, 1902, for $101,000.

West side of Madison av, south of 41st st; 3-sty building; assessed at $25,000; sold in June, 1902, at $80,000.

South side of 58th st, east of Lexington av; a 4-sty building; assessed at $9,000; sold in July, 1902, for over $44,000.

North side of 46th st, near 6th av; a 4-sty building; assessed at $11,000; sold in March, 1902, at $35,000.

West side of Broadway, north of 26th st; two 4-sty buildings; assessed, respectively, at $30,000, and sold in July, 1902, at $125,000, and assessed at $28,000, and sold in December, 1901, at $90,000.

North side of 26th st, west of 7th av; four buildings; assessed at $5,500 each; sold in March, 1902, at over $15,000 each.

The owners of these parcels were the recipients of benefits over those who were assessed at a greater percentage of selling value, among whom were the owners of the following parcels, on the same assessment roll, viz.:

Pearl and Fulton sts (United States Hotel); assessed at $195,000, and sold in April, 1902, for the same amount.

Front st, near Beekman; 4-sty building; assessed at $12,000, and sold in January, 1900, at $10,000.

South side of Franklin st, near Broadway; 5-sty building; assessed at $61,000, and sold in June, 1902, for about $57,000.

East side of Pearl st, near Burling slip; 5-sty building; assessed at $20,000; sold in May, 1900, for about the same amount.

North side of Vesey st, near Greenwich; 3 and 4-sty building; assessed at $31,000; sold in July, 1902, for $30,000.

The only effective remedy for unequal assessment is the publicity which this bill, recommended by the Mayor, is well designed to secure. First, the bill provides for the separate statement of the value of the land. No appraiser can determine the value of the house and lot without appraising each separately. If he cannot tell the value of the land he is unfit to be an assessor. If he is unfit this is the way to find it out.

Many buildings add nothing to the value of the lot on which they stand, because they are no longer suited to the location, or are worn out. Some buildings are worth what it would cost to replace them. A deputy tax commissioner should have such knowledge of the conditions of his district, and of the building values, that he can fairly estimate the value, if any, added to the lot by the presence of the building.

When the deputy is obliged to show how he arrives at the assessed value by setting down the value of the land, and the total value, his work can be checked easily, especially when the assessment is published and all assessments are scrutinized and compared by hundreds of owners and brokers. Dishonest assessments will be practically unknown and incompetence will be fully exposed wherever it exists.

Publicity in assessments will make the supervision of the Tax Commissioners more effective, and will safeguard the interests of taxpayers. This bill insures publicity in a way that is practical and satisfactory. Yours truly, JAMES L. WELLS.

Trustees of Barnard College announced on Thursday that they had received from some person whose name is known only to President Butler and to Treasurer George A. Plimpton, a gift of a fund sufficient to enable the trustees to purchase the three blocks south of the present Barnard College. The cost is approximately fixed at $1,000,000. This magnificent site, nearly three and one-half acres in extent, is bounded by Broadway on the east, by 116th st on the south, and by Claremont av on the west. The property is 725 feet 6 inches in length by 200 feet in width. It comprises about sixty city lots. It will be possible to erect six buildings on the property thus acquired, and to make provision in addition for a proper campus and exercise grounds for the women students. # WANTS AND OFFERS

I OWN ten lots admirably situated in the best and oldest settled part of the locality known as Tremont in the Borough of the Bronx, held for many years as an investment. These are now ripe for immediate and profitable improvement and I would like to dispose of them, being interested in another line of business. Wish to arrange with a broker of recognized standing to take hold of them and find a buyer; not to simply put data in a book with description of thousands of other parcels and wait for a buyer to come in, but to go to friends who can use such property and say, "Gentlemen, here is just the land you are looking for." To any one who will handle the matter in this way, adequate compensation over and above the usual commission will be paid.

Address F. E. SAWARD, 41 Park Row.

The World of Building

Material Market.

By the signs of the calendar and the thermometer, the loosened rivers and the accelerated movements in offices and storehouses, the building season is opening. Navigation to Newburgh was opened by the Ramsdell line in mid-week, and a tow of empty barges left here for that city on Friday. This unbinds the great supplies of building material that have accumulated at producing points between Stony Point and the Danskammer, and next week will see them adding their quotas to the products of Haverstraw Bay in this market. Usually there is an interval of a week or two after the Newburgh boats begin running ere navigation is resumed to Kingston, which is thirty miles farther north, and whence comes cement and bluestone, as well as brick. Then successively the icy doors to Catskill, Hudson, and Albany are unlocked, and we begin to receive the full measure of the infinite variety of materials that the Hudson River valley prepares for the builders of New York. The winter now closing has not on the whole been so large a consumer of stocks on hand as was expected, and the impending inflow is not particularly welcome to dealers still well supplied.

BRICK.

The prospects of heavy receipts from Newburgh Bay early next week is weakening the market for common brick. Up to Thursday noon, 27 barges had come down this week from Haverstraw. The quickening of building under the spell cast by budding boughs is taking away increased quantities from the barges that have long been waiting to be freed from their loads; but under the abundant supply prices are falling; and six dollars is the highest that the best brands command.

LEGISLATION FOR BRICK.

Responsive to the wish that something be done to improve the market for brick, the manufacturers of Haverstraw have had their Assemblyman, Mr. Finnegan, introduce a bill to prevent the use of second-hand brick in this city. Section 1 of the bill reads:

"The walls of the buildings in any city of the State having a population exceeding two millions shall, below the surface of the ground, be built of stone or brick laid in cement mortar, and the backing up of all stone ashlar shall also be laid up with cement mortar or cement and lime mortar; when brick and stone are used in all other walls they shall be laid in lime or cement mortar. The brick used in all walls of buildings shall be good, hard, well-burnt brick; and no second-hand brick or bricks previously laid in mortar shall be used for any wall or pier below the level of the curb nor in any building which shall be more than 25 feet higher than the level of the curb."

CHANGES UP THE RIVER.

Manufacturers who were not exceptionally well situated made little or no money last season. For the first time in many years three yards are to let at Haverstraw, and there may be four. Nicholson & Reilly, who have operated a yard on the Eckerson property for many years are abandoning the business; on Thursday, March 26, they will sell their stock and fixtures at public auction. The Waldron Co., also an Eckerson tenant, have moved their portable machinery from the property and have made no further arrangements, so far as known. Philip Goldrick, who operates one yard on the Eckerson property and one yard on the Archer land, has not rented the Archer yard. Mr. Goldrick owns and operates a yard at Kingston and may be intending to concentrate his efforts there. Matthew Gormley has rented from the Malleys one of their yards on the De Noyelles property, and is moving from the Eckerson line.

LUMBER.

Wholesalers await the spring rush with pleasant anticipations, prices being at the highest level in history. But small retailers, who do not participate in the advantages of wholesalers, are not so satisfied with conditions as they would be were there more small buildings under contract. As is well known, retailers are not making with the exalted values the net incomes of several years ago.

The annual meeting of the National Wholesale Lumber Dealers' Association, in Washington this week, revealed a larger membership than ever before. Announcement was made of the "terms" that will be hereafter enforced, substantially as follows:

"Settlement to be made promptly on receipt of each car. Freight net cash. Balance by note at 60 days from date of invoice, or less 1½ per cent. discount for cash if paid within 15 days from date of invoice, or 1 per cent. for cash if paid within 30 days of invoice. No discount allowed after 30 days. If a car is not received within the above discount times and discount is desired, payment on account will not be held as acceptance of the shipment and the right to make corrections or complaint will not be forfeited thereby. In making delivered prices cost of the goods delivered at destination is guaranteed, but not against delay in transit."

Owing to the inability of a number of retail dealers' associations to live up to certain requirements of the reciprocal relation with the wholesale association, incorporated in the Boston agreement in 1899, it withdrew from affiliation with the National Wholesale Association. Laws have been recently enacted in certain States in opposition to combines, laws so strict in their terms that the affiliation of the smaller organizations with the national association was considered as verging on the formation of a combine, and met with the disfavor of the State authorities.

CEMENT.

The enlarged local requirement for immediate use has raised the price of Portland, but the reduction in Rosendale is expected next week, or as soon as Rondout Creek is opened to navigation. An advance of ten cents in Portland is noted in our quotations, and probably more orders are entered at $2.10, wholesale, than at $2.00.

Labor Problems.

STRIKE OF HOISTING ENGINEERS.

The strike of the hoisting engineers of the American Bridge Company is not so important in itself as what it foretells and what it has already led to. The Bridge Company, like other contractors in their line, had for some little time been paying the engine drivers by the day, instead of by the hour, but it was through an error of the Bridge Company paymaster. The discovery of this error evoked an order to pay by the hour, which the men would not consent to. Their refusal to work necessitated the hoisting of material by hand on all the buildings under construction by the company where it was possible to operate in that way; but work had to be suspended on four large buildings, including the Knickerbocker and Belmont hotels, because of no one to operate the hoisting engines. Thus, two or three men in a building are sometimes able to prevent a great many more from working, when other engineers and craftsmen are restrained by their union regulations from interfering.

IRONMASTERS ORGANIZE.

The portable hoisting engineers have for awhile been paid $4 a day, whether fully employed or not, and other contractors have preferred to submit rather than have their work interrupted. Indications there are, however, that a general halt will sooner or later be called to the impositions practiced by some unions at least. Warned by the strike of the Bridge Company's engineers, the structural iron manufacturers, after preliminary meetings here and in Philadelphia, have effected a permanent organization of national scope including already 90 per cent. of the concerns that manufacture and also erect structural iron and steel; and with this body will be affiliated the local Iron League, of which J. M. Cornell, of J. B. & J. M. Cornell, is president. A representative of the American Bridge Company said:

The association is not incorporated, as it is not intended to be used for anything but defensive purposes. If the ironworkers do not attempt to enforce their demands nothing will likely happen. If they do, they will be resisted all along the line, even if employers have to shut down. The structural iron manufacturers believe that the limit in advancing wages has been reached. There is a wage scale at which it would be no longer profitable to build, and it is considered that now is the time to call a halt. In Chicago trade is dull, owing to the many strikes. In New York it is brisk, and a good building year is expected in spite of the fact that millions of dollars are held up by people who wanted to invest their money in building operations, but are afraid of the forthcoming demands.

TROUBLE AHEAD.

Clouds are gathering in the industrial sky, and the coming building season, instead of being one of unexampled prosperity, may be spoiled by an unparalleled conflict. But for the hope and expectation of arbitration, which those unions that have won the most public respect in the past profess, apprehensions of a deplorable and even ruinous conflict would be warranted. As heretofore reported in the Record and Guide, the housesmiths, who are officially known as Local No. 2, of Bridge and Structural Workers, have demanded an increase of wages by the hour amounting to 50 cents a day, a half-holiday on Saturday all the year, and various other little favors, to date from May 1. This demand was resolved on in national convention, and applies wherever structural ironwork is handled, in Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh and other large cities; and it is because of the national scope of this movement that the manufacturers have organized on a national basis to resist. The action of the American Bridge Company is the first bugle blast of defiance. In the agreement which the union has asked the employers to sign is a specification to the effect that in the event of disagreement, presumably before a strike is called, the propositions at issue shall be submitted to arbitration. Is it not about this time that the arbitration proceedings in this case should open? Perhaps the men may be brought to see the impracticability of at least some of their requests.

SHIFTING RESPONSIBILITY.

On and after July 1st the plasterers, under an agreement made last fall, are to receive $5.50 a day, an increase of 50 cents. The employers in this trade, as in some others in the building line, have simply put it up to the investors, saying in effect: "If you are thinking of building, it will cost you this price for labor, in addition to the cost of material and the small percentage we take as compensation for assuming the responsibilities of contractors and directors of the work. It is for you to decide if you can get your money back, if it will pay to build, and whether you can find somebody to pay the rent."

This, we know, is the light in which many employers regard the question of wages. They merely shift the responsibility to the men higher up, without pausing to consider what the harvest will be, except that they believe the process cannot be repeated many times more without bringing building operations to a standstill.

The bricklayers, who now receive 65 cents an hour, intend to strain their relations with their employers by asking 70 cents. No formal demand has yet been made, but the employers have been made acquainted with this intention. The laborers who assist bricklayers and masons by handling material also think of striking for a larger wage.

LATER.—A general strike against the American Bridge Company has been called by the Executive Board of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers. The order does not affect operations not being erected by the Bridge Company, whether the material was purchased from that company or not.

The honor bestowed upon Charles F. McKim, of McKim, Mead & White, 160 5th av, by the Royal British Institute of Architects, is a peculiarly gratifying recognition of American architectural merit, and will be confirmed and approved with great unanimity by the architects of the country; for we think it is the opinion of the profession that what St. Gauden is among American sculptors of the present generation, and Sargent among painters, McKim is among our architects. The gold medal of the Royal Institute is not given in recognition of any particular design, but is awarded because of distinguished merit. Among the buildings designed by Mr. McKim are those of Columbia University, the Library Building at Boston, the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Washington, and the University Club in this city.

The Harlem Property-Owners' Association intend to hold a mass meeting of taxpayers on Wednesday evening, March 11, at Marion Hall, southeast corner 125th st and Lexington av, at 8 o'clock. It is hoped to arouse the taxpayers not only of Harlem but of the whole Borough of Manhattan to the importance of guarding the interests of all real estate owners by organizations of such numerical strength that their influence will be recognized in the future even more than in the past by the State Legislature and by all public departments of the city government. Among those expected to address the meeting are the Hon. Jacob A. Cantor, president of the Borough; Senator John Ford, author of the so-called "Ford Franchise Law," and Congressman Joseph A. Goulden. Bills now before the Legislature that tend to unduly increase the burdens of real estate owners in the City of New York will be explained.

German Steel Beams.

Relief to builders in need of structural steel which they cannot obtain from native manufacturers within reasonable time, owing to the demands of home plants, is offered by William H. Wallace & Co., No. 66 Broadway, in the form of German steel beams, with delivery six weeks after receipt of order at works, and at a cost, including duty and freight, of about the same as the American goods. These beams are made in all sizes from American standards, and it is claimed that the additional cost is saved through avoiding delay in delivery, loss of interest, etc. Architects and builders in the present congested condition of the home works, who are pressed for supplies or before placing orders, will see the advantage of communicating with William H. Wallace & Co., whose announcement appears among our business pages.

New Marble Church.

The Congregational Church of North New York is about to erect an edifice of some architectural pretensions. Planned in the Romanesque style, it will be built entirely of stone, the front of Tuckahoe marble, the side and rear walls of random block face light sandstone. The roof of the towers will be covered with tile, the main roof with tin. In the center of the main gable will be a beautiful rose window of stained glass, ten feet in diameter. The edifice will contain parlors, clubrooms, kitchen and a gymnasium and banquet hall, as well as the usual auditoriums for congregation and Sabbath school. The roof trusses will be of steel, spanning the entire width of the building, which will be at its narrowest part 60 feet. There will be no columns in the main auditorium to obstruct the view of the platform. Architects, Dodge & Morrison, 82 Wall st. Estimated cost, $75,000.

Legislation Affecting Real Estate and Building.

Alderman Downing's bill, to restrict buildings to a height of 150 feet, is designed more to help other boroughs at the expense of Manhattan, than to co-operate with the fire department. The bill is now before the Aldermanic Committee on Buildings.

The Taxpayers' Association of the 21st Assembly District have adopted and forwarded resolutions against the bill taxing conveyances of real estate. The bill is being advanced in the Legislature together with Senator Stevens's bill taxing the direct heirs of the owners of real estate of more than $10,000 in value.

Tenement House Canvass.

The Tenement House Department has recently made a canvass of every tenement house in Manhattan, Brooklyn and a part of the Bronx, to learn the number of apartments in each, the number of rooms, the number of stories, occupants and rental values. Each tenement is represented by a card. The tabulation will be thorough and will show many interesting facts. This is the first time that such a work has been undertaken; it has the immediate supervision of Dr. W. R. Patterson, the Registrar The results are not yet ready for publication.

—The energetic agitation for a subway station at 104th st and Central Park West resulted at Thursday's meeting of the Rapid Transit Commission in Comptroller Grout introducing a resolution that the petition be granted, and work begun immediately. Subsequently the Board decided to have Chief Engineer Parsons report at next week's meeting upon the practicability of constructing a station there. The residents of that section have organized, with Judson Lawson as president and W. J. Hampton secretary, and have had a careful report from their own engineer.

—Mayor Low is to gather up the loose threads in the Staten Island ferry controversy and weave them into a connecting link that will bind Manhattan closer to Richmond than ever before in their history, and probably satisfy every reasonable wish. The Islanders having mostly united in favor of the St. George terminal, their last charge was to conquer a 3-cent commutation fare, and this the Mayor will endeavor to secure for them as the chief outcome of the negotiations he is about to institute. The first step will be to acquire an option on the St. George terminals, which the Mayor thinks should be purchased by the City, when the administration will be in a position to offer the ferry franchise at auction, on the basis of a three-cent fare, five new boats, and 71 trips a day. Mr. H. H. Rogers, who is connected with the island trolley system, has pledged himself to bid on that basis. The Mayor agrees with Borough President Cromwell that St George is the right place for the landing, and the present action seems to be entirely along the line of President Cromwell's recommendations, as quoted in the last number of the Record and Guide. If the Mayor can so harmonize the rival railroad interests with the local business and general municipal interests as to give the Staten Island folk a three-cent fare, and the best ferry in the world, he will scarcely be able during his administration to do anything more important, clever and monumental.

—This is expected to be a year for unusual railroad enterprise in the Bronx. Besides the Rapid Transit subway, the New York Central and the Pennsylvania improvements, the Interborough Company will obtain a franchise for some forty miles of streets and the Union Railway is branching out in various ways, spending between two and three million dollars in rebuilding old lines and constructing new ones. Estimates based on a recent census by the Board of Education showed an increase of 22 per cent. in two years. People are evidently moving into the Bronx from Manhattan and Brooklyn in large numbers, and the reasons assigned by Bronx builders, are "because they can do better here; because the outlook here is brighter, and because they can have a more homelike home. The workingman, who toils hard and pays dear for what he gets, wants the best obtainable home for his family and for his own hours of rest and leisure, and he finds it in the Bronx." One effect of the improved transportation facilities, as planned, will be to permit families to consult their individual tastes to an extent impossible now. Many would not live out of Manhattan, having houses and surroundings entirely to their liking; while others pine for a home in the suburbs, a wish that they cannot now gratify. Prophets foretell that the completing of the subways, tunnels and bridges now under construction will be a signal for a great moving around, from the center to the circumference, and perhaps to a like extent in the opposite direction. In the same time we shall obtain improved ways of living on this island, for dwelling houses are to mount higher and higher, and there will be more apartments, with more room in those apartments for the comforts of life. There is no need of New York being a "city of sighs and tears" because of its homelessness, only we have waited too long before letting in the light.

CONVEYANCES.

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a. G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants or warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed can be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no express covenants, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the Insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482, denote that the property is in section 2 block 482.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers, the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as head lines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Regester's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage is drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

February 27, 28, March 2, 3, 4 and 5.

The Proposed Freezing Process for the Pennsylvania Tunnel.

As one of the methods that has been suggested for the construction of the Pennsylvania tunnel under the Hudson river is an application of the freezing process, by which many deep and dangerous excavations have been made for shafts in Europe, the description of the process by the engineer who proposed it, Mr. Charles Sooysmith, which appears in the Engineering News, is interesting and timely.

For shaft work, Mr. Sooysmith says, it is usual to sink vertical pipes arranged in a circle around the site of the shaft. These pipes are closed at the bottom, and each contains a smaller pipe open at the bottom. Brine, cooled by an ice machine, is circulated through these pipes until a frozen wall is made, shutting off water and sand, and permitting the excavation and shaft work to be readily done within the protection of this frozen cofferdam. To apply the freezing process to the construction of subaqueous tunnels, there has seemed the almost unsurmountable difficulty of reaching the earth to be frozen by a circulating medium with which to accomplish the freezing, and it is to provide a way to attain this end that the present designs have been made.

In constructing subaqueous tunnels by compressed air, the difficulties and large cost occur chiefly because of the difference of hydrostatic head at the top and bottom of the heading and from the size of the shield. When this difference is small, as in a tunnel but 6 or 7 ft. in diameter, the tunnel can be excavated through the most difficult materials with comparatively small expense. The plan contemplates, therefore, that a small pilot tunnel 6 or 7 ft. in diameter be built on the center line of the proposed main tunnel, and that this be used as a refrigeration chamber, from which to freeze the material surrounding this small tunnel. This may be accomplished by maintaining a temperature below 0 degrees Fahrenheit in this pilot tunnel, just as is now done in cold storage plants where, in some cases, brine is circulated through pipes located in the cold chambers and in some instances air cooled in another room is blown in and circulated. The pilot tunnel may be temporarily lined with metal plates and brine may be circulated through pipes laid against this, leaving the center unobstructed, so that the freezing may follow closely the excavation of the pilot tunnel; or, when the pilot is first completed, its lining may be made tight and the brine circulated through the body of the small tunnel itself. When it is desired to extend the pilot while freezing is in progress from it, the walls will be made annular so that access can be had through the center.

Where a double-track tunnel is to be constructed requiring a very large excavation, radial pipes may be pushed out in sections at intervals from the pilot tunnels and the brine circulated through these. In the work done at Iron Mountain, the material was frozen to a distance of 9 ft. in 72 days from pipes 8 ins. in diameter, with brine at zero temperature. Thus the material may be solidified to a sufficient distance to enable the full-sized tunnel to be excavated at one time, still leaving an ample protection of frozen material outside of the excavation.

Another plan of procedure not necessitating the use of radial pipes would be to begin excavation when the freezing had extended 4 or 5 ft. from the pilot tunnel, and enlarge the excavation a foot or two at a time by successive operations as the freezing proceeds outwardly, doing the freezing by a circulation of cold air.

Large refrigeration plants are now in use in New York and other cities in which the refrigeration service is carried several blocks from the producing plant.

By the methods outlined above a cylinder of the material in the bed of the river can be readily solidified, and at a relatively small cost, accurately ascertainable beforehand. From the records of the work done at Iron Mountain, and tests at which dredged from the bottom of the Hudson, the speed at which the freezing can be done, the number of thermal units required to freeze a given amount and the loss by cooling outside the mass frozen, are known. Tests made on the frozen silt show its strength to be equal to that of good concrete. Hence while the material would be solidified to a distance of several feet outside the space to be excavated, the strength is such that 2 or 3 feet of frozen wall would suffice to prevent collapse. In excavating for the tunnel, the methods now common in the mining of frozen material in the Klondike could be employed. Also some of the appliances used in the mining of coal would be well adapted.
